

To Santa From WHS

Dear Santa:

This is what some of us kiddies here at ye olde W. H. S. want for Christmas:

Bill Patton: Something no one else has.

Miles Hadley: High school diplomas.

Bill Price: Twenty-gauge automatic shotgun.

Betty Long: I wouldn't dare tell you.

Linda Cole: What I want you wouldn't find under a Christmas tree.

Bonnie McEvoy: Johnny Weeks.

Faye Jones: A little thing about so big that sparkles.

Roid Rogers: Kay Ellen all wrapped up with a red ribbon in her hair.

Bill Grubbs: To get out of school.

Sandra Crutchfield: Nothing.

Jackie Newman: Thunderbird.

Joanna Carpenter: A monkey.

Betty Kennedy: Great Big Doll with long pants.

Dale Pennington: Driver's license.

Phil Deaton: Jr-Sr. Prom.

Fran Teal: Grey.

Melinda Messer: Any kind of car.

Bobby Talley: Electric train.

Clifford Smith: Betty Jo.

Jimmy Skidmore: A doll.

Jimmy Barnwell: Harriet.

Nolan Moran: Sputnik.

Perry McDowell: Good grades.

Johnny Harden: Inserts.

Jimmy Suggs: Wilbur.

Roland Hodge: Zoot suit and log chain.

Marvin Beeker: Mercury motor.

J. L. Wagoner: Susan Hartis.

Peggy Lindley: Pink '58 Thunderbird.

Susan Hartis: A big surprise.

Peggy Jones: Class ring.

Pictured above are Alan Long and June Harris, shopping for Christmas gifts. June sprays Alan with "Blue Waltz", a famous perfume sold at a local store.

"Unusual" Christmas Gifts For The "Unusual" Person!

Almost everyone gets a "large charge" out of giving gifts. The difficult part is to find a suitable gift at a reasonable price for that special someone. The following suggestions were written for the purpose of making the task easier.

For the boys on your list: a genuine gutted muffler, a gold toothpick, a year's supply of Carter's Little Liver pills, one semester's supply of signed student tickets, a box of colored cue chalk with matching cue sticks, red suspenders, a '58 Cadillac convertible, a year's supply of Listerine or Beech-Nut gum, a tuxedo, five haircuts at 25 cents each.

For the girls on your list: an autographed picture of Elvis Presley, a bottle of Blue Waltz perfume, a year's supply of Silky-Straight, a bottle of hydrogen peroxide, one of your old shirts, or a stretched crew neck sweater, eyelash curlers, a diamond ring or a mink coat, your new Monogram Club sweater, a year's supply of The Barker, a bathing suit, a year's supply of dates.

Regular Gifts

Girl to boy: a new crew-neck sweater, a sweater shirt, an Ella Fitzgerald record album, a dozen pair of athletic socks, a Sheaffer's pen and pencil set, an ivy-league belt, a monogrammed neck scarf, a wallet, a stud box, a watch.

Memoirs Of A Confused Last Minute Shopper

The sound of Christmas bells, the laughter of a gay old Santa Claus, the spirit of the crowd around you—this is all a part of Christmas.

How did you do your Christmas shopping? Let us follow along behind you as you shop.

You had such good intentions. You planned to get up bright and early and be downtown when the stores opened at 9:00 a.m. sharp. So... at 11:30 there you were, searching madly for that parking place which was waiting for you at 9:00 o'clock.

At last you found one (a parking place), a mere 10 blocks from the downtown shopping district. You faced the invigorating wind with quick steps, which soon became frozen. You finally discovered yourself in the midst of an enormous mob consisting of that species of animal better known as the frantic last-minute shopper. Their spirit and enthusiasm reaches you; and you get carried away, yes, actually carried away from the store you wanted to go to.

Finally you entered a store; at least you hoped it was the right store. At long last, you forced your way through the throng and by sheer strength you reached the counter. With your last breath, you gasped out, "A red necktie, please!"

The sophisticated salesgirl gave you an indifferent glance and said coolly, "Sir, this is the Ladies' Lingerie Department. You will find what you need in the Mens' Sportswear Department located on the third floor."

In an attempt to get to the third floor, you were shoved into a freight elevator and for five minutes you were sandwiched between a grand piano and a lifesize stuffed tiger. A little worse for wear, you accidentally, and much to your surprise, reached the Mens' Department. After listening to a very strong sales talk you decided on a purple tie. Freeing yourself from the very persistent saleslady who kept insisting "this moose-head ashtray is the perfect gift for Uncle George," you continued on your way.

It is then that the Christmas spirit really hit you. After picking yourself up off the floor, package by package, you again attempted the impossible, trying to get through the crowd.

After five hours and 15 attempts to get off the elevator, you again faced the biting winds in the trek back to the car.

Reaching your car, you found that the police have left a token of remembrance in the form of a gaily decorated Christmas card reminding you that you've overparked.

However, later as you reminisced over the day's activities, you realized that you've enjoyed it all, and that it is all a part of Christmas and the Christmas spirit.

Service Clubs Plan Activities For The Yuletide Season

Christmas holidays will find many W. H. S. clubs busy with projects and activities.

The Civitans plan to give their annual Christmas parties for the mentally retarded children at Fisher Street, Maple Avenue, and Broad Street schools. The club is also selling fruit cakes, and is planning to take a needy family.

The Tri-Hi-Y clubs are now dressing dolls which they will give to underprivileged children. The Tri-Hi-Y's will also sponsor the collection of food for the janitors.

Jack Newman, president of the Jr. Exchange Club, reported the Ex-changites will give free programs at all home basketball games and will take a needy family for Christmas. The club is also distributing TB re-ceptical cans to be placed in local stores.

Civinettes will be busy during the yuletide season by selling fruit cakes and black and gold shakers.

For the Glee Club concert December 15, the Key Club will obtain two king-size Christmas trees for decorating the school auditorium.

A bottle drive is planned by the Speech Club to finance the club's activities. Speech Club scavengers will search for milk bottles, Pepsi-Cola, Coke, and Upper 10 bottles, and similar drink bottles that have a deposit.

The annual Christmas formal will be held for members of the Order of DeMolay.

The Keyettes have just completed making green bow ties and ribbon rosettes for the Glee Club members to wear Sunday. They also have furnished posters announcing the annual concert.
