Sergeant Bertram B. Wells!

Now here's a swell guy--Bertram B. Wells. He has made his sacrifices so nobly and performed his duties so well that we are devoting our editorial space to him.

While employed at the Caromount Division, Wells was a weaver on the first shift. He was a Caromount employee from July, 1939 through April, 1941--and then the Army. You probably remember him as "Shorty" or "Bert" Wells. He was short in stature but he has well demonstrated the length and breadth of his courage and character.

In our May issue we shouted three cheers for the Tunisian Victory. Now we proudly pay tribute to one of our own employees who contributed toward this victory. Sergeant Bertram Wells was in the heat of the battle. Word has been received that he was seriously injured. He is now convalescing in a hospital. In spite of his injury, his letters indicate that he is in fine spirits and herefore well on the road to recovery.

Sergeant Wells exemplifies the courage and determination of American soldiers everywhere who are making their sacrifices to preserve the American way of life. We, the employees of Sidney Blumenthal & Co., Inc. are proud of Bert's fine record and we are deeply grateful for his untiring efforts and personal sacrifices. God speed his early recovery and safe return.

In the meantime, write him a letter at this address;

Sgt. Bertram B. Wells

VISITORS FROM THE UNITED STATES ARMED FORCES:

Watson Dozier Pvt. Dozier visited us while home on his furlough in June. He is still at Scott Field, where he is training for radio mechanics. Watson is making fine progress in his work until he was hospitalized and then he lost time and was transferred to another class. He was truly glad to be home and we were glad to see him. The girls in the office were all in a "dither", you wolf.

Johnnie Daniel It is now Johnnie Daniel 2/AS. He has completed his boot training at Bainbridge and says he likes the Navy fine. He was to join an
