

GLENN BOYD M'LEOD IS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF CLASS OF 1926

Steady Work and Good Grades Characterize Her Career at Greensboro High.

SHE IS DEPENDABLE AND TRUE
Has Never Received Below a "B" for Three Years—Member of the Girls' Council.

At the Junior Class meeting, held April 31, Glenn Boyd MacLeod was elected Senior president for next year. In her high school career she has held the following offices and been a member of the following organizations: Science Club, 1922-'24; Latin Club, '24-'25; Dramatic Club, '24-'25; Girls Council, '24-'25; Chairman finance committee for the Junior-Senior; member chapel program committee.

"Dependable—that's Glenn Boyd. Since Glenn has been in high school she has proved in every way that she is the true girl her friends think her to be", said one of her friends. "Every afternoon for about three weeks Glenn worked hard on the gay little ladies that adorned the tables at the Junior-Senior banquet. We will have to admit that she knows how to get cooperation", say her classmates.

During her three years at G. H. S. she has not fallen below a "B".

Glenn Boyd is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. V. MacLeod who reside at 125 Brtle. V. Ground avenue.

DEATH WHISTLE ALARMS THE STUDENTS OF G. H. S.

School Was Center of Attraction for a Few Minutes.

"The death whistle!" "Train has hit somebody!" "Someone has been killed!" Such were the expressions that were heard at G. H. S. one morning a few days ago.

All the pupils rushed to windows and doors and looked out to see the train parked in back of the school with the whistle blowing and the fireman busily trying to stop it.

To him it was very important as he was losing valuable time and steam. After a good ten minutes of steady blowing the whistle was fixed at the expense of a burned hand to the fireman.

During the time the whistle was blowing the school was a center of attraction. Automobiles from all over the city had rushed to the spot to see who had been killed, fond parents were on the scene anxious to see if it was one of their children who had suffered by the track being so near the school.

The fireman fixed the whistle and just as everyone was turning away from the scene a freshman rushed up and excitedly asked what was the trouble.

On being told he walked away muttering, "Pshaw! I thought the barns were burning."

SENIOR SUPPLY ROOM HAS DONE THRIVING BUSINESS

Unknown to the business world is the Senior Supply Room that does a thriving business of approximately $500 a year. This year the sales went far beyond the mark, and next year even higher figures are hoped to be attained.

The purpose of the Supply Room is to help pay off the debts of the Senior class and meet the expense of other activities carried on by it. It not only gives the Seniors responsibility and practical experience in business affairs, but also makes them dependable and self-reliant by carrying on an honest profit-making business.

TORCHLIGHT SOCIETY A LEADER

"Scholarship, leadership, citizenship, and service"—these are the Torchlight ideals. The society has "hitched its wagon to a star" and has pulled the school along with it.

GLEE CLUB IS GROWING

Under the leadership of Mr. Gildersleeve, the Glee Club has grown to great proportions and has promoted singing for both boys and girls. The two choruses have firmly established music in G. H. S.

TORCHLIGHTERS HOLD INTERESTING MEETING

Miss Vardell Speaks on Trip to Scotland—Musical Part of Program is Much Enjoyed.

On Thursday, April 14, the Torchlight Society held its regular monthly meeting. After the minutes were read and approved, the chairman of the program committee took charge.

The first part of the program consisted of some beautiful musical numbers. The school quartet, composed of Arthur Davant, Alec Mendenhall, Theron Brown and Baxter Bason, sang "Lament in Ab". Elizabeth Hodgkin played a piano solo, Chopin's "Fantasie Impromptu". Nell Applewhite sang "Out of the Dusk to You".

Miss Dickson Bardell, girl's worker at the First Presbyterian church, told most interestingly of her trip to Scotland. Post-card pictures illustrated her talk. After this the meeting was adjourned.

G. H. S. GETS OUT TWO SUCCESSFUL PUBLICATIONS

During the term 1924-1925 HIGH LIFE has accomplished much for G. H. S. It walked away with the cup in the State High School Newspaper Contest, and then went to New York and took one of the prizes in the contest at Columbia University.

The staff of the Reflector put out one of the best issues this year that the High School has ever seen. Originality was its standard.

GIRLS' COUNCIL ACTIVE

The work of this council is the general welfare of girls. This year has been a most successful one and much has been done toward building high ideals, better school spirit, and ideal womanhood.

LINGUISTS' HAVEN OF COMFORT

In 1922, Le Cercle Français was organized in Greensboro High School by Miss Inabelle Graves Coleman and, for the past three years, has been holding meetings bi-monthly. The object of the club is to promote conversational French and an understanding of the language. The presentation of plays and talks made in French have constituted the greater number of the programs, after which refreshments, usually characteristic of some custom of the country, were served.

Under Miss Kelly's able leadership, "La Cadena Espanola" and "Los Conquistadores" have come into the limelight. The clubs have not only stressed the importance of the meetings but have brought a social aspect into their work. Several parties have been given at different seasons, all being successful affairs.

The advisorship of Mr. Wunsch has carried out the ideas parallel with and helpful to the study of the German language. The offices of this club are but four; president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer.

GIRLS' ACCOMPLISHMENTS ARE COMMENTED UPON IN GOOD CHAPEL PROGRAMS

Margaret Hood Reviews Athletics—Adelaide Hilton Talks on Health, Elizabeth Stone on Ideals.

BETTY BROWN GIVES READING

Although not much was said about Girls' Week, there was one, and at the chapel period on May 13 Margaret Hood, Adelaide Hilton and Elizabeth Stone spoke to the pupils in Barn C telling them what the girls have been doing and what they hope to do. Betty Brown concluded the program by giving a reading, "The Fiddle Told," by Norah Franklin.

Margaret Hood reviewed the girls' work in athletics, giving the events participated in and the number that were won and lost.

"Health" was Adelaide Hilton's topic. She represented the girls' work in the home economics department and told what to do and what to eat to attain the weight one desired.

Elizabeth Stone had as her topic, "Ideals of High School Life," and she based her talk on Henry Van Dyke's poem, "Four Things." "To think without confusion clearly," is the real object of our education, while "To love his fellowmen sincerely" is shown by the loyal support the girls give to the school, clubs, and fellow-students. The pupils in G. H. S. have progressed a great deal in the third thing mentioned by Van Dyke, "To act from honest motives purely." This is proved by the development of the Student Council in which every pupil is represented. "To trust in God and Heaven securely" is the real lesson that our teachers wish us to learn. She closed by urging the students to prove themselves worthy of the interest shown in them.

LATIN CLUBS DIVIDED INTO THREE SECTIONS

Originality Has Been the Keynote of All Programs.

The freshmen club has seemingly run a race with the Junior-Senior Latin club. Originality in arranging their programs has been the freshmen's keynote. All their work has centered around the Latin language in an earnest endeavor to broaden their knowledge of the subject.

The Inter Nos Latin Club has accomplished much under the direction of Miss Evelyn Martin. There have been twelve meetings recorded; and the club has studied phases of Roman life. Three plays have been given—"The Schoolboys Dream," "Cardelia," and "The Slave Girl". Each member has learned a Latin Motto and has appeared on the program at least once, either speaking, singing, or participating in a play. Also they have learned several songs and the Lords Prayer in Latin.

This year's success has been due chiefly to the efficient corps of officers, Miss Betty Brown, Mary Jane Wharton, Bernice Apple and Cynthia Vaughn.

The Junior-Senior Latin Club made a new departure this year and included all Latin students of the fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth semesters who desired to join. Heretofore only seniors have been eligible but the new members have proven themselves well worthy of the privilege.

At the first meeting the officers for the year were elected and the chairman of the program committee appointed. In December, the senior section presented the play, "Pyramus et Thisbe." They had previously translated Ovid's account of this myth. In January the juniors had charge of the meeting, the subject of which was Roman festivals and games. This was followed in February by the actual celebration of the Tupperalia, fore-runner of our St. Valentine's Day. At a later meeting the program was centered about modern excavations and these have been much discussed in Latin classes since that time.

The advisorship of the club has been to bring old customs and traditions into the light of modern thoughts and all its activities have been directed along that line. Aside from natural interest, there has been much fun attached to the study.

GIRLS' WEEK OBSERVED IN CHAPEL PROGRAMS

Miss Vardell and Girls Scouts Lead Program—Louise Wysong Makes Interesting Talk.

The chapel program on May 12 was greatly in keeping with the girls' week program of May 7-16. Various phases of girls' development through organization were discussed by several different speakers.

Miss Vardell, leader of the girl scout organization in Greensboro, told of the development which scouting and outdoor life bring to girls. Scouts Goodwin, Leak, Sellers and Donnell told of benefits which they themselves had gotten from scouting and of the various things scouting had taught them to enjoy.

Louise Wysong made a short but exceedingly interesting talk on girls' camps, emphasizing especially the physical exercise that one derives through the camp and the good that this exercise does the brain.

The girl reserves were represented by Ruth Simpson, who told of the origin of the reserve movement, the slogan and motto of the reservists, the good which the reservists accomplished and the good they in turn received.

GOOD PROGRAMS GIVEN BY THE DRAMATIC CLUB

"Seventeen," "Peggy," and "Dulcy" Pleased Many People.

To the outside audience the things the Greensboro High School Dramatic club have accomplished during the past year have been four series of plays, namely: three one-act plays, "The Burglar," "Food," and "She Loves Me Not"; Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen"; "Peggy" (entered in the state contest); "Dulcy" (played last week), and a costume room offering costumes to them at a slight rental.

Then its members remember certain talks, skits, and readings rendered on the various programs. "The club has become, this year, a member of the North Carolina Dramatic Association, has begun an honor system which confers honors on each individual in dramatic productions, and is to act on the newly written constitution at its next meeting. Next year we are planning to have a Junior Club in preparation for the admittance to the Senior Club; we have arranged regular dramatic courses, Mr. Wunsch teaching; six series of plays to be given, in place of this year's four, and we hope to have an improved place for play preparation and production," are some of the promises of Margaret Hood, president.

"Our advice to you is to look in the Annual and see who the Dramatic club is, and with a proud 'three cheers' for the ol' Greensboro High School Dramatic club we bid our good friends adieu until next September."

MATH CLUBS ORGANIZED TO PROMOTE INTEREST

The math club is quite an innovation in high school circles, so young as to yet a novelty. In fact, its presence in G. H. S., our own school, has been manifested only by several bi-monthly meetings, placing its date of birth at only some four weeks back. Its purpose, like that of all "study" clubs, is to present the subject—in this case math—in a more fascinating and attractive light than that cast by steady, yet somber, light of daily toil. And the prospering clubs—plural, for there are two, Senior and Junior—have held some of the most sparkling and entertaining meetings of any clubs of the school. It was marvelous to see what fascinating subjects geometry, algebra, and trig become when held up to different lights than merely "examples 2 and 3" or "theorem 111." We refuse to say, with the usual writer of such an article, that "though a baby among clubs, we are growing steadily and expect to make a good showing," etc. We say that our club, the Math Club of G. H. S., has reached its majority and taken its place with the other clubs of G. H. S. as one of the most entertaining and at the same time one of the most worth-while of them all.

THE FRENCH CLUB GIVES AN INTERESTING PLAY, "LA SURPRISE D'ISIDORE"

Mildred Nash's Interpretation of Isidore is Praiseworthy—Others Perform Well.

A VERY ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM

Wednesday, May 13, the French Club held its last meeting of the year in Chapel immediately after school. Miss Josephine Causey's French III students presented "La Surprise D'Isidore," a comedy in one act.

CAST

Adolphe Picard Meleue Burroughs
Susanne Cecile Lindau
Isidore Mildred Nash
Mme. Duval Helen Felder
Jeanne Dorothy Mayes

Isidore and Dr. Picard were college chums who had parted at the conclusion of their school days. Now, after many years, Isidore wishes to surprise the doctor by paying him a visit.

Dr. Pickard, who keeps a sanitarium for the mentally unbalanced, asks the servant, Jeanne, who is very much afraid of crazy people, to prepare a room for a new patient and when Isidore arrives, she takes him to be the newcomer of whom the doctor spoke, and she becomes very much excited. The doctor enters and explains the situation to Isidore whom he then leaves in his office while he makes a few calls. He had told Isidore that at present there were two patients in the house, all women. During his absence Suzanne, his wife, and Mme. Duval, her mother, enter the office and Isidore, believing them to be the patients, addresses them as such. They become very much alarmed and when Jeanne informs them that the gentleman is crazy they become hysterical, but the doctor returns at an opportune moment and clears up all uncertainty by introducing his wife and mother-in-law to Isidore.

The roles were all well portrayed, but Mildred Nash's interpretation of Isidore was particularly praiseworthy.

After candy had been served the meeting was adjourned.

THE DEBATING CLUB DEVELOPS MATERIAL

Freshmen Largely Dominate the Debating Team.

The Debating club is an extra-curricular organization formed for the purpose of developing public speakers among the high school students. At its last meeting they selected current topics and debated. Declamation and oratory come in for proportionate consideration, although debating incidentally points toward the State High School Debating Championship.

This year, under the leadership of such well experienced speakers as Misses Tillet, Glenn, and Blackman, Mrs. Phillips, and Messrs. Farthing and Bullock, our club of 35 feel that they have reaped real happiness and pleasure by being members of the Debating club.

The following members of the club who represented the local team this year are: John Larkins, Henry Biggs, John Mebane, and Carlton Wilder, with Edgar Kuykendall and J. D. McNairy, Jr., as substitutes.
