

Hines and Barringer Draw Paper's Editorial Cartoons

Have you ever noticed the editorial cartoons drawn by Annie Hines and Virginia Barringer, which have appeared, respectively, in the Easter and the last issues of High Life? What, you ask, makes these drawings so important? High Life staff answers. In the past we have been getting our mats from other sources, but when the Columbia Press Association graded our paper low on this point, we had to resort to originality.

We know, of course, that an engraving of one cartoon costs $3.00; but we also know that our paper will be graded much higher next fall when we enter the contest again. Therefore, we have adopted this motto: "Draw your own."

Who Found What?

I'll give you three guesses and the first two won't count. Alligator? Bear? Monkey? No, you were all wrong. Since you can't guess, then I'll tell you—it was a five-gallon can of whiskey. But that isn't all. When the two boys from Mrs. Blackburn's nature study class found that intoxicating beverage in a creek near G. H. S., they decided to give the "forgetter" as much of a surprise as they (the boys) had received. So, all they did was to empty the "good stuff" into the stream and refill the can with "creek special." Has anybody seen someone drinking muddy water out of a five-gallon can?

"I believe that music should be a free expression of emotion," stated Raymond Brietz, and that's the principle I try to follow in directing the choruses of G. H. S." Mr. Brietz, 25-year-old director of the Glee clubs at our high school, is a native of Winston-Salem and a graduate of the University of North Carolina in the class of '36. During his two years of teaching here, he has done a fine piece of work in raising the standard of production and performance in our music department. "It is my aim," he said, "to elevate the type of music produced at G. H. S. above that of most high schools, and I believe that has been accomplished to some extent already."

In the State Music contest this year, the Girls' Glee club and the mixed chorus won an honor rating of 1, while the Boys' Glee club won a rating of 2+.

In order to win the support of the public for all its activities, the mixed chorus has sung this spring for many civic organizations, such as the Civitan club, the American Business club, the Kivamis club, the district meeting of the Masons, several churches and schools, and numerous other groups.

Sunday, May 29, the Glee club gave its spring concert in honor of the graduating class, climaxing its work for the year.

SENIORS PRESENT PAGEANT AS GRADUATION FEATURE

The pageant of the University of North Carolina, the first state university in America.

James Boyd, Thomas Dixon, John Charles McNeil, and O. Henry are four of North Carolina's most outstanding authors. Four tableaux, representing the works of these men, will be pictured in scene five.

To present scientific achievement, Dr. Henry Louis Smith will be shown in an early experiment near Concord, in which the X-ray was first used to save a life.

Tobacco, cotton, and furniture, North Carolina's three outstanding industries, are to be presented in tableau form in the seventh scene. For this a mural depicting the development of industry has been made by Mrs. Braswell's art classes.

In the concluding scene, "Seniors of 1938, Citizens of Tomorrow," a challenge will be given to the graduates to take advantage of the opportunities of today in order to keep moving the rapid march of progress in which North Carolinians have played so large a part.
