able girl in the Senior Class. Carolyn Koonts, not to be outdone, got to shore just after Elizabeth and reached for the title Best All Around. The life guard, Fate, accidentally tripped on a pebble, dropped the title, and Carolyn grabbed it, but definitely.

Martha Hooper and Sonny Timberlake came gracefully swimming in, Martha a little ahead of Sonny. Fate took one glance at the pair and handed them a certificate for Best Looking in their class. Martha's beauty entranced Fate and he, seemingly in a daze, placed the titles Most Popular and Most Outstanding upon her crown, also.

Loud yells and laughter heralded in Peggie McCulloch, Betty Gray Lindsay, and Marvin Crow. Fate held three titles high in the air. Marvin, being a little taller than the girls, jumped higher and got two titles, Best Athlete and Best Sport. Peggie jumped, almost fell, but was able to secure the title, Best Athlete. Betty Gray held her hands out and caught the title, Best Sport, as it floated down to land squarely in the middle of her cupped hands. Elated over their victories, the three danced gaily down the beach to a hot dog stand.

Nancy Foster and Sidney Proctor were a bit dubious of the water. They were afraid the salt water would ruin their spectacular bathing suits so they had been sitting silently beside Fate as he awarded titles to their classmates. Fate appreciated their patience and also appreciated the grandeur of their bathing attire so he gave them a badge titled, Best Dressed. Nancy and Sid gave a "whoop" and ran for the water. Fate scratched his head, wondering if he had been duped.

Just then Fate's attention was arrested by a solitary figure swimming slowly toward shore. It was a red-haired boy named Jim Redwine. Jim back-stroked, crawled, floated, and dog-paddled to shore, gave a good shake (again in dog fashion), and walked leisurely over to Fate. "Anything left?" he drawled.

Fate searched his pockets and came up with a badge titled Most Versatile. He handed it to Jim in a dazed manner. It seemed Jim's red hair (or was it pink) had caught Fate off guard. Jim turned lazily, walked back into the water, and swam on out to Peggy Costner.

Fate waited and dwaited, but no one else would leave the wonderful water. Finally he left the beach, tired and sleepy, declaring everyone else could "title himself."
