

ERVIN SCHOLARSHIPS TARGET AFRICAN AMERICAN STUDENTS

Washington University in St. Louis has 10 John B. Ervin Scholarships specifically for African-American Students

The scholarships – each with full tuition and a $2,500 annual stipend – support four years of undergraduate study as long as the student maintains a satisfactory academic record.

Named after the university's first African-American dean, John B. Ervin Scholarships are awarded based on academic merit, leadership and commitment to community service.

Ervin scholars participate in a program designed especially for them, including orientation to Washington University, meetings with university and community leaders, academic support and advising, assistance in finding research and internship positions, and events with other Ervin Scholars and program administrators. They are expected to participate in a variety of campus activities and community service projects.

Minority Internships

If you believe that all you need is your foot in the door, here's your door. Y.E.S. to Jobs (Youth Entertainment Summer) is offering 10 weeks of summer employment to qualified minority high school students.

Created in 1987 to introduce minority high school students to behind-the-scenes career opportunities in the entertainment industry, the program will be operating in Atlanta and 12 other US cities this year.

Its motto – "People Can't Be What They Don't Know Exists" – provides the foundation for the program's out-reach efforts.

It places students in entry-level positions to record, music distribution and publishing companies, TV and radio stations, entertainment retail stores, film companies, law firms, trade publications and other related business. Students get to develop job skills through hands-on experience behind the scenes.

Internships are available for students ages 16-18 with a 2.5 GPA and 90 percent attendance in school. Applications can be obtained at www.yestojobs.org. The deadline to submit applications is March 31.
