

A. Sapp's Fibbles

By A. SAPP

Football weather—"The only season of the year when you can walk along with a blanket under one arm and a girl on the other without anyone getting suspicious."

Jim Dillon: "Should I marry a girl who can take a joke?"
Cooter: "That's the only kind you'll get."

"You down there!" shouted Mr. Brown, from the head of the stairs. "It's two-thirty! Do you think you can stay all night?"
MacBride: "Er, thank you, sir; but I'll have to phone home first."

Bus Driver: "All right back there?"
Feminine Voice: "No; wait till I get my clothes on."
Then the driver led the stampede to the rear and watched a girl get on with a basket of laundry.

Did you hear about the fellow who stayed up all night trying to figure out where the sun went when it went down. Finally, it dawned on him.

Judge: "Who was driving when you collided with that car?"
Drunk (triumphantly): "None of us; we were all in the back seat."

Rob Kepley: "So you're a painter."
Dobey: "Yep."
Rob: Paint houses, I presume.
Dobey: Nope. Paint men and women.
Rob: Oh—I see, an artist.
Dobey: Nope, just paint Men over one door and Women over the other door.

Experience is what you have left when everything else is gone.

Peggy Costner: And what did he do when you told him you didn't want to see him anymore?
Jo Ann Blackwelder: He up and turned out the light.

The Scotch patient was fumbling in his pocket.
"You don't need to pay me in advance," said the dentist.
"I'm not going to," was the reply. "I'm only counting my money before you give me the gas."

Next please.

Ruth rode on my motorbike,
Directly back of me;
I hit a bump at sixty-five,
And rode on Ruthlessly.

Carroll L: What does a dog do that a man steps in?
Ang L: What?
Carroll: Pants.

A fiery-tempered Southern busines man wrote the following letter: Sir, my stenographer, being a lady, cannot type what I think of you. I, being a gentleman, cannot think of it. You, being neither, will understand what I mean.

Little spots of powder,
Little dabs of paint,
Make a girl's complexion
Darn well what it ain't.

Puppy love is when a wolf starts hounding you to death.

Too many flames can make a girl the toast of the town.
