IN NEW BERN TODAY

The success of Apollo 11 should provide all the inspiration a New Bern Teenager might need to become greatly interested in science. We're in the space age, and no one can visualize what will happen in our lifetime.

Not only is there a strong possibility that the solar system can be explored. Experts predict that our adventuring will extend even further, and in God's universe the stars are said to be as numerous as grains of sand on the beaches of our world.

The opportunities for those among us who become experts in probing space and related scientific endeavors are going to be limitless. In a real sense, thousands of young people are destined to be pioneers, because our horizon will be extended almost daily.

Interest in books on space, fiction and non-fiction, has shown a sharp increase at the Regional Library here in New Bern. There are a number available, and just keep trying if the ones you want are checked out when you pay a visit.

Among the volumes are "Apollo On The Go" by Jefferson Sutton; "The Space Guidebook" by William J. Welser; "Space Pioneers" by Eric Frank Russell; "The Conquest of Space, by Willy Ley; "Rockets Through Space" by Lester Del Rey; "First Men To the Moon" by Wernher Von Braun; "The Edge of Space" by Richard A. Craig; "Space Book for Young People" by Homer E. Newell; "Space Cadet" by Robert Heinlein; "Exploration of Space" by Charles Arthur Clarke; "Rockets, Missiles and Moons" by Charles Ira Coombs; and "A Guide to Astronomy and Space Research."

Some of these books may contain material that has become obsolete in the light of what has been revealed this week. However, it will be interesting to compare what was believed to be factual, prior to last Sunday, and what really is true.

Who knows, among our readers there may be several persons who will one day go to the moon or some other planet.

gain. You have experienced emotions unlike anything you have known before, and only time will tell how quickly or slowly your life will resume routine ways.

Drama became melodrama, with the inevitable villain, when Russia's unmanned space rocket entered the picture. So futile was its mission that it breathed its last without a revelation of its intentions.

Trying to upstage the American adventure was, it seemed to us, a gamble that at best promised dubious benefit for the Soviets. Only if Apollo 11 failed did the Russians stand to profit by possibly gathering moon samples and returning them to earth.

On the basis of the best information available to the general public, Moscow was ill prepared to make such an attempt. To assume that the Russian vehicle was sent to the moon for any other reason is an assumption that offers no grounds for belief.

Persons allergic to insect bites should avoid perfumes, hair sprays, and suntan lotions which attract insects. Wear shoes, long trousers, and long sleeves — avoid flower prints that attract bees. Keep picnic food covered until the moment it is served. Any person with a known allergic reaction should carry prescribed drugs for his immediate use.
