

Final Examining Dept

Mrs. Inez Dawes has resumed her work as examiner in the Final Examining Department. Mrs. Dawes and Roscoe Dawes, her husband, have established their residence at 2433 South Church Street, Rocky Mount, N. C. after being at Virginia Beach, Va. for the past eighteen months.

Julian Vester has terminated his work in the Final Examining Department to resume his work as a farmer.

Mrs. Lessie Pridgen returned to work recently after an extended period of illness. After hospitalization at Rocky Mount Sanitarium she was unable to resume her work. This department gladly reports that she has recovered satisfactorily.

Miss Julia Williams and Mrs. Mary Anne Williams, her mother, have occupied their recently purchased home at 416 South Washington Street in Rocky Mount. Miss Williams is a real "city slicker" now. She was very much concerned about the fact that the moon in the city seemed to continue to hang quite low; however, she was somewhat surprised when her mother advised her that the apparent moon was only one of those city street lights. Incidentally, Miss Williams is hereby notified that the bells ringing at night are really not Christmas bells at all. These bells ring from the A.C.L. trains.

A Hunting We Will Go

A hunting we will go! Charlie Dorsey went squirrel hunting the other day and through a mistake took a high powered shell that his son had brought him from overseas. As it happened, this was the first shot he put in his gun. When he regained consciousness, he was sitting in a briar patch.

A few days ago Sidney Collier and Norman Richardson went squirrel hunting. They met a farmer who advised them that his land was posted and no hunting was allowed. The boys went on their way, however, not without noticing that the farmer's property was teeming with game. After a few days deliberation, they decided to try it again in spite of the warning. This time they entered the woods without contacting the owner and managed to get one shot. When the smoke cleared away, they saw the farmer coming with a gun in his hand. Well, Norman and Sidney really took off then. They ran until Norman fell down. Sidney revived Norman only to learn that the farmer was on their trail again. On their next attempt at escaping, Sidney got tangled up in a briar patch, but this did not stop him. Upon arriving at their car, they made a hurried exit. The farmer was last seen waving his gun as he used rather strong language to reaffirm his decision concerning no hunting on his farm. The moral of this story is for all hunters to abide by the "no hunting" regulations on posted farms.

Miss Taylor Is Editor

Versatile Miss Velma Lee Taylor, daughter of Mrs. Mamie Taylor, Caromount employee, has been chosen as editor of "The Battlers" the monthly publication of the eighth grade of Battle School in Rocky Mount. A review of a recent issue of "The Battlers" indicated that as editor-in-chief Miss Taylor wrote the editorial, and the following articles for this issue: The Eight Grade Class Room Activities, The Library Has It, a Commentary on World News and an essay on Autumn. She has been commended by the faculty of Battle School for her outstanding literary ability and conscientious endeavor at every task assigned to her. Velma Lee plays basketball and does artistic drawing also.

"The Battlers" presents interesting information and news on a variety of topics including sports, humor, foreign affairs, health education, new students, new teachers, class activities, and news events. An interesting feature is the valuable guide for worthwhile musical radio programs.

Bobby Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Campbell, was also a member of the Committee which helped start the plans for publishing "The Battlers." As patrolman in Battle School, Bobby wrote an article for their school newspaper describing the Battle School Patrol System which assures orderly traffic and cleanliness in the building.

CAA Entertains The Softball Players

Approximately 90 employees who were softball players for the various six Caromount teams during the 1946 season were feted by the Caromount Athletic Association with a supper meeting at Buc Overton's Place on Thursday, November 21. The softball team for Caromount women, the four interdepartmental teams and the Caromount team which participated in the City League were guest at this affair.

Walter Greenman, President of the CAA and Jim Speight, Vice-President, were present to welcome the guests. Resident Manager E. H. Suessmuth, in his brief remarks to the employees present, complimented them on the fine performance of their teams. He stated that this season was the beginning of greater recreational activities with hopes that next season there would be twice as many teams for the men and women.

Julian Council paid tribute to Al Inscoc, who served as umpire. Council urged the guest to join in a prayer for Inscoc's speedy recovery from his present serious illness and this meeting was unanimously declared Al Inscoc night.

The Caromount team for Women was recognized as the champions in the City Softball League for Women sponsored by the YMCA. Miss Johnnie Bell Harris served as playing manager for this team. The Atoms were recognized as the Champions of the Caromount Softball League. Ray Barnhill reminded the guest that the Braves really played softball in spite of their ever present cellar standing. Barnhill served as manager for the Braves, and John David Young for the Atoms. Walter Thompson steered the Dyfins into second place and Hubert Sutton was the playing manager for the Blues. Wahab Edwards, Cecil Lewis and R. Quillen Ward members of the Caromount Softball Commission and Miss Agnes Parrish, CAA Executive Secretary were present also.

The Caromount Hill Billy Band provided music for the entertainment of the guests.

"Mama, what's a second-story man?"

"Your father is one, dear. If I don't believe is first story, he always has another one ready."
