LEXINGTON, N. C., NOV. 1, 1924

Educational statisticians have compiled various statistics on the value of a high school education in dollars and cents. All have agreed that each day spent in the high school is worth at least $10 to each student. How many of us are getting our money's worth? If we will all stop a minute and think of the great task our teachers are doing their best to perform, we cannot, from a personal standpoint, afford to fail to do our part in helping them complete it.

***

Lexington High School is now running on a regular schedule and plan. The teachers have a check on all students, and "skipping" classes would certainly terminate in trouble for the "skipper." Our High School is not a loose-jointed, haphazard affair, but a well-ordered organization.

The students of Lexington High School appreciate the order maintained in the Library. Last year, during some periods it was turned into a general talking period, and if any one wished to study, it was impossible to do so. Now, however, a student going to the Library knows that absolute silence is expected of him and is willing to do his part in making and keeping the Library quiet for those who wish to study. Although a teacher is in the Library each period, the "keep quiet" plan has become a habit to the students, so that the rule does not have to be enforced.

Everyone was glad to see the "vacationists" return to school, and we hope no one else will feel it necessary to take a vacation before June.

***

Our grass is coming fine. Let's keep on keeping off it.

***

The class rings made a deep hole in the Christmas banks of the Seniors, but the rings are beautiful, and "a thing of beauty is a joy forever."

***

We are all finding ninety cents worth of valuable information in the "Literary Digest," but the matter of the straw-vote is creating quite a sensation among the Democrats, Republicans, and Congressionalists in school.

Those who escaped patronizing ticket-sellers for the Lexington Concord game must have had flivers equal to Mr. Hunt's for running, in which to escape.

LOYALTY.

"We're loyal to you Lexington!" Have you ever heard that before? If you have ever been to a football or basketball game here you have, for it's our school song.

Every boy and girl in L. H. S. should be loyal to the school. The boys who practice football are loyal although some never play, but they go out. Many subscribe for the Lexhipep who will never get an article in it, but they are loyal to the school.

If you are not interested in taking any part in athletics, come out to the games at least and take part in yelling your team to victory. There were only about two dozen high school students out of two hundred to see Lexington beat Mt. Airy, and very few teachers. If the boys are willing to practice everyday can't you support them by coming to the game?

Be loyal to the teachers and yourself. Try to work and co-operate with them, because they are doing their best for you. Make things easy for yourself by making it easy for the teacher.

Loyalty is a big word, and without it no school will amount to much, for the pupils must be loyal to everything connected with the school and give it their support. So come on out to the football games, and watch your team win, then read about it in the Lexhipep, and remember whatever happens you are going to be loyal and support Lexington High School until the end and victory.

THE WAIL OF A SENIOR!

Once there was a Senior sitting on a wall,
Along came Geometry and caused her to fall;
Then followed Latin, French and History,
She got out her jack to solve the mystery.

As the months pass by, we hope to arrive
At the long coveted goal, for which we have strived,
For which we have worked these many long years,
Through joys and sorrows, through laughter and tears.
And now with the end so near in view,
With the aid of the teachers we hope to pull thru.

ATTENTION!

Quite a bit of reading matter will be added to the Library when the papers from ten different high schools with whom we are exchanging begin to arrive. Twenty-two of the State's leading high schools have agreed to send us their paper in exchange for THE LEXHIPEP. Seventeen of America's largest high schools, scattered from California to Maine are sending us their publication. All these will be placed in the Library as soon as the editor has had a glance at them. Read these papers and help to improve our own.

Mr. Hunt—To what do you attribute your great knowledge?

Miss Cloud—To the good old South Carolina.
