

EXCHANGES

The Echo, Salisbury, N. C.—As a literary magazine, this does very well. We have enjoyed the short stories and compositions. It is well arranged.

The Tatler, Boys High School, Atlanta, Ga.—When we place a copy of the Tatler in the library, there is a general rush, for the students here like the jokes. (They are not exactly suitable for a Sunday School paper.) The Tatler is a good paper and believes in telling you so.

The Chit-Chat, South Boston, Va.—The Lexhipep commends Mary Brooks as a capable editor, and congratulates her on the good magazine she puts out. It is awfully hard to say anything about the Chit-Chat that is not complimentary.

The Register, Burlington, Vt.—From way up in Vermont comes a fine little paper. Without a doubt, it has found favor with L. H. S., and we read it with as much enthusiasm as we do a new Lexhipep.

The Chronicle, Duke University, Durham, N. C.—The athletic news is well written, and the literary articles are fine. We like your departments, and say they're real stuff.

West Hi. News, Minneapolis, Minn.—The way you say what you think of things about Hi. is O. K., especially, about false alarms. You are certainly publishing a fine paper.

to be prepared, when the matter is presented to you at an early date, to take some action as a student body that will show our parents and friends that we appreciate what has already been provided for our use. Then later when we find it necessary to ask for assistance, we can do it with the consciousness and satisfaction that we have done our best.
