

If the Stage Coach staff and the weather don't get together soon and decide on a day to have pictures taken, the whole school is going to go on a strike. No less than three times has that afternoon been "closed", everyone has rebelled--and then it rained! The last time that the date was definitely decided upon, some of the poor suckers even got dressed for their first picture and were ready to be "took" in a miserable drizzle, but at the last minute the whole affair was postponed again. We're wondering if they're ever going to be taken.

(Editor's note: They are slated for this Saturday if it doesn't rain!)

Everyone is going around in a daze these days. No, not exams for a change. Half (the smaller half, goodness knows) of those in the daze are those folks who have been asked to Mid-Winters at Carolina, Davidson, State, etc., and are dreaming of the time to come. The other half are moping around, pounding on the rail (or rail) to see if they have an invitation. Then there are a few of us left who have no hopes but dejectedly accept our lot.

The School Life number of the "Bulletin" is coming out about the second week of February. If you have any contributions of news that you want put in, give them to a member of the staff soon.

If you wanted to see some excitement, you should have been around the afternoon of the Inaugural Ball. A whole slew of "debyhtantes," those who had been asked to sponsor, and others who were just going were almost uncontrollable. And the flowers and dresses and all! Some of the luckier girls' notices came up to get them out, but others went to the hotel with a diagnosis. What a time they had being up until two on a Thursday night! But Oh my, the sleepy yawns and heavy eyelids in class next morning!

One of the most interesting speakers whom we have had in a long time addressed the student body last night. She is a Korean, Mrs. Induk Pak. Her talk on her own education, Christian experience, and work was unusually interesting. It will be many a day e'er St. Mary's forgets this charming little person and her humorous anecdotes. Did you know that by her lectures on rural work in Korea that she hopes to get more cows to help her village people?

Wouldn't It be great IF:

It would stop raining.----The teachers would all forget to give us any exams. We had our own drug store in school.----Hollywood suddenly wired to say that they had decided to use St. Mary's as the setting for a movie and would pick the actors from our humble midst.----Spring vacation started tomorrow.

What young lady went south for Christmas vacation and returned to school with a nice red sunburn?

This afternoon Mrs. Kloran again entertained with one of her "class teas" that make us poor starved creatures feel exceedingly happy and contented. The Junior Class president, Sally London Fell, Nancy Maupin, Macy Jane Yeaman, and Louise Jordan assisted Mrs. Kloran in serving, or should we say stood near enough to the table to snatch delicious morsels of food from time to time? Everyone, however, had a wonderful time, and we give you our grateful thanks, Mrs. Kloran!
