

THE STENTORIAN

Volume 6 Number 1

The North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics

November 20, 1986

Tanya Stephens, Mari Cheves, Saber Ghiassi, and Charles Lyons enjoy a sunny day in "The Pit."

NEW DORMITORY OPENS

by Lee Wright

The New Dorm opened Nov. 8, with students from Hill, Wyche, and the motel moving into the top two floors.

Residential Advisors are Dale Boger, Tony Langley, Eric Roush, and Marty Wagner. A fifth position is yet to be filled.

Ogden Spruill, Head of Residential Life, believes that "the greatest challenge will be adjusting to housing three distinct groups [Hill, Wyche, and the motel] under one roof." The New Dorm can house 198 students.

INTERNATIONAL VISITOR VIEWS S & M

by Susan R. Wallace

NCSSM serves not only as a national model for school systems, but also as an international one. One recent visitor, Mrs. Nawal Kamal, is from Jordan, where the Jubilee School, a school similar to NCSSM, is being organized.

The idea of a school for gifted and talented students in Jordan was conceived in 1977 and reinforced in 1985 after Her Majesty Queen Noor of Jordan visited NCSSM.

Last spring Director Charles Eilber went to Jordan to help implement a plan for the school, which is expected to open Sept. 1988.

"I am impressed by the structure, organization, commitment, and dedication here. I would like to say that I greatly appreciate the help, time, and effort everyone has given me," she added.

Ray Kennedy looks over the Student Privileges form.

UNICORN UPDATE

On Nov. 19 a speaker from the Shearon Harris Nuclear Plant will be in the MPC at 6:30 PM to speak to students and faculty about nuclear power.

Math teacher Dan Teague attended a conference at UCLA Nov. 7-8. The conference, sponsored by the National Research Council, discussed incorporating data analysis, finite mathematics, and math modeling into high school curriculum.

Pizza Hut, in addition to Wild Bill's and Domino's, now delivers pizza to NCSSM.

Pizza Hut 489-7979
Domino's 286-5551
Wild Bill's 286-0590

Ellery's (682-0919) delivers subs and pizza to NCSSM with a $7 minimum order.

A representative from the Coalition for Alternatives to Shearon Harris will speak Dec. 3 in the MPC at 6:30.

SENIORS GET PRIVILEGES

by Jana Watts

Peggy Smith, Dean of Students, approved Student Privileges which will set a precedent for future classes.

Dean Smith worked with the Class Issues Committee, which is headed by Ray Kennedy. The committee submitted ideas for privileges. The approved privileges include curfew extensions, weekday van runs, certain phone rights, and blanket overnight.

Students who have successfully completed four quarters at NCSSM or those who will qualify for Stage II privileges at the end of the third quarter can obtain privileges through written contracts with their Residential Advisors.

Individual behavior and grades will determine how many privileges an individual receives.

Residential Advisors can take away any privileges. Students will be able to appeal to the Class Issues Committee for a hearing in which Dean Smith will have the final say.