In Memoriam

Ann Smith

Things happen, and we wonder, We ask the question, "Why?" "Why are we now living, And why will we soon die?" Yet our questions are unanswered; It is not for us to know All the ways that God has planned, And why He made them so. But we must soon learn to accept The Master's sovereign will; And though we may not understan And though we may not understand, It is He who made us, still. Now once again we pause to ask The age-old question "Why?" Why should one so near to us So soon be called to die, so soon be called to die, She went about her cheerful way, And never sought for fame. She always thought of others— To serve others was her aim. And through the window of her soul There shone the inner light Of one who knew the Love of God— Then death came in the night. Then death came in the night. She now is in a brighter world, Where sadness is no more. She sings a song of praise to God On Heaven's peaceful shore. Though there's "sadness of farewell" now, Ann, For those who loved you here, We'll dry our tears and ever Strive to hold your memory dear.

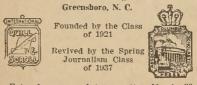

Pete Poag

Last week, hundreds of students from GHS left school to attend the funeral of Pete Poag. Pete had gone to GHS his sophomore and junior years, leaving during the middle of last year to join the Air Force. Several weeks ago, it was discovered that Pete had cancer. Though every effort was taken to save him, he died at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D. C., on May 2. To his loved ones and to his many friends, the deepest sympathy is expressed. Pete Poag will never be forgotten. We'll see Pete in the hearts of his many friends who walk the halls of GHS. We'll see his smile when foes become friends. We'll see him laugh when the stormy sky turns sunny blue. We'll see his unfaltering spirit when impossible burdens are over-come. We'll see his sincerity when wrong is admitted. We'll see his humility when man forgets himself. And best of all, we'll man forgets himself. And best of all, we'll see his everlasting faith when sinners accept their Lord.

HIGH LIFE

These Things You Will Remember, Senior

The Challenge

Rush, rush, hurry, hurry, senior luncheon, senior tea, senior prom, senior

Amidst all the commotion, con-fusion, and craziness that can only accompany the senior's last few weeks of school stand the middle men of GHS—the juniors. He, as an interested onlooker, has time to reflect on the chaos whirling around him and look both forward and backward.

This year he was closer to the Senior Class than ever. He had friends in it; he was proud when any of them were singled out for honors. And now, he hates to see them leave yet is glad to have them rise even higher in the world. But looking ahead, the departure of the senors leaves a gap which must be filled by the Junior Class.

The top class this year left a challenging record of which to be proud. As the class of 1954 leaves, the class of 1955 can and must meet this challenge.

'Pinion Poll

In the years to come, graduating sen-iors, what will be your fondest memo-ries of the three years spent at GHS. As I leave the hallowed halls of Senior High this year, I will always recall the many wonderful people whom I have met during my three years. The terrible met during my three years. The terrible part of graduation is that you will never again see many of your friends. On the other hand it is thrilling to realize that graduation is an approach to a new milestone in life as one prepares to enter college and begin many other wonder-ful associations with a host of new friends.

Ann Alexander

Ann Alexander Among all the things at GHS which I will hold in memory for the rest of my life, I believe that the Key Club and my experiences on the basketball team will be held the highest. Through both of these organizations I have met many people within our school and also throughout the state. As president of the Key Club, I have learned to understand the problems of the individual and that it takes everyone in a group to do his part so that the group will function properly. By playing basketball I have learned the real meaning of competition. Life is full of competition, and I feel that I have learned to handle myself in a competitive manner. Don Patterson

When I graduate from Senior High, one of the most outstanding personali-ties that I shall remember is that of a blue-eyed. 6'4" curley-haired history teacher and coach. I don't think that anyone who has ever made the acquain-tance of Mr. Glenn will be likely to for-get his good disposition. his co-operation, and his willingness to help students. Irene Thomas

The Shakespeare class taught by Miss Sara Mims is now spouting Shakespear-ean prologues. Under strict orders from Miss Mims, the class wrote blank verse poems which were parodies on certain passages from "The Merchant of Venice." Following are some results:

THE PATIENT

THE PATIENT How calm the patient lies upon the couch. There does he lie to tell the doctor his thoughts— Pink elephants and polka-dotted cats, Blue tigers with their wings and purple stripes, And dogs and teaspoons running down the highway. "Peace, man," the doctor said. "Now let me see.

"Peace, man," the doctor said. "Now let me see. Pink elephants and polka-dotted cats. There's nothing I can see that's wrong with that. The only thing that bothers me is what You see when mountains walk beside the sea.

the sea. It isn't normal, sir, for you to see Three-legged light bulbs dancing on the ocean."

Frances Stafford

Frances Stafford DEATH OF AN UNSUNG HERO How fierce the ocean roared upon that shore! There did he stand and let the waves of night Pound in his ears. Cold waters and the night Became the hands of approaching dread. Come. Death! Then he saw the dome of heaven Thick inlaid with clouds of luminous grey. Death! Here was not the greatest man which thou hast beheld. But in his deeds was he yet loved, Ever seeking to know the truth; Such men as he have immortal souls; Death cannot cause the beauty to decay, For lives it ever in those he loved. Jerry Matherly

SCHOOL WILL SOON BE OVER EVERYONE IS GLAD THAT'S AN UNDERSTATEMENT TO THE THOUGHTS SOME HAVE HAD.

DO YOU REEMBER that first day you walked down the hallowed halls of ole GHS as a sopho-more ... when Ken Cates led those rousing cheers at the football games ... when Barbara Massey started her own television program ... when Dale Pearce 'brought the house down' as 'Georgie' in One Foot In Heaven ... the thrill of receiving class rings ... the good time the seniors had in Washington ... when the basketball team won the AAA Conference championship ... all the fun everyone had dancing in the gym at lunch ...?

PHIL CROCKETT: Say Edna, whatcha gonna be doin Saturday night? EDNA FREEMON: (hopefully) Nothing. PHIL: Good. Could I borrow your Space Cadet comic? Oh well, as Noah said as he boarded

Graduation time brings Plantation time. Yes, for the gals in the D. D. T. Club enjoyed a gay party at the supper club last Friday night. After dining, the members and their dates ended the night with dancing. SIGNETS

SIGNETS The Signets will invade the home of Johan Ray tonight with their blankets, pillows, and of course, some "eats." The occasion is a slumber party which will probably be a full night with no "shut eye." While at the party, the girls plan to discuss their beach trip scheduled for July.

L. S. P. Recently a new slate of officers was chosen by the "Little Saints" to reign over the group next year. Elected president was Martha Wilkins funior. To help Martha in the leadership of the girls will be Sue Simmons, vice president; Martha Krieger, secretary Susan Hege, treasurer; Julianna Clark youth center representative; Kay Over-street, social chairman; Pat Leary, publi-city chairman; Janet Loops, historian and Wanda Slade and Joan Smith, pro ject chairmen. Sophomore and junior L. S. P.'s are now making plans for the annual lunch on honoring the graduating seniors of the club. This year it is to be at Martha wilkins' home on May 28. A poem and a small gift are to be given to each senior.

S. L. C. The Siempre Libre Club members are outlining two major coming events. First is an excursion to the Plantation on Fri-day, May 28. Of course, the occasion is a celebration of the close of school. The following Monday, Junel, the gals and their chaperones will journey to Ocean Drive Beach for a week's enjoyment of the "good ole beach life."

LES SOEURS

LES SOEURS "Sail ahoy" is the cry as the Sisters take a jaunt to White Lake at 3:30 to day to spend the week-end at the cottage of Martha Bright. Barbara Flynn was elected president for 1954-55. Others chosen were Martha Bright, vice-president; Lila Malone, see retary; Martha Burnet, treasurer; and Kay Stewart, Youth Center representa-tive.

G. W. I.

G. W. I. Everyone was astounded to find out what was brewing in the pot for Anna Huffine and Carolyn Paschal last Satur-day night, as they were given a surprise birthday party by their G. W. I. pals Ice cream and cake was served for the members and their dates at the home of Pat Heigesen in honor of the two. Fol-lowing the informal party they journeyed out to Charlie Pemberton's for a hay-ride.

out to Charlie Pemberton's for a hay-ride. . At the home of Martha Jester last Thursday night, Sue McEntire was chosen president to succeed Anna Huffine. Her co-workers will be Ann Taylor, vice-pre-sident; Terry Garrison, secretary; Doris Irvin, treasurer; Sally Durham, social chairman; and Dava Cashwell, Youth Center representative. E.S.A.

E. S. A. Frances Thompson has recently been chosen by the E. S. A. members to be their president next year. Holly Deifell well serve as vice-president; Margarel Lucas, as secretary; Bobby Meeks, as treasurer; Mary Jane Boydell, as Youth Center representative; Randy Burnett, as publicity chairman; Enma Garvin, as social chairman; and Kay Kuykendall, as scrapbook chairman.
