Rocky Mount Academy Of Medicine Meet

ROCKY MOUNT — The Rocky Mount Academy of Medicine met recently with a 100 per cent attendance at the home of Dr. B. J. Burnett. Dr. Burnett discussed at length the Relationship of Present Trends in the Field of Pharmacy. He brought out pertinent facts that had been gathered in questionnaires from the various Deans of Medical Schools throughout the United States and the facts that have seemed to be a growing feeling that the large pharmaceutical houses now occupied in the manufacture of drugs would soon make it unnecessary for one to be a registered pharmacist in order to dispense drugs. Dr. Burnett also brought out that due to the small margin of profit, the long hours of work with indoor confinement, the length of time it takes to complete his training, makes it quite difficult to interest new comers to the field of pharmacy. Following his presentation a roundtable discussion was entered into by all attending.

Several matters bearing on post-war medical needs of the city came before the society for discussion.

Those attending were: Drs. J. W. Black, J. E. Pittman, F. H. Sessions, G. W. Bulluck, P. W. Burnette, B. J. Burnett, F. H. Avani, W. E. Armstrong, and W. T. Armstrong.

Canning Tomatoes

Can plenty of tomatoes. With civilian supplies of commercially canned tomatoes and tomato juice predicted to be much less than last winter, wise homemakers will can every garden tomato that does not go on the family table.

Rich in vitamin C, tomatoes consist of all vegetables to can and the only common garden vegetable that does not require a pressure canner.

Can tomatoes by the boiling water bath method, advise food preservation specialists. Here are important points to remember in tomato canning.

Look over every tomato, and use only the ripe, firm and perfect. When a bad spot is cut out, bacteria may lurk behind to ruin the whole batch.

Get ready only enough tomatoes for one canner load at a time. Handle them gently so they will not bruise. Wash in several waters to remove sand and grime.

To make peeling easy, put tomatoes in a wire basket in cold water and boil in boiling water a minute. Then plunge into cold water. Cut off stem ends and peel. Quarter or halve the tomatoes so they will heat thoroughly quickly.

Heat tomatoes in their own juice, stirring to prevent sticking, and turning. Let them come to a rolling boil. In the meantime, get clean

Labor Leaders Tell Bilbo: Richard Wright's "Black Boy" True Picture Of Negro's Plight

NEW YORK (WLD) — In a letter to Senator Bilbo, seven noted labor leaders including A. Philip Randolph, David Dubinsky and Adolph Held told the Mississippi Senator that Richard Wright's autobiographical novel "Black Boy" is an unvarnished picture of what poverty and discrimination can do to the minds and souls of decent people.

Reminding the Senator that Mississippi has the lowest average educational attainment of any state in the Union, the labor leaders suggested that the Senator should call attention of Congress to the Federal Victory-Progress special education, Congressman Louis I. Knudsen of Indiana said on the floor of the House before adjournment.

The Victory-Progress edition just published by The Indianapolis Reporter is a comprehensive and valuable compendium of the information revealing the amazing progress of the Negro race and is a credit to American achievement.

Newspaper Publishes 20,000-Year Record Of Negro Progress

INDIANAPOLIS, Indiana — One of the most complete, interesting and up-to-date accounts of the tortuous struggle of the Negro race through 20,000 years of world history is told in the record-breaking Victory-Progress special edition recently published by The Indianapolis Recorder, which is celebrating its 50th anniversary.

Conceived as an instrument for fostering interracial good-will by emphasizing both white and colored Americans with the valuable contributions made to civilization by the race in the victory just won in World War 2 by America and her Allies.

The edition bids for special honors on the basis of an indisputable claim to being the largest Negro newspaper ever published and the largest single newspaper published in this country during the recent armed conflict by either white or colored newspaper publisher. Its brilliant array of articles, stories and thought, and scholarly and interesting examinations of the basic problems faced by the country's largest minority group.

Writers included: the late President F. D. Roosevelt, Henry A. Wallace, Ex-Governor Henry F. Schickler, C. C. Spaulding, A. Philip Randolph, Governor Thomas E. Dewey, Bishop John J. Gregg, Rev. D. V. Jemison, Dr. Geo. E. Hayes, William Green, Philip Murray, J. A. Rogers, Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, Sen. James Meade, the late Wendell Willkie, Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, Dr. Frederick Patterson, Bishop C. H. Phillips, Rev. G. L. France, Dr. Ambrose Calver, Bishop Wm. J. Walls, Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, George Schuyler, Paul V. McNutt, and many others equally as prominent.

For clarity, convenience and easy reference, subject matter is treated under headings of civic affairs, women's activities, the Armed Forces (all branches), the war effort on the home front, politics, education, sports, amusements, health, Negro history, business, labor and finance.

A copy of the edition has been placed on file in the Congressional Library by Dr. Luther Evans, U. S. Librarian of Congress. Copies have also been added to the files of university and public libraries in most of the large cities of the country.

Marcus C. Stewart, editor, assisted in collection, preparation and editing of the mountainous mass of material by a staff of trained editors, and many others equally as prominent.

Your BABY

By Lillian B. Storms

One of the fundamental things in the training of teachers is that they must let children learn to do things by doing them. No matter how awkward and fumbling a child may be, he learns how to handle himself at the same time he is learning to put things where he wants them. It is a temptation for all mothers and teachers to show how it should be done.

As soon as your baby shows an interest in guiding his food to his own mouth, give him all the opportunities you can. A finger's piece of toast is one of the easiest articles of food to start.

Most of a baby's food is not adapted to self-feeding. A cup of milk is so easily spilled and a spoon seems possessed to turn over the wrong way. A baby might better learn to drink from a cup just as early as possible — first water, then orange juice, then milk. But, don't have very much in the cup and spill won't be serious.

Place his fingers around the cup, above yours, so he will show an interest in using a spoon, so he won't spill so easily. Thicken his strained vegetable or even his cereal.

The prepared baby cereals will absorb considerable milk and may be fed thick enough, with less than the usual amount of milk, so they won't spill so easily. Thicken his strained vegetable or even his cereal.
