

Miss Smith Receives First Scholarship To Study Physical Therapy

NEW YORK—The first successful Negro woman to receive a scholarship in physical therapy offered by the National Foundation for the Handicapped, Miss Smith, 146-39 10th Ave. Jamaica L. I., was announced today at headquarters of the National Foundation, 120 Broadway, New York City.

Miss Smith, graduated high school in Astoria, Ore., and was graduated from the Lincoln Institute School for Nurses, the Bronx, N. Y., in 1932. She will study physical therapy at New York University.

In her application for a National Foundation scholarship, Miss Smith wrote: "I want to return to educational work as a specialist to strengthen and improve the experience I have acquired. I have chosen physical therapy because of the greater service I can render to my race. To a nurse the greatest satisfaction in the world comes from doing something for others."

To qualify for National Foundation scholarship applicants must be graduates of accredited schools of nursing or of physical education. Otherwise, they are required to have had at least two years of college study with credit for twelve semester units in biology and other basic science.

The five training program of the National Foundation was inaugurated to help ease the nation's acute need for at least 5000 physical therapists. The seriousness of the shortage was demonstrated last year during widespread and severe epidemics of infantile paralysis.

PLAIN TALK BY DAN GARDNER

From London comes an ominous story, shading the future for Negroes with misgivings and hope. At least on the international front. Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, Premier of British South Africa, regarding the feelings of the millions of colored of African descent, both American and British, has issued an order that only London "out of London" is responsible for the war who are South African Negroes.

Not only London, but all large cities in the British Isles are included and these black boys who volunteered to serve the British Commonwealth in the war against Hitler and Mussolini and now in making the East safe for the British white man from Japanese aggression. This is the first time in the history of the world that the place in the British scheme of things still more intolerable.

The report from London carried incidentally in the Indian Press "out of London" is that the British Government has ordered that the violent anti-Negro policies of the government of South Africa be a step that no other British Dominion Government has dared to take.

This rank discrimination against the black heroes of Dunkirk, of Salerno, of Tripoli, and other historic battlefields, in which British forces were pitted against the enemy, stands vividly for future historians to note as they write down the causes of why in this century a wave of hatred of the white man swept through the world among the colored people.

As a result, traditionally, the British, especially during the early stages of the war when large numbers of American Negroes were landed at such ports as Perth, Sydney, and Melbourne.

'General Mud' on Okinawa

Mud such as that in which the vehicles above are mired added more hardships to the Marines' campaign on Okinawa. It was impossible to use motorized equipment, so airplanes and horses were used to maintain vital supply lines and deliver food, water and ammunition to the fighting front.

Notables Make Contribution To Headlines And Pictures Magazine

NEW YORK — The Negro's status in American society will determine whether a nationalistic movement develops after the present war, Dr. E. Franklin Frazier of Howard University writes in the August Headlines and Pictures Magazine.

The emergence of a nationalistic movement under the leadership of Marcus Garvey following World War I was due largely to two causes: First, the urbanization of Negroes, and secondly, the frustration and disillusionment which they experienced when the world was not made ready for democracy.

Dr. Ira De A. Reid of Atlanta University shares this view with Dr. Frazier and states further: "The fact that some such movement may develop is inherent in the inadequate functioning of American Democracy."

The war has demonstrated that Negroes are fundamentally American according to Dr. Robert C. Weaver, Director of Community Services of the American Council on Race Relations. "Their primary aim today is to become first class citizens in their native land. On the other hand the current war has accentuated the contrasts. There has been a growing anti-white feeling among Negroes."

This dissatisfaction, this anti-white attitude, the insecurities which haunt colored minorities in America can give rise to Negro nationalism.

Dr. Gene Weltfish of Columbia University, another contributor to the forum points out that "There is no more reason why a double nationality should be forced upon the Negro people than upon any other Americans in this crucial time, we must judge very carefully what prophet we follow, not by their looks but by what they say and by what company they keep."

World War II veterans and their families. The letter pointed out that "failure to protect them adequately has been laid at the hand of the law enforcement officers. And of even more concern to us is the report that workers have refused to work with and accept as fellow union members these people whose education was one of the unfortunate result of the present war. Moreover, boycotts have been practiced against their farm produce."

When the government is warning of critical food shortages, Quoting Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, it is to be expected that the Allied Military Government would wipe out racial, religious and political discrimination in Germany. Miss Perotta expressed the hope that no American would ever come to believe that "our democratic ideals of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness with opportunity and justice for all are for the foreign consumption only."

Author Calls On Free Labor To Uphold NISEI Job Rights

NEW YORK CITY (WDL) — Because "strong free labor movement must embody the best of the past and traditions of the country out of which it grows," letters from Miss Rose Perotta, author of Bread Upon the Waters and former vice president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, urges workers to protect job rights and to "support aggressive action" to solve the problems of Nisei and Japanese evacuees — returning to their West Coast home, Miss Perotta, a member of the Workers Defense League's Free Labor Committee, named civil protection, housing, employment and remuneration for losses as the main problems of evacuees in her letter which went to AFL and CIO leaders and to newspapers on the West Coast.

The letter commended workers who have stood for the basic right to work. Especially named was the Warehousemen's local at Stockton, Calif., which disciplined members who, by refusing to work with Nisei, defied the aims of a free labor movement in a democratic nation.

Miss Perotta, a series of acts of terrorism against the returning Nisei and the Japanese most of whom never had an opportunity to become citizens of the country which was to them, as it was to European immigrants, democracies land of promise. Since their return to their homes is by sanction of our government which recognizes them as loyal, "acts against them are acts against the government," she asserted. Among the returnees are

WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS

Harking to the famous words of Vice President Marshall, OPA Assistant Information Officer James T. Taylor announced yesterday that suit had been filed against 11 Tampa, Fla., cigar makers demanding almost $2 million in damages and asking the court to restrain future price violations.

In an effort to put low prices on cigars back on the counter, Taylor said OPA "is just beginning this campaign. Further violations are continuing and will be dealt with in time."

He charged that "manufacturers have been concentrating on the higher priced cigars, despite steps taken by OPA to stop this practice."

Last November, the agency increased the ceiling prices for low-cost brands and required that manufacturers establish an average retail ceiling price so cheap cigars would be restored to the nation, Taylor said.

Court action will soon be taken against other manufacturers in other areas guilty of similar violations, it was asserted.

Ashe County recently held the first 4-H lamb show in North Carolina with club members exhibiting 46 lambs.
