"Hi! He's Peter Yarrow."
 "She is Mary Travers."
 "He is Paul Stookey."

This is the unusual way in which Paul introduced Peter, Peter introduced Mary, and Mary introduced Paul during a recent interview with the group.

Peter Yarrow was born and raised in New York City. He attended the High School of Music and Art where he became very interested in folk music. After graduation he entered Cornell University as a prospective physics major. Peter's first job was at an Israeli coffee house in New York City where he received 15 dollars and all that he could eat.

While Paul Stookey was a junior in high school he formed a rock-n-roll group called "The Birds of Paradise." Paul's first indication that he might be a performer was while he was a freshman at Michigan State University. He was called back to his high school in Birmingham, Mich. to do a concert. After college he performed alone and with Joan Baez.

Mary describes herself as coming from a long line of non-conformists. Mary and her mother lived in a broken down house in Greenwich Village. Pete Seegar used their basement for rehearsals. Mary's mother remarried a French doctor who was head of the World Health Organization, and soon was learning folk songs from many visiting diplomats.

The following are the questions and answers to some of the questions asked.

Question: When did you first become interested in folk music and when did you start performing as a group?

Answer from Paul: "As far as

Duncan Accepts Carolina Scholarship; Other Students Compete As Finalists

Lynn Duncan scored again for Grimsley High School when he received a four year football scholarship, all expenses paid, to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The athlete selected Carolina's offer over several others.

In other news of scholarships, Ann Tietz has been named an alternate for an Aubrey Lee Brooks Scholarship, which is good for one of the branches of the University of North Carolina. Two other G.H.S. students, Bill McCormick and Steve Hurst competed in the Guilford County part of the contest. Three finalists and two alternates were selected from the applicants of eleven North Carolina counties, following interviews.

After further interviews one person will be selected as a scholarship recipient for each of the counties. The scholarship pays about $600.

While most of the recipients of scholarships will not be announced until mid-April or early May, Bill Mitchell is among the finalists for the John Motley Morehead Scholarships.

How To Apply

In general, in applying for a scholarship, a student should apply to the college itself to which the scholarship is desired. The board examining requests will look into an applicant's school record, financial need, his potential for success, and his purpose. More and more emphasis is placed on financial need; a student with excellent grades may receive only a token scholarship if the examining board does not judge him as needy.

The College Entrance Examination Board has a College Scholarship Service which acts as a "clearing house of information" for about five hundred colleges on scholarships and other forms of student aid. This service furnishes a form known as the Parents' Confidential Statement, which asks for such information as number of dependents, annual income, and the family's financial assets. Copies of a completed statement are given only to those colleges which the parents or student applying for aid request in writing.

The various donors sponsor thousands of scholarships. Perhaps the two biggest sponsors in the United States are the National Merit Scholarship Corporation and the General Motors Corporation.

NMSC Provides Grants

The Ford Foundation and various industries provide money for the National Merit Scholarship Corporation grants. Merit winners may receive an honorary award of $100, or some other amount, up to $2,100 a year if there is a need. NMSC has been in operation since 1956.

The General Motors Corporation sponsors about four hundred four-year scholarships. National awards of the corporation range from $200 to $2000. High school seniors are selected on the basis of College Entrance Examination Board Scholastic Aptitude Tests (SAT), academic records, extracurricular achievements, leadership potential, and recommendations.

Local scholarships are sponsored by the Junior Jaycees, Sears and Roebuck, and the National Honor Society, as well as other groups.

Further information on scholarships is available in Grimsley's guidance office.

Student Council Makes Spring Plans

Grimsley's Student Council, the student government of the school has made tentative plans for a spring project.

The group plans to sell plastic pens having the school colors and either the name of the school or a school related motto to be determined when a definite brand of pen is selected. Selling at least 1,000 pens is the goal that has been set. After sales are completed, the school store will carry refills for the pens so that they will have continued use.

Also discussed was the possibility of a co-sponsored April dance in place of the free previously sponsored by Coach Jamieson for the entire student body. The Student Council would co-sponsor the dance along with the Monogram Club, and tickets would be sold. It was hoped that selling only a limited number of tickets would create a greater interest in the students to attend the dance.

Complaints Against Squad

Complaints against the traffic squad encouraged the Student Council to investigate the situation during the last meeting.

Along with problems of parking and slow traffic between buildings on rainy days, members of the squad have been accused of gathering in the grove and smoking when they should be directing student traffic. Jerry Jernigan, member of the squad, agreed that there was a problem and steps would be taken to eradicate it. A meeting of the group to discuss the problem should have been held by the time this is in print.

As to the problem of congested traffic on rainy days, Jernigan had no ready answer. It was his opinion that, because of the overcrowded conditions of the school, there was really little that the squad could do.

The squad is now employing a "stop and go" system, but Jernigan indicated that the success of such a principle depended mainly upon the co-operation of the student body. According to Jernigan, each student tries too hard to get himself to class on time and has little consideration for others, thereby creating a mass standstill.

Civilians To Drain 'Okee' And Construct Walks

In the spring the Grimsley Junior Civitan Club will drain the "Okefenokee" swamp. Eddie Strange, Junior Civitan President, announced last week in assembly the club's plans for renovating this area. With the exception of a bulldozer hired to level the ground there, all the work will be done by membership participation.

On various Saturdays and miscellaneous school afternoons, the Jr. Civilians will dig holes and possibly install a new drain. The club adopted the idea as their major service project for this year. In addition to the usual seeding, planting, and landscaping, the project will include the construction of three walkways through this area.

Walks To Be Constructed

Walks from the Home Economics and Main buildings will meet another one from the covered walkways between these two buildings. When this article was written, the definite type of walks to be built had not then been decided; however, they will be constructed probably of either gravel or concrete. Since GHS students have had to contend with wading through this swamp for years, the Junior Civitan Club felt that this would be a most beneficial project.

Although the other service clubs, like Junior Civitans, will also aide in the "School Beautiful" campaign; there will still be school wide workdays. As Johnny Redmond pointed out in last week's assembly, every student should try to come on these scheduled workdays so that GHS will again win the silver trophy.

Queen Announced

Ann Phillips has been named May Queen for 1964. Sophomore Maid of Honor is Mary Jo Whiteside, Junior Maid of Honor is Bry Richardson; and Senior Maid of Honor is Ann Bradshaw.

See story on page 3, col. 3, for further details.

NOTICE

Due to the assembly held third period last Friday, HIGH LIFE was held to be distributed today. Since the news items had been written assuming the paper was to come out Friday, some of the dates in the articles may be wrong. Please excuse any inaccuracies due to changes made between the time the copy was set up at the printers and the time it was distributed here at school.
