Miss Brown, Many Duties

Miss Bessie Burkehead Brown has served as office secretary at Saint Mary's for three years. She comes to Saint Mary's two weeks before school starts to begin her work in the book room. Books must be opened and put on shelves, and names must be put on mail boxes.

"The opening of school just has to be lived through the best possible way," stated Miss Brown when she began telling of the many duties which face her at that particular time. Every trunk must be checked and sent to the correct room. Everybody crowds into her office buying chapel caps, paper, pencils, stamps.

After the first rush is over, she tries to teach a little spelling on the side. Daily she finds these words on slips: chaple caps, pincles (pencils), disiple, papper, thumb taxs, pacts of paper, graft paper, Devine Comidy, Hamilet, giometry, and others.

Keeping the book store is only one of Miss Brown's jobs at Saint

"I enjoy my work because people always like to get mail, packages, telegrams," says Miss Brown.
"When I fail to put mail in boxes I have many requests for letters the next day. The girls often stop me on the campus and thank me for THE letter from HIM."

In giving out mail, Miss Brown finds letters most interesting. Stationery and ink come in all colors, even black envelopes with white ink. Many letters have various pictures drawn on them and some are covered with last minute messages. Often post cards cut in the shape of a tombstone come with one word on the back "forgotten."

"Speaking of handling all kinds of mail," began Miss Brown, "imagine my surprise one Sunday morning when I started to put up the mail and each letter had a name, then a prison number—the State Prison mail bag had been sent to Saint Mary's by mistake.'

Thursdays and Fridays bring the largest mail, since weekly newspapers, week-end permissions, specials, and telegrams usually arrive then. This year Miss Brown has had the pleasure of "giving" several diamond rings and many fraternity pins.

Last Easter there were over 150 boxes of flowers, but for patriotic reasons there were not as many this year. "We have even had several boxes of live chicks in the 'stylish' pastel shades sent on Easter," says Miss Brown. "And once or twice a year a turtle usually arrives from Florida or California."

As an accommodation to the students the school runs a "side line" in sending out dry cleaning. This is another of Miss Brown's duties. The first two weeks of April she sent out 125 garments. "Believe it or not, some girls leave it on the racks for two and sometimes three weeks after their names have been posted—one of my pet hates," she says.

An average day keeps Miss Brown busy with 341 letters, 45 newspapers, 11 magazines, 35 packages, 8 telegrams, 7 specials, 2 registered letters or packages, 4 express packages, and 48 sales at the window.

INQUIRING REPORTER

Why do you think so few girls have been signing up lately to work at the Red Cross workroom on Tuesday afternoons?

Although everyone was enthusiastic at first about rolling bandages, fewer people have been signing up to go lately. Last Tuesday less than forty girls out of two hundred-odd volunteered.

Mary Louise Thomson: At the last minute girls realize they aren't willing to sacrifice pleasure

Virginia Hart: I think there's been too much to do lately.

Pauline McNeny: A lot of girls haven't been going because they don't realize how important the This is one little thing work is. we can do!

Betsy Blount: They were interested at first, but now the novelty has worn off.

Peggy Cates: They don't go often enough to know how nice

Liz Petesch: The girls aren't going because they're too lazy.

S. M. S. GLEE CLUB

these two selections will conclude the program.

Another composition of special note is the Hymn for the Air Corps. Johan Franco, a young Dutch composer who has visited Saint Mary's campus, wrote the music, and Mary C. D. Hamilton wrote the words.

Johan Franco has made a special concert arrangement of this hymn for the Saint Mary's Glee Club, and he plans to be present at the performance.

Coon's Recital Shows Excellent Technique

Mary Coons, pianist, presented her certificate recital last Tuesday night in the school auditorium with her characteristic charm and grace. Her good selection of Chopin numbers and excellent technique of their performance were particularly noted.

Mary opened her program with Beethoven's Sonata, Opus 2, number 1, a seldom played sonata of concert merit. It was especially well performed with the authority and assurance of Mary's playing.

Her second group was composed of four Chopin selections. The Prelude in E major was quite an impressive opening for this well-chosen group. The Waltz in E minor immediately became a favorite with the audience. Mary closed this group with the Etude in C minor, played with great sweep and passion.

Her last group was composed of three modern compositions by Debussy, Prokofieff, and Dohnanyi. The latter, Rhapsodie in C major, one of the finest rhapsodies since Brahms, concluded the program with brilliancy and effect.

JUNIORS AND SENIORS DANCE

There will be quite a number of servicemen from all parts of the country, including officers from the pre-flight school at N. C. State College. These officers are to be present by special invitation.

Among the class officers who will attend the dance are: Betty Barnes, president of the junior class; Maria Legg, vice-president of the junior class, with Walter Alston; Betsy Long, secretary of the junior class, with Merriweather Cunningham; Nancy Brockman, treasurer for the juniors, with Bill Ellis; and Beverley Broun, secretary and treasurer of the senior class, with Lieutenant Bill Hix. Chaperons will be members of the faculty.
