Chi Omega Pledges Give Reception

Pledges and Members of the Faculty
Enjoy Affair

Charming, indeed, was the Chi Omega pledge tea given Tuesday, October the twenty-seventh, in honor of the faculty, and pledges of the other sororities. The guests were received from four-thirty to five-thirty.

At the door callers were welcomed by the Misses Ruth Currie, president of the pledges, Margaret Malloy, vice-president, Mary Ivey Smith, president of the chapter, and Marie Turnipseed, sponsor. A delectable fruit salad with crackers and Russian tea was served by the Chi Omega pledges, Halloween baskets filled with corn candy, served as favors.

A glowing autumnal effect was created by quantities of varicolored leaves arranged about the room in places of advantage. Grotesque Halloween faces, peeping out between the branches lighted up the room with a warm glow.

New Member Initiated Into Sorority

The Kappa Deltas announce the initiation of Catherine Jones into Alpha Omicron Chapter. The initiate received her first and second degree pledges last year and was formally received into the chapter Wednesday night, October 28.

Bids Issued By Alpha Kappa Gamma

Alpha Kappa Gamma, the National Honorary Fraternity for Leadership at Queens, has been quite busy lately. President Margaret Johanson has been calling meeting after meeting, and as a result, bids were issued Saturday to three girls. Those selected worthy of membership were Jessie Smith, Marguerite Brown, and Elizabeth Beckman.

At the Halloween Carnival last week, Alpha Kappa Gamma was outstanding. As the treasury was in reduced circumstances at the time, the members decided to make money at the Carnival to contribute as their club's portion toward the Day Student's Hall. They had a booth and sold "hot dogs" with all the accompanying relish and seasoning. This was a huge success and the group made about five dollars from their sales at the booth.

PERSONALS

This was a funny week-end—the dying gasp of October and the chilling blast of November combined in just a short two days. So many of the girls went off to take their last October privilege or their first November week-end.

Huagha Lee and Beaty went down to Sumter so Beaty could have her eyes examined. Hope they'll soon be better, so you'll be able to get rid of those headaches, Beaty.

Louisa Drenan was at last happy when she drove up in front of her own home — she'd been having waves set and been making more plans!

Evelyn McMillian and Katherine Brown were hostesses to the Kappa Deltas last Sunday at a feed.

Catherine Dickerson didn't have to spend the week-end on the campus as she was so worried over doing. Wonder if she had a better time?

Gordon Query, Evelyn Archer, and Carmelia Nixon all paid the campus a short visit Saturday. They are teaching in various "bergs" in North Carolina.

Laura J. Quattlebaum spent the time in Rock Hill telling the Winthrop girls how much better Queens was than Winthrop. Well, Winthrop is one marvelous college all right, but there's our ol' school spirit.

Lu and Liz gave the Kappa Kappa Chi feed Sunday — can't you just taste that good ol' fried chicken?

Little Reid went down to Batesburg and tried to increase her height by being in uplifting company.

Martha Tyson went home to Hartsville with Martha Grant—the ol' suite must have been sorta lonely.

Janie Tamberlien had the biggest time sitting 'round the fire relating dormitory experiences to one and all at home.

Kat settled down long enough to give the grandest feed, with Evelyn Koonce, down at the Alpha Delta Pi House, Sunday.

Helen Wall went over to Statesville — did she learn anything about music from any teachers at Mitchell, or should it be plural?

Lib Mason just goes home all the time—isn't she a lucky ol' person?

Lillian Zimmerman also went home and let's hope that she'll soon be back feeling much better.

Mamie Hunter and Grace Shealy took time off before this strenuous week of quarterly quizzes to go home.

Adeline Wooley and Lib Shelton made every Chi Omega very comfortable, or should we say uncomfortable, after that good feed, Sunday.

Minna Le Grand, Jo Cornwell, Julia Bynum and little Jimmy Wilson did a big thing when they went home—believe they're still talking 'bout certain things yet.

Janie Bob Gaston left Wednesday to go on one of the longest possible journeys, almost. She hasn't been flashing that beautiful diamond because Woolworth's had a sale. We think the big event will come off in December—here's our good wishes for lots of happiness, Janie. Bet you'll get it too.

Helen Vincent and Vivian Hilton went over to Barium Springs and did they have a big time!

Hannah Boylan also went to Statesville and also looked over Mitchell and inspected its faculty.

The Alpha Deltas could hardly stop long enough to eat the grand feed that Carmelia Nixon and Florence Laslie fixed Sunday, they just had to be thrilled over the radio—who wouldn't be?

Dorothy Patterson, Mary Elizabeth Dye, Frances Nickleson and Helen Orr also paid the home-towns a visit.

Guests Honored With Afternoon Tea

A social event of the week was the tea given Wednesday afternoon, from four to six, by the Kappa Kappa Chi Sorority, number seven, Sorority Row. The honorees were Mrs. Gentry from Little Neck, L. I., and Mrs. Orrman from Monroe, N. C., who were guests of the sorority for a brief while.

The invited guests were greeted at the door by Miriam Dameron, president, and Miss Edwards, sponsor. The two honorees were also in the receiving line.

The house was decorated with autumn leaves and beautiful chrysanthemums, and the log fire gave the house such a cozy look. An attractive plate was served with cookies and Russian tea. Green and white mints were passed, along with salted nuts.

Miss Dameron wore an afternoon dress of flowered chiffon.

Miss Edwards chose a tea gown of afternoon chiffon.

Mrs. Gentry wore green with all contrasting accessories.

Mrs. Orrman wore black velvet, and carried corresponding accessories.

Library Assistants Entertained at Tea

On Friday afternoon, October 30, between 4:30 and 5:30, Miss Rena Harrell, assisted by Miss Mabel Murphy, entertained with a most enjoyable tea in honor of the Library Assistants.

A vase of chrysanthemums in the middle of the table caused a great deal of comment from the guests. Home-made mints, tea cakes and hot tea were served.

Those enjoying this delightful occasion were: Claudia McChesney, Minnie Le Grande, Lois Prim, Frances Nicholson, Rosalie Wyman, Olivia Curlee, Janie Boyd Tomberlin, Jimmy Wilson, Helen Faye Orr, Julia Bynum, Rebecca Hassell.

Rosalie Wyman had just the best time imaginable when she went down to Kershaw with Margaret Floyd.

Virginia and Katherine Shellam went home again. Something terrible how they're always so lucky.

Louise Graham stayed with Mrs. Johnson at Y. W. C. A. in town.
