

Yesterday was quite a day for all of us, especially the day students, for it was Visiting Day for their mothers, who were guests of the school from 10:30 till 1:00, when they had lunch in the dining room. But between those hours ushers trotted here and there over the school escorting the mothers to various classes and other (?) places of interest. We hope our guests were pleased with all they saw and heard and will come to see us again soon.

JUST IMAGINE: Sis Ward and Anne Dawson talking fast. Tootsie Martin with coal black tresses. Mr. Moore without Andromeda. Having nine months vacation and three months of school. Kay Kyser playing for the Senior dance. Olive Cruikshank acting as serene as she looks. Finding a letter in your box every day. Puddin' Lytle without her curls and with a hat on. Rice pudding without the raisins. Mr. Shaw without the mail. And just anything else you might want to. ?Payne London not moving her face along with the typewriter! ?

Last Tuesday a week ago was memorable not only for the Thanksgiving holidays that started the next day, but also for the concert that night at Needham Broughton High School auditorium. Mr. Emanuel Feuermann, a world famous violin-cellist, played a most interesting and delightful group of well known and not so well known numbers. It was indeed a rare treat, and we learned, most of us for the first time, the little known qualities of the violin cello. The next concert we are to hear is a piano duo. We might mention, too how glad we are that the auditorium this year is really a pleasant and inviting place to attend.

What time does one have tea in Raleigh? Betty Wright should be an authority for other reasons than that she was just singing "Tea for Two" one day last week.

Miss Lalor: How do you stand?            Sis Ward: On your feet.

The seniors are all of a twitter about the tea that is to be given in their honor by the Raleigh Saint Mary's Alumnae at the Woman's Club next Tuesday afternoon from four to six o' clock. Frocks and frills and all the thrills and what a time we'll have!

What two "little ones" were "in the red" when two of their masculine friends happened to pass by during a hockey game?

We're looking forward to seeing the first of the expression plays next week. Miss Davis is striking her stride now and is applying the pressure. We predict the usual perfect results.

There is another treat in store for the music lovers of Saint Mary's next Friday. Richard Crooks, the well known Metropolitan tenor, will be heard in a concert at the Page Auditorium in Durham. A special bus will be sent, and we suggest that you go if you want one of the greatest thrills you've ever had. See Mr. Tucker about it now!

We hear dire predictions about the senior dance. Seems that some of our fairest may not grace the occasion with their presence, but we hope these are but idle rumors. Meanwhile, the decorations have finally arrived and Janet Lawrence is almost happy again. But there's a lot to be done between now and that long anticipated Friday night. Let's everybody lend a hand.

Attention all amateur kodakers! As yet very few snapshots have been turned in to Anne Wheat for the annual, and we need them badly. Whip out that little picture box of yours and go about the place armed with it so you may catch somebody off guard for one of those 'intimate' poses. There are all kinds of possibilities!

What we want to know is how much longer that dratted tennis ladder is going to stay in the covered way? Because those remaining in the tournament are floating around with wry faces at the thought of having to play in this bitter weather, the managers are wringing their collective hands in hopeless despair. Now remember this: the tournament MUST BE FINISHED BY THE END OF THIS WEEK!

The series of lectures for the Junior and Senior classes, particularly those students registered for the Reading Course, get under way this morning at 8:10 A. M. when Miss Weise gives the first of three lectures on the Tragedy. These will be completed before the holidays by two or three lectures by Mr. Moore on the Epic. All lectures will be given the same early hour Thursday morning of every week from now until the end of school, and will last until 8:55. Be sure to bring your notebooks and pens.
