

Senior Week Gets Into Full Swing

Eleven Girls Win Honors In Contest

Old South Is Motif For The Junior-Senior

Traditional senior week successfully opened Saturday evening, April 19, with the annual Junior-Senior banquet, which was held in Morrison dining hall, on a gayly decorated campus resembling an old Southern plantation. Mary Marshall Jones and Dot Funderburk co-chairmen, served as toastmistresses.

Special guests at this initial event were Miss Laura Tillett, junior class sponsor; Mrs. Howard MacGregor, senior class sponsor, and Mr. MacGregor; Dr. and Mrs. Hunter B. Blakely; Miss Clara B. Slaton, dean of students; Miss Jean Orr, assistant to the dean, of women; James Godard, dean of instruction, and Mrs. Godard; Louise Blue, president of the sophomore class; Julia Frances Scholl, president of the freshman class; and the Rev. James A. Jones and Mrs. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Jones; Mr. and Mrs. Hunter Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. McAlister Carson; and a group of underclassmen who helped with the entertainment.

Harriett Scoggin was announced as the newly elected president of the rising senior class.

Sunday morning, the entire senior class attended the church services at the Myers Park Presbyterian Church. Rev. James A. Jones delivered the sermon.

The sophomore class entertained its sister class on Monday morning with a breakfast, held at 7:30 o'clock at the S & W Cafeteria. Mary Martha Nixon, president-elect of the rising junior class, was chairman in charge of the event.

Mrs. Hunter B. Blakely entertained the graduating class on Tuesday with a luncheon, at her home on Ratcliffe Avenue.

Senior day fell on Wednesday, at which time all seniors were excused from their classes. They spent the day at Rozzell's Ferry and were guests of Mrs. Howard MacGregor, at a weiner roast, on their return.

The Charlotte Kiwanis club honored the seniors with their annual luncheon Thursday, April 24, at 1 o'clock. C. S. Reid was in charge of the affair.

Climaxing the entire week, was the senior banquet, which was held Friday evening, at 6 o'clock, in Morrison dining hall. A program was given by the class day officers of the graduating class who are: Tera Bailey, lawyer; Julia Edwards, poet, Elizabeth Brammer, historian, and Mary Payne, prophet.

Essay Contest Is Now Open

Sigma Mu, national scholastic fraternity, has announced its annual essay contest, Dr. Dorisse Howe, secretary of the chapter at Queens, made known last week. Two prizes, each of $5.00, are offered, one for the best research paper, the other for creative work.

No work for which credit has been given in class is eligible for entry.

WHAT'S FUNNY, JEAN

The happy young lady above is Jean Ferguson, president of the senior class. She is escorted by Ralph Monger. They are seen entering the Junior-Senior Banquet.

Press Association Meets In Atlanta Over Week-End

Brammer, Jones, Mauldin, Golden
Payne And Munroe Go For Queens

The Southern Federation of College Students and Publication Representatives is being held Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 26 at the Biltmore Hotel in Atlanta, Ga., with Agnes Scott College and Georgia Tech as hosts.

Attending the convention as delegates from Queens are Elizabeth Brammer of Christiansburg, Va., retiring president of the student body; Mary Marshall Jones of Charlotte, newly elected president of the student body; Ann Golden of Carthage, retiring editor of the Queens Blues and new editor of the Coronet; Ann Mauldin of Charlotte, new business manager of the Coronet and retiring business manager of the Blues; Alice Payne of Charlotte, newly elected editor of the Blues; and Pete Munroe of Charlotte, newly elected business manager of the Blues.

Registration for all delegates took place Thursday from 9 until 12 o'clock. At 12:30 the opening luncheon was held, and the welcoming address was made by Robert Chinn, president of the federation. Then Mr. Chinn introduced the speakers, Mayor Roy LeCrew, mayor of Atlanta and Dr. Martin Luther School of Technology. Also at this time detailed plans of the convention were explained by the convention chairman.

At 2:30 o'clock business sessions of the newspaper, annual and student government sections were held and this was followed by a sight-seeing trip about the city which included the cyclorama, Agnes Scott, Emory University and the residential section of Atlanta.

Dinner was held at 7 o'clock and Mike Conner, former governor of Mississippi and commissioner of Athletics for the Southeastern Conference was the speaker.

Today business sessions are being held from 9 until 12:30 o'clock at which time O. B. Keeler of the Atlanta Constitution will speak.

The Convention Dinner, a high spot of the meeting will be held tonight in the formal dining room and the annual dance will follow in the Pompeian Room. At the banquet Dr. George Lang, dean of Alabama University will speak.

Events on Saturday will consist of business sessions and the election of new heads for the respective divisions. The closing luncheon will be held at 12:30 o'clock and at this time the announcement of the new officers will be made. Also the announcement of the next year's location for the convention will be given.

Sophs Present Annual Affair For Seniors

The sophomore class this year upheld the tradition at Queens College of giving a breakfast in honor of the senior class. The seniors were entertained at the S. & W. cafeteria at 8:00 o'clock Monday morning, April 21. During the breakfast class songs were sung. A delightful breakfast course was served. Approximately one hundred and fifty girls attended the affair planned in honor of the seniors. This was one of the many events given for the seniors during senior week.

Louise Blue is the president of the sophomore class. Mary Martha Nixon, president-elect of the rising junior class, made the arrangements for the breakfast. On the committee for the breakfast were Elsie Moseley, chairman; Lucy Hassel, Louise Blue, Pete Munroe, Louise Brumley, Catherine Greene, Ruth Baker, Mary Harriet Hurst, Louise Griffin, Elizabeth Nash, Maurine Latta, Emily McKay, Mary Lorene Jones, and Lucille Blackburn. In charge of transportation were Ann Wiley, chairman; Betty McClintock, Peggy Thompson, Eva Johnson, Marion Miller, Dorothy Summerville, Sara Holleman, Mary Stevenson, and Jean Petteway.

Art Works To Be Exhibited Until April 26

In the fourth annual art contest which is sponsored by the University of North Carolina, eleven Queens girls won honors for various works. These will be exhibited along with other state selections at the Person Hall gallery, Greensboro, and also at Chapel Hill until April 26.

Girls from Queens, the honors won, and the division they entered are: Eloise Pickard, first prize, costume design; Helen Duncan, honorable mention, costume design; Elizabeth Lael, first prize interior design; Mary Agnes Cochran, second prize, interior design; Mrs. Dorothy Lawson, honorable mention, interior design; Alice Barron, honorable mention, pencil drawings.

Also placing in this contest were: Jane Grey, first prize, crayon drawing; Sarah Pardee, second prize, crayon drawing; Eloise Pickard, honorable mention, chalk and pastel; Harriet Henderson, first prize, water color painting; Jane Grey, second prize, water color painting; Karleen Lassiter and Ann Brannen, first prize, advertising design; and Karleen Lassiter, honorable mention, textile design.

Famous Doctor Will Speak On Chapel Program Tuesday

Dr. Grier To Tell Of Foreign Missions

Dr. Nettie Donaldson Grier, medical missionary to China will speak to the student body of Queens in chapel on Tuesday, April 29. She will give a talk on foreign missions and her experiences in this field.

Dr. Grier was born in New York in 1869, and graduated from Woman's Medical School of New York City. She went to China as a medical missionary, arriving there in 1893. Three years later, she married Rev. Mark B. Grier, and the next year moved to Suchowfu. During the first five years they lived in small Chinese mud huts for a home; the hospital and dispensary being similarly housed in a crowded courtyard. The monotony of the long winters was rarely broken by a visitor from the outside world. Sometimes, two years would pass without a single visitor.

Dr. Grier is not a specialist, of course, but the reach of her operations is very wide. Eye diseases are probably the commonest of all. Take one year of her work, for instance. The hospital, which practically means Dr. Grier, gave 13,457 treatments; performed 362 operations, major and minor, all under anaesthesia, general or local; there were 541 inpatients, and 131 outcalls. Multiply this by 25, and you will have some idea of the great humanitarian work that the Mary Erwin Rogers Memorial hospital is accomplishing. Many of the little children, especially those with the big spleen, a disease said to be peculiar to the East, have been treated there.

DR. NETTIE GRIER

A new treatment, recently discovered, was given by Dr. Grier, which completely heals them.

After her husband's death Dr. Grier worked with undiminished vigor. A doctor in China must be a surgeon, administrator, trained nurse, employer and bookkeeper, and a trainer of nurses. Dr. Grier was well qualified for all these. But Dr. Grier had rather be known for her evangelistic work than for anything else. She considers this fundamental.

"One of my greatest joys on the mission in China was to gather the patients who are able to come into the prayer room of the hospital every morning at 8 o'clock, have prayer with them, and hear them repeat what they learned the day before, in addition to teaching them so that they may learn to love and know their Saviour before they leave the hospital.