MHC To Offer Fall Elderhostel Program:

Encouraged by the success of last year's experimental program, Mars Hill College will offer an expanded fall Elderhostel program for senior adults.

Elderhostel, a nation-wide network of colleges, universities, and other non-profit educational institutions, offers adults 60 years of age or older an opportunity for intellectual stimulation and physical adventure. Inspired by the youth hostels of Europe, participants live simply, but comfortable, in campus residence halls, take their meals in the college cafeterias with other students, and meet their classes, which are taught by regular college faculty, in campus facilities.

A total of six classes are offered by Mars Hill for the two weeks of 1984 fall program. The first week, September 30 - October 6, will feature "Modernization and the Southern Mountaineer," an examination of the impact of industrialization and urbanization on the Appalachian South between 1880 and 1930; "Autumn Comes to Appalachia," a class designed to broaden the understanding of the botanical significance of the brilliant fall color extravaganza in the Blue Ridge and Smoky Mountains; and "Family, Kinship and Politics in Southern Appalachia," which will provide insights into the ways family and kinship pattern have shaped and influenced the political, religious, and educational development of mountain communities.

The second week, October 14 - 20, will offer the following classes: "Southern Politics and the 1984 Presidential Campaign" will survey the factors used to determine strategies in the regional and national elections; "1984: Cataclysm, Apocalypse, Apotheosis" is a survey of the voices of doom and visions of regeneration found in Huxley's Brave New World, George Orwell's 1984, a thought-provoking look at the degree to which human behavior is determined by heredity.

Cost for either program is $190 which includes room, board, tuition and all field trips. For additional information and a free brochure, contact the Center for Continuing Education, Mars Hill College, Mars Hill, N.C. 28754, telephone 689-1166.
