About fifteen girls, including Ruth King, outgoing president; Elnora Anderson, incoming president, and Miss Mitchell enjoyed the outing. Annelie McCall, chief chef, assisted by Anne McGirt and Carol Wohlford, served a delicious picnic supper

EASTER HEADLINES

"America's Best-Dressed Woman chooses Grey Flannel for her Spring Ensemble"—"Marine Corporal John Jones gives life at Iwo Jima"—

It's Easter morning, 1945, and Mr. America picks up his morning paper, scans the war news, and complains because his coffee is too hot—while his wife busily irons the veil to her lovely spring hat.—Out on a tiny Pacific Island, Corporal John Jones, U. S. M. C. lies face downward in a mud-soaked foxhole. He will never read the paper again, and the next G. I. khaki he is issued will be his last.

You remember John Jones. The boy in the little white house on the corner. The boy you had a horrid crush on when he played "center" on the high school football team. The boy that danced like a dream.—The boy that loved life, but also loved his America so much that he passed up a chance to go to college in order to join the Marines in '41.

Last Easter John sent orchids to his girl, and practically went "over the hill" to be home during that beautiful weekend. He got out of bed before dawn for the Sunrise Services. He heard the chimes burst forth in glorious Easter music. He attended church with a very proud family, and later, with his girl, spent an afternoon that he would always remember. But this year he has forgotten—the past is a dim shadow, and he will never know if it rains, or if the sun will keep her Easter vigil. Yes, he is just another boy without a chance to remember—without a chance because he is lying, face downward, on an island "somewhere in the Pacific." He did not ask what he got, but he took it—it was all Corporal Jones could do—for he was a dreamer, an idealist, and he "believed."

On this Easter day, in 1945, a prayer will be heard all over the United States—a prayer for those who have given their lives; given like another who died on the cross centuries ago—someone that also believed in an ideal. Someone that would have to do the same thing today because the world is so confused about what is right and what is wrong.

Will this Marine know someday that he was right, and that America will remember what he died for? Or will his memory be blotted out by hate, and envy, and petty jealousy? The answer lies in the heart of every true American, and only they can decide how much John Jones' ideal really means.

Forget about gasoline, and shoe-ration coupons, and Easter flannels. Forget it if you are big enough. And remember that maybe if John Jones had not been on that little Pacific island, you too might never again sit snugly in your church on Easter morning.

Let the thought of Christ's crucifixion, and every John Jones be with you on Easter—and perhaps those boys we love will come home, and thank God that we had as much faith in them as they must have in us.

Davidson French Students Give French Plays

The French Classes from Davidson presented two plays, "Cupidon-Dentiste" and "L'Anglais Tel Qu'on le Parle." Friday night in the Queens College Auditorium. All students were invited.

During the evening special music was rendered by Mary McGill who sang "L'Invitation au Voyage" by Debussy and "Mariage des Roses" by Franck. A trio consisting of Betty Barber, Doris Turner, and Mary McGill sang "Barcarolle" and "Clair de la Lune." There was group singing of French folk and popular songs.

After the program a reception was given by the French classes for the Davidson boys in the Day Student Building.

Music Students Give Recitals

The music building is really being used these spring days, as all of you have probably heard. "Malaguena" seems to be the most practiced piece of all, but there are others being practiced too, believe it or not. Proof of this was shown in the student recital presented on Wednesday, March 21st at 5:00 P. M. The program was as follows:

- Adagio—from Fantasie — Mozart
Elizabeth King
- Arioso ————— Bach
Ann Jurgens
- Adagio Molto—Op. 10 No. 1 ————
Beethoven
Kitty Cooper
- I Wonder As I Wander—Folk Song
Beautiful Dreamer—Stephen Foster
Mary Grace Godard
- Araganaise ————— Massenet
Janie Mitchener
- Nina ————— Pergolesi
Mary Goeller
- Sonata—First Movement ———— Mozart
Eleanor Poe
- Dawn ————— Curran
Margie Bates
- Sonata—Second Movement—Mozart
Margaret Ann Johnson

These by-monthly recitals are open to everyone, so if you like good music you are welcome to come at any time.

Inman Gave Nice Report On Conference

Dr. Samuel Guy Inman of New York made an address an Inter-American affairs in the college auditorium, Wednesday night, March 14. He was brought to us by the Charlotte Council on International Relations. He had just returned from Inter-American Conference at Mexico City. He reported that this was the "most successful conference since the beginning of the Pan-American movement."

Much of his address was given over to the description of the scenery in Mexico. Those who heard him and have seen the places he mentioned said that he gave such a vivid description that it gave them a feeling of excitement and keen interest.

Dr. Inman noted the usual Latin-American approach to important conferences. He noticed that as a rule they seem solemn at first, but later very cheerful. He stated that the United States delegation was a contrast from the former delegations. Our delegates were less formal.

The Latin-Americans were guessing about the seriousness of our Government, but they were well-impressed before the conference ended. Dr. Inman was much encouraged to see "The United States for the first time in history thoroughly committing to take its place in a world peace."

During the conference the delegates agreed upon the Act of Chapultepec. Dr. Inman said that the act "entirely supplants the Monroe Doctrine." The Americas are in a defensive unity. The two main points of this act are that first, each American Republic against attack from a non-American power and second, if one American country is attacked by another American country the others will come to the support of the victim of aggression.

On the last day of the conference the Argentine question was brought up for discussion. It was emphasized that Argentine is and always has been a member of the American family of nations. The conference expressed the hope that she will wish to associate with us in all future conferences and will take steps to show that she is not in sympathy with Germany or Japan.

Dr. Inman's address certainly gives us something to think about seriously. We, the future generation, will be dealing with our Latin-American neighbors and so therefore it is very important that we pay special attention to present-day discussion concerning our relations with them. We were very fortunate to have Dr. Inman come here to speak.

Miss Kimbrough, a noted humorist as well as author, attended Bryan Mawr College and The Sorbonne in Paris. ### Queens-Davidson Day Was A Big Success

On Saturday, March 24, Queens played hostess to forty Davidson students at the annual Queens-Davidson Day. Andy Owens, president of the Davidson student body, sent a list of boys who wanted to come, and blind dates were secured for about thirty of these.

The day began about five-thirty when the boys arrived for dinner. Amid much phoning, hair-pulling, and general confusion, the boys were introduced to their blind dates. They were then ushered into the dining room. Kitty Cooper, who was in charge of the dinner music, presented a very enjoyable program which included several vocal selections by the Dining Room Quartet and the Trio, composed of Doris Skirrow, Doris Turner, and Betty Barber. In addition, Kitty Cooper and Travis Wiley entertained the crowd with their unique piano renditions.

After dinner, everyone was free until eight o'clock, at which time dancing began in the gym. The dance was unique in that it was the first girl-break affair Queens has had. The girls were somewhat hesitant about breaking at first, but by nine-fifteen, every boy on the floor was the "Beau of the Ball."

During the intermission, the boys presented a radio skit—Station WOLF—with its world news commentator George Gunn, announcer Jimmy Alexander, commercial trio Soapy Smith, Marshall Carper, and Harry McLean, and of course, all the commercial plugs which come in the course of a quarter hour program.

Jeanne Throckmorton, in charge of decorations, worked long and hard to achieve the spring motif in the gym. Two large cardboard rabbits supervised the dance from the two baskets and huge paper tulips and chickens decorated the walls. A very nice piece of work!

Music was provided by T. Dorsey, Artie Shaw, Benny Goodman, and several other orchestras which happened to drop by for the occasion.

The Social Committee would like to express its gratitude to all the Queens girls for helping to make the dance a success. It is only with the help of the student body working together that any event can be made successful.
