SPECIAL ISSUE SPRING/SUMMER SPORTS AND HEALTH

Sports, like so many other areas of life, has tended to overlook or delay recognition of some truly great black professionals. Malcolm Pharr remembers two--Josh Gibson and Leroy "Satchel" Paige--in his story on page 3.

Many blacks who are stock car racing fans may not be aware of the trials and tribulations that Wendell Scott faced on the road to winning the 1970 Speedway Championship as Patricia Smith-Deering reports in the Op-Ed Section, page 12.

Hazel J. Sumler tells of her son's religious foundation as she comes to his defense in her Letter to the Editor about Phoenix Publisher, Rodney Sumler in the Op-Ed Section, page 13.

The Spring and Summer seasons signal the end of basketball and the start of favorite sports like softball and baseball as Malcolm Pharr comments in his own inimitable style on page 20.
