

Student Government Elections Continue

Boarding Student Officers Chosen

Once more was heard the rustle of paper and the murmur of voices as ballots were cast this week for election of executive council of the student body for next year. Following nominations on Monday, the final vote was taken in chapel Tuesday at which time the following girls were elected to office: Julia Miller, uncontested nominee for President of Boarding Student Body; Annette McIver, President of Day Students; Jane Montgomery, President of Student Christian Association; and Flora MacDonald, President of the Athletics Association. These girls, with Mary Marshall Jones who last week was elected President of Student Government, form the executive body of Student Government for next year. Other candidates were: Nancy Jane Dandridge for Day Student President, Esther Love Hillhouse for S.C.A. President, and Mary Katherine Martin for President of Athletics Council.

Julia, a member of Gamma Gamma chapter of Alpha Gamma Delta, has been a member of Boarding Student Council since her Sophomore year, serving as class representative at that time, and now holding the position of secretary. She was recognized last fall for leadership when she was tapped into the local chapter of Alpha Kappa Gamma.

Annette has been active in many phases of college life, especially along scholastic and literary lines. She is on the staff of the BLUES, is a member of choral club, I. R. C. and has been recognized for scholarship by Sigma Mu.

Jane has been a member of the S.C.A. Cabinet ever since her Sophomore year. During her Junior year she has served as class representative to Boarding Student Council. She is a member of the Choral Club, I. R. C. Kappa Gamma.

Flora's activities include membership in Athletic council for two

Observance of Traditional Service Closes Annual Series

Wednesday, March 19, Dr. Ben Lacy, President of Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Virginia, Opened the annual spring services of Queens college.

He was first introduced to the student body at chapel. Dr. Hunter Blakley presented him as a man who deserves admiration because he has accomplished things. Dr. Lacy was a Rhodes scholar at Oxford University, and pastor of the first Presbyterian church in Atlanta before becoming President of the Seminary.

Dr. Lacy took the theme of his talk from Philipians 1:3-21, emphasizing this verse: "And this I pray that your love may bound yet more and more in knowledge and all judgement." "So many of the tragedies are due to loving well but not wisely," said Dr. Lacy. For this reason, he said, we should choose wisely a person who is worthy of our deepest love; and secondly we should, ourselves, love wisely. And so in the person whom we love and the manner in which we love, we should be sincere. If we love Christ with all our heart and soul and strength and mind, then by following Him, the "Crystal Christ," we too shall become clear, and radiantly sincere, and finally to someone—"The Woman Who Understands."

Wednesday night and Thursday

morning Dr. Lacy spoke on loyalty and discipleship. Thursday night he used the thought, "for me to live is Christ, to die is gain." Some other subjects which Dr. Lacy discussed are service and world peace. Sunday afternoon at 5:00 o'clock Dr. Lacy will conduct a communion service which will be the closing service in this series.

During his visit here, Dr. Lacy is staying at the Blakley's home.

Home Economics Students Will Enter State Contest

Girls To Take Part In Annual Cotton Style Show In Raleigh

Have you seen the February issue of National Geographic? Look at it and read the article entitled, "Cotton: Foremost Fiber of the World." Its very interesting and very close to home. There are some full-page colored photographs of the thirteenth annual style show at North Carolina State College. All of the garments pictured are made and modeled by North Carolina college girls out of the materials that the State boys designed and manufactured.

On April 24 State College will hold its fourteenth annual style show, and Queens Home Economics majors will enter, hoping to win some recognition. It is very thrilling to choose the materials from the samples State sends. There are varieties of weights, colors, and designs, most of them so pretty that it is hard to decide what to take. After the samples have been chosen, State sends each girl either her first, second, or third choice. Then she picks a pattern suitable for the material, or designs one herself, and makes the garment—it may be anything from beach togs to evening frocks. And after the garment is finished, it is entered in a local fashion show. The winners in the local shows go to Raleigh to compete in the State contest.

In the exhibit at State there will be a variety of finished products—suits, dresses, evening frocks, and one reversible. The materials sent this year are quite attractive, and if they are still good looking in the finished product, who knows—maybe Queens' girls will be in National Geographic next year.

Those entering the contest are: Margaret Alexander, Elizabeth Gilreath, Virginia Jennings, Catherine Haigler, Mary Love, Marie Leonard, Alice Clark, Margaret Ann Wiley, Mary Meador, Clelia Abernathy, Mary Gunn, Nannie Sue Ferguson, Jane Campbell, Tet Moseley, Sue Crenshaw, and Betty Love.

Queens Girls

Show Much Interest About Girl Scout Summer Camps

On Wednesday afternoon, March 12, Miss Martha Whitlock, a Girl Scout worker, supervised the filling in by Queens girls of application blanks for Girl Scout camp work.

It is reported that Miss Jean Orr's office in Burwell Hall was crowded with girls—eager to apply for jobs. The questionnaire, which each girl who wished to get a job had to fill out, called for such information as former experience, amount of training, ability to do certain things, particular interests as to age groups, type of job desired, and best-prepared activity.

These application blanks are to be used in selecting counselors for camps all over North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia. In general the camps run from the middle of June to the middle of August, and are open for children from seven to eighteen years of age.

Queens Exhibits In State Art Contest

Girls Compete In Different Fields

Mrs. Esther Wright Huffman, head of the Queens College art department has announced that on Saturday, March 22, she will take an exhibit from the department to the state contest to be held at the University of North Carolina. The committee for the State Art Contest will have charge of the exhibition and also of the judging. The contest is an all - state affair in which schools all over North Carolina, from the first grade on through Senior colleges will participate.

The following are some of the girls whose works are being entered: in Figure Drawings—Eloise Pickard and Dorothy Summerville; Interior Decorations — Mrs. Lawson, Lib Lael, Marie Crawford, Mary Agnes Cochran, and Martha Summerville; Water Colors—Jane Grey, Harriet Henderson, and Nancy Claire Allen; Costume Design—Eloise Pickard, Anne Brannon, Jean Ferguson, Mary Mason, Helen Duncan, Nancy Claire Allen, and Virginia Baxter; Design—Peggy Parsler, and Alice Barron; Advertising—Kathleen Lassiter, and Alice Barron; Charcoal—Jane Grey, Textiles Nina Dellinger; Lithograph Jane Grey.

The Queens College art department entered this contest last year and was awarded eight prizes. Mrs Huffman reports that the exhibition this year is better than ever before.

S. C. A. Study Group Elects New Leaders

Monday afternoon, March 17, at the S. C. A. Fellowship meeting officers were elected for the coming year. The following were chosen to take over after spring holidays: Nancy Houston, president; Louise Blue, vice-president; and Alice McKenzie, secretary-treasurer. The retiring officers are: president, Mary Elva Smith; vice-president, Ruth Edminston; secretary, Mary Jean McFadyen; and treasurer, Nancy Houston. The Fellowship, which meets every Monday afternoon at 3:30, is planning another skating party with the Davidson boys immediately after spring holidays. It is hoped that this will be even more successful than the one last fall is reported to have been.

B.S.S.A. Students Pass "120" Test

Several girls working for their B.S.S.A. degrees have mastered the speed of 120 words a minute in dictation in shorthand. This is the first time a Queens girl has achieved this distinction. The girls are: Mary Thompson, Emma Newell, Naomi Rouse, and Carolyn Miller, all four-year business students.
