

JESTER

Hannah Boylan (after eating chestnuts): "I just swallowed a great big worm."

M. E. Britt: "Hadn't you better take something for it?"

Boylan: "No, I'll let the thing starve."

And you've heard about the Scot who wanted to give his girl a rush—so he took her home on the subway.

Father (entering unexpectedly): "Well, I never—"

Daughter: "Oh, Daddy, you must have."

Then there's the sad, the horribly sad case of the absent-minded professor who mailed out all his French post cards to his wife's relations.

Up in the airplane they had thought
For wedding was the proper spot,
A wheel within the darn thing broke
Just as the words the parson spoke;
Did this disturb them? Not at all,
They got married in the fall!

Prof. (at last class): "My dear children, when is your education really complete?"

Chorus—"After a Davidson party."

A local motor cop has printed on his personal calling card: "Give me a trial and I'll see that you get one."

Feefie: "Do you think I can make your fraternity?"

Foe fum: "Sure, we gotta have some one to snub."

M. Nickle: "Do spectacles help your eyes any?"

S. E. Motte: "Do they! They've kept girls from hitting me!"

As the pardoned murderer said: "No noose is good news."

She called her husband Daisy because some daisies at home and some daisies isn't."

Dr. Greene (to class): Green paint may be removed from the seat of a pair of trousers with a bottle of ordinary turpentine, a stiff brush and a pair of scissors!

We would like to remind all our professors of our lecture courses, that the longer the spoke the greater the tire. (My dear, do you agree?)

Gamma Sigma and Pi Delta Initiate New Members

Anyone who chanced to be in Burwell Hall on the afternoon of October 15th would instantly have sensed that something unusual was about to take place. Small groups of girls stood huddled together before the closed doors of Gamma Sigma and Pi Delta Society Halls. These girls tried valiantly to keep up their usual chatter and barter, but a frightened look would steal over their faces when one would ask, "what will they do to us?"

Suddenly a door opened and a black-robed figure stood before it. Four girls were ushered into the darkened hall. The girls outside the hall murmured expectantly: "Did you see them pull her in," said one, and the others shuddered. After a few minutes four more girls were summoned, and this process was repeated until all had been admitted and subjected to the mystic rites of the initiation.

After everyone had been initiated, the doors were thrown open and the reception began. The girls were once more talking in groups, but this time it was easy, relieved chatter. The fright occasioned by the initiation had vanished and all was laughter and jollity. The new girls were heartily welcomed by the old members and everyone concentrated upon the business of having a thoroughly good time. Delightful refreshments were served and everyone left the hall feeling that she had spent a most enjoyable afternoon.

Offices Given To Student Publications

Two of the student publications, the "Edelweiss," and the "Queens Blues," have been given the two end rooms in Morrison Hall by Dean McLean, to be used for offices. This has been a need of these publications for a long time. A place has always been needed in which to put the paper together and to keep Queens Blues material at hand. The annual has also found it necessary to have a room so that they can be systematic and businesslike. They appreciate the kindness of the Dean in allowing them to have these rooms and only hope that their publications will be improved somewhat through this advantage.

PERSONALS

Did you hear what Mary Guy said the other day? Well, it happened that in Biology class, Miss Cathey was talking about a certain specimen and in speaking of it called it a one-cell animal. Mary insisted that Miss Cathey was wrong, that it was a unicellular animal. These Frosh!

Man! Dear ol' Jane spent the night with us over in Morrison Wednesday night and did it seem good to have her back there. The Hall just doesn't seem natural without her this year—it's too quiet! Come back, Jane!

Little ol' Laura Chapman came up to spend the day last week and crazy Jack Hoover came the week before. Laura is just having a hi ol' time while Jack is—whew—I almost got it wrong! Oh, yes, and Jack is taking a business course.

Fanny and Jane Bradley went home for the week-end and came back all pepped up to tackle another week of Psych.

Malvine and Mary Young gave the Kappa Kappa Chi feed. Such food—me oh, my. You can't imagine. Is the lost ever to be found? Ask Martha!

Home was the foremost of Helen Dean's thoughts and there she proceeded to go last week-end. Don't ask why she came back all flurried.

Mary and Alva gave the feed for the Phi Mu's Sunday. How did they ever get collected long enough to think about getting food together?

Helen Wall went down to dear ol' Chester and did she see someone who eats, drinks and sleeps music as she does—well, she told me 'bout it!

Girls Get Samples Lux Toilet Soap

Friday night at dinner, Dean McClean announced that after dinner she would distribute in her office sample boxes of Lux and bars of the toilet soap. Consequently, as soon as the girls left the dining hall, there was a mad rush for the Dean's office.

There, the crowd pushed and squirmed and hurried, until each girl had received her quota and gone away content.

To anyone who happened to be journeying through the dormitories the next day, there appeared in each suite a heavily laden line of freshly washed laundrie, sparkling white from its recent bath. And strangely enough, each girl's face was wonderfully smooth looking and radiant; in fact she looked at least ten years younger. Is it no wonder that this is Hollywood's favorite complexion care?

The Phi Mu actives gave a nice feed for the pledges at the House and did sounds issue forth from there?—well, I'm wondering.
