

New Senior High Stadium Planned In Grounds Improvement Projects

Work To Begin Nov. 1 Delayed One Year By Defense Needs

Including the construction of the stadium at Senior and Dudley high schools, work will begin on the city-wide playground improvement project about November 1. Ben L. Smith, superintendent of city schools, announced on October 4.

Mr. Smith received word from C. M. Crutchfield, district manager of the Federal Works agency, works progress administration, that the work will be started on or about November 1. Approved two years ago by the W.P.A. the project has been held up, partly by the national defense program, Mr. Smith stated.

To Spend $50,000

Approximately $50,000 appropriation has been set aside for the work. About $10,000 of this money will come from the capital outlay funds of the city schools budget.

The two stadiums will be built of standard size to accommodate gridirons for Greensboro high school football games. However, concrete stands will not be constructed for the present. Instead the sides of the stadium will be sloped and terraced. The Senior high stadium, to be built in horseshoe shape, will be located northwest of the field house.

Jamieson Planning Offense for Miami

Looking forward to the game with Miami on All Hallows day, Coach Jamieson has been working on an offense to compete with the well-coached Florida team. The local squad plans to leave Thursday night, October 30, to clash with Miami Senior high Stingers on the first day of November.

Coaches Bob Jamieson and Jim Day have both barrels aimed at the Miami high Stingers, and the charges coached by the two mentors, among the best-known in this state, are raring for a chance to trample the large and fast eleven from the vacation state.

The big boys of the deep south trounced an even larger team from Chicago in the Orange bowl on Christmas day, and will rate as favorites in the clash under the lights November 1, but the Whirlwinds are used to being underdogs. In the majority of the games last fall the boys from the Gate City had the role of underdog, but they won the state championship.

School Spirit, Maybe!

Coach James Day has learned a lesson: Women are dangerous on any grounds! No, Day hasn't quarreled with his Mrs. This is the way he arrived at his conclusion:

While scouting the camp of a Purple Wind rival, the Raleigh Caps, the mentor carried along a notebook in which to record the opponents' plays. Sabotage?

He put aside his notes for a moment to study the offense of the state capital lads, in which he soon became so interested that he forgot his book for a few minutes. Later he saw something of interest that might help his boys and reached for his book, only to find it missing.

Looking under the stands proved to be all in vain, and looking down the aisle was also of no avail. Then the big scouter became worried and stood up, but he could find no book which belonged to him. He sat down again and thought in vain of places where his record book might be found.

Notes Recovered Finally

Studying the situation, he heard a group of girls snickering behind him, and whirled just in time to see a young girl erasing the notes on her team taken by the Greensboro scout.

Reserve Team Shows Promising Material

Trouncing a lighter, Mount Airy "B" team, 19 to 7, the "Ramblin' Reserves" chalked up its first victory in as many starts Thursday, September 25, on a rain-soaked field at the Greensboro Memorial stadium.

The offense, led by Howard Lumbley and Stuart Knykendall, rolled up six points early in the first period before retiring from the field. Leaders on the defense were Bruce (Angel) Pickard, guard, and Ralph Anthony, center. Both Pickard and Anthony were in most of the tackles, many of them made behind the line of scrimmage.

Uses Many Subs

Coach Vernon (Sheepie) Lamb left his first team in the contest for the first quarter only. He then shot in his second team and throughout the remainder of the game used many subs. The wet field held the fast pony backs of the "Purple Breeze" at bay most of the game, but a few broke loose for long gains.

The Reserves, under the able direction of Coach Lamb, will play some games on Saturdays to entertain Uncle Sam's soldier boys.

What the Femmes Think about Sports

Rumors are floating around the school that Mervine Merritt and Bill (Burrhead) Sanders wish to organize a Boys' Archery club. Perhaps to compete or cooperate with the feminine William Tells?

In their brilliant blue play suits, with V-necks and silver buckled belts, the girls who take gym cut an attractive figure.

Interest is running high in the afternoon girls sports—archery and volley ball. There has never been so large a group participating as there is this year. That will mean more meets with other schools.

In answer to a complaint that bowling always results in aching muscles, Marjorie Burns, the blazer of the fairways replied, "If you'd take gym, the limbering-up exercises that Miss Doris Hutchinson requires would make you groan and limp around for days. But after your muscles have hardened, you'd be able to stand five or even 10 games of bowling."

The twang of the bow and swish of the arrow must have a piercing effect on boys, as well as targets, in view of the swarm of males at archery practice. This columnist wonders whether the archers, perhaps, resemble cupids?

State-U.N.C. Freshmen To Meet Here Tonight

When the State and Carolina freshman teams meet tonight at Memorial stadium, local fans will see several ex-Whirlwinds performing for the two schools.

Reports from West Raleigh say that Rene Burtner, backfield ace on Coach Bob Jamieson's 1939 squad, is running on the first string for the State frosh. However, Jim Miles, an end on last year's championship Whirlwind aggregation, broke his arm last summer and was unable to play football this season.

Three members of last year's Whirlwinds, all of whom were in Jamieson's backfield, are at Carolina. They are Joe Winner, one of the state's best backs; Albert Myrick, and Cliff Frazier.

Miss Emily Harris substituted for Miss Louise Smith Monday.

Rocky Mount Plays Winds in Deadlock

Fighting to the bitter end, the Greensboro Purple Whirlwinds played the Blackbirds of Rocky Mount to a scoreless tie in a field of mud, Friday, September 26, in the eastern city.

After getting off to a slow start in the opening half, Coach Bob Jamieson's team came back strong in the second period, only to have three drives, led by Bob McFarland, stopped close to the opponent's goal.

Passes Plentiful

The Blackbirds filled the air with passes early in the game, but the Greensboro aerial defense kept the Mount away from the Whirlwinds' goal.

One local drive ended only inches from the pay-off line, and two more offenses, sparked by the passes of Bennett Newell in the waning minutes of the game, went to naught when Rocky Mount backs made two interruptions.

The entire local line played outstanding ball on defense, allowing the Blackbird backs only a 24-yard gain for rushing. When the Whirlwinds reverses failed to gain, drives through the line by McFarland and Jack Dempsey picked up important yardage for the locals.

Weather Man Predicts Whirlwind Over Dogs Tonight at Durham

East is east, and west is west, but they meet tonight when the Greensboro Whirlwinds travel to Durham to encounter Coach Carey Brevbaker's Bulldog football squad.

The lads of Purple and Gold still have a score to settle with the Durham team for the 6-0 victory in the 1939 state finals at Chapel Hill. The clubs fought to a scoreless tie in their game here last year.

The return of Buddy Mulligan to the Greensboro line gives the locals the favorite role in the contest. After victories over Wilson, Raleigh, and Children's home, and a tie with Rocky Mount, the Whirlwinds are set to keep their record clean, while the Bulldogs boast wins over Roxboro, Oxford, Harding high of Charlotte, but must admit defeat against the High Point team last week.

Relied on Deception

The Bulldog backfield has relied on deception and passes in early season games, but the line that will face them tonight is any stronger and faster than that of its encounter this season.

For the past two games the Whirlwinds have shown much power in the backfield, but with Mulligan's return they have an added spark to their offensive reverse maneuvers.

It is doubtful, however, if George McLeod, Durham co-captain, will play at his fullback position.

Probable line-up:

Durham	Greensboro
Wethington ..le	Adams
Jones	Allen
Kerns	Groome
Hales or Sykes ..c	Sewell
Spransy	Co-Capt. Wolfe
Morgan	Campbell
Rattlelade	Brown
Reim, co-capt. ...qb	Dempsey
