REPORTS BY THE TEACHERS.

The orphans are divided into Four Graded Forms, each in charge of a teacher, whose report is printed every fourth week The highest number is 10; the lowest is 1. When the average is below 5, the orphan is liable to be discharged as not "promising," and therefore excluded by the regulations. This paper contains the report made by the teacher

BY RETURN MAIL.

A correspondent says, "Let us hear from you by return mail."
His letter is dated Sept. 24th. We saw it Oct. 11th. Well, we can not do our outside work and answer letters by return mail. All we can promise is to answer as soon as we can-if we know what to say. Sometimes we take time to consider what answer should be sent.

The collection sent by Baptist church, at Chapel Hill, was $8.58 instead of $6.85, as published in Orphans' Friend of Oct. 3.

Four orphans were honorably discharged last Monday, and one was adopted.

Congress is in session, with Hon. S. J. Randall Speaker of the House.

THE BELLS OF LIMERICK.

The old bells that hung in the tower of the Limerick Cathedral were made by a young Italian after many years of patient toil. He was proud of his work, and when they were purchased by the prior of a neighboring con-vent, near the Lake of Como, the artist invested the profits of the sale in a pretty villa on the mar-g'n of the lake, where he could hear their Angelus music wafted from the convent cliff across the waters at morning, noon, and night. Here he intended to pass his life; but this happiness was denied him. In one of these feudal broils which, whether civil or foreign, are the undying worm in a fallen land, he suffered the loss of his all; and when the storm passed he found himself without home, family, friends, and fort-une. The convent had been razed to the ground, and the chefs-d' œuvre of his handiwork, the tuneful chime whose music had charmed his listening ear for so many happy days of his past life, had been carried away to a foreign land. He became a wanderer. His hair grew white and his heart withered before he again found a resting-place. In all these years of bitter desolation the memory of the music of his bells never left him; he heard it in the forest and in the crowded city, on the sea, and by the banks of the quiet stream in the basin of the hills; he heard it by day, and when night came, and troubled sleep, it whispered to him soothingly of peace and happiness. One day he met a mariner from over the sea, who told him a story of a won-drous chime of bells he had heard in Ireland. An intuition told the artist that they were his bells. He journeyed and voyaged thither, sick and weary, and sailed up the Shannon. The ship came to anchor in the port near Limerick, and he took passage in a small boat for the purpose of reaching the city. Before him the tall stee-ple of St. Mary's lifted its turreted head above the mist and smoke of the old town. He leaned back wearily, yet with a happy light beaming from his eves. The angels were whispering to him that his bells were there. He prayed: "Oh, let them sound me a loving welcome. Just one note of greeting, O, bells! and my pilgrimage is done?" It was a beautiful evening. The air was like that of his own Italy in the sweetest time of the year, the death of the Spring. The bosom of the river was like a broad mirror, reflecting the patins of bright gold that fleeked the blue sky, the towers, and the streets of the old town in its clear depths. The lights of the city danced upon the wavelets that rippled from the boat as she glided along. Suddenly the stillness was broken. From St. Mary's there came a shower of silver sound, filling the air with music. The boatmen rested on their oars to listen. The old Italian crossed his arms and fixed his streaming eyes upon the tower. The sound of his bells bore to his heart all the sweet memories of his buried past; home friends, kindred, all. At last he was happy-too happy to speak, too happy to breathe. when the rowers sought to arouse him, his face was upturned to the tower, but his eyes were closed. The poor stranger had breathed his last. His own chefs-d' œuvre had rung his "passing bell.-Harper's Magazine.
