been living at the home of S. P. Dean, prominent leader in the co-operative movement in North Carolina, and former principal of the Columbia high school at Columbia, complied with an order of from 200 to 300 white hoodlums to move out. Dr. Robert P. Young, county health officer, directed Jack Whitehead, county deputy sheriff, and Hastings to give the group orders to move under authority granted by the Halifax County Commissioners last February, which provides that no group may camp over night on a non-approved trailer camp. The group is headed by Bishop Shay Johnson of Near-by Tilley, who had just drove off in a new Packard as reporters arrived on the scene, but according to a spokesman for the group there are about 30 in the group who travel on a bus and an open truck. The Church has branches in several states from Delaware to South Carolina, and in every state Negroes and whites attend the same churches, wear small blue and white lapel buttons bearing the words "living for Christ" which are distributed at the services. There is on church in North Carolina.

JIM CROW TRAIN

The brief also pointed out that any such regulation is untenable since it is based upon a conflict among passengers. Yet, built-in cars are operated by the Southern Railway Company throughout the South without any segregation and their successful operation without clashes among the passengers proves conclusively that such segregation is not necessary in the coaches. It is pointed out that in some cases, the same train will carry segregated coaches and unsegregated pullman cars. Finally, the brief points out the "uncomfortable" nature of the cars aside for Negro use as compared with the modern clean and shining cars for the whites. After listing all the many differences between the two types of accommodations, the brief says that except for an absolute refusal to transport Negro passengers, it is hard to see how accommodations could be more unequal.

Uniformed Police

"The Citizens Committee" he said, "is convinced that the appointment of additional uniformed Negro policemen would have a salutary effect on our city and be of great assistance to the law enforcement agencies." The request was referred to City Manager Roy Braden. The city now has two Negro officers, both plain clothesmen. The proposition seems to be a vast leaning on the colored part for Negro uniformed policemen, instead of the two plain clothes officers. The trend of sentiment is towards uniformed men who will be readily recognized by the public as bona fide officers of the city's law enforcement regulations.

Mr. Hamilton was freed on $200 bond. Victor J. And so the story goes, a tale of hardships for the Negro sailor who generally "saw more of segregation than of the sea." Paul, an Alabamian, before entering the service was a field scout executive in the Georgia-Alabama Council of the Boy Scouts of America. He is at present a graduate student at New York university. He has a B. S. in education from Alabama State Teachers college, and an M. A. from Atlanta university. Recently he finished a novel about his naval experiences, entitled "Is It Time Now?"

A graduate of Yale, Mr. Symington became in 1941 a consultant to the Army and was sent to England with a group of aeronautical engineers to study the power-drive gun turret on British power planes. He returned several months later to build the world's largest airplane armament plant as a part of the operations of the Emerson Manufacturing Company in St. Louis where he had served as president and chairman of the Board of Directors.

Businessman Receives Joe Louis Painting

G. W. Lokey, district manager of the Liggett and Myers Tobacco Company, manufacturer of Chesterfield Cigarettes, is seen presenting Leonard W. Ligon, prominent Raleigh businessman, with an oil color painting of Joe Louis, world's heavyweight champion.

The painting is a tie-in with the current advertising campaign promoting Chesterfield cigarettes, through the use of a "champ" in one of his best fighting poses, along with that dynamic cordial smile, while holding a package of Chesterfield cigarettes.

THE CAROLINIAN has been running a series of Chesterfield ads in connection with this national advertising campaign. A replica of the original oil painting of Joe Louis is available at the office of THE CAROLINIAN, free upon request.

DR. LOGAN NAMED UNESCO MEMBER

Washington (ANP) — Dr. Raymond Logan, head of the history department of Howard university, was named by Milton S. Eisenhower, chairman of the United States national commission for UNESCO, as one of the replacements in the existing membership of the commission.

In announcing plans for the Chicago meeting of the commission, Sept. 11 to 18, Mr. Eisenhower also announced the names of seven new members and eight replacements. Dr. Logan apparently being the only Negro member.

Among the subjects to be discussed at the special session of the conference in Chicago are the reconstruction and rehabilitation of schools in war-devastated areas; exchange of student and teachers; the teachers' summer seminar of international understanding; the Hylean Amazon project; and the Paris conference on a world-wide radio network held last week.

S. C. DEMS SEEK TO BAR NEGRO VOTE

Columbia, S. C. (ANP) — An attempt to keep Negroes from voting in their primaries was made here this week by South Carolina Democrats. A temporary restraint on a federal court order which opened their primaries to Negroes was sought.

Democratic party attorneys asked that the order be enjoined until an appeal from it is heard and decided by the fourth circuit court of appeals. The party might be required to post a bond in the event if any Negroes suffer damages as a result of the restraint should the appeal decision go against the party.

George Elmore, Columbia, complained that he was denied an effective vote for a congressman in 1946 by being denied a vote in the primaries, which are open to whites only. A question was raised as to whether bond would be sought for possible damage to Elmore only, or possible damage to all voting age Negroes in the state.

the editor, that "plead guilty" was written on the receipt he got. "Smith said that so many were fined," Jervay said, "the office had to be emptied several times."

Jervay said that visitors from as far away as Washington, D. C., were among the Negroes fined on the trespassing charge. Crowds went to the Negro beach on Sunday, he said because in the Journal he had publicized the fact that access to the ocean front had been given by Parmele.

Upholds Injunction

The decision upholds an injunction issued by Judge Hatcher on enjoining the Brotherhood and the Norfolk Southern from recognizing these agreements insofar as they deprived Tamstall and other colored firemen of their assignments, and directing the Norfolk Southern to restore him to his seniority rights and his assignment on the passenger run between Norfolk and Marsden.

This was the second time the Circuit Court had ruled on the case, which went to the United States supreme Court which ruled that the Brotherhood was the bargaining agent for the entire class of craft of locomotive firemen under the National Labor Relations Act was bound to represent non-union or minority members of the craft of class without discrimination and in the Brotherhood.

The Brotherhood appealed from the judgment of District Judge Hutcheson and also from a jury verdict awarding Mr. Tamstall damages of $1,000. The appeal was argued in Asheville, North Carolina, June 24 before Judge Parker, Morris A. Soper and Arthur H. Dobbs.

come over the property was staked out by Grover Freeman, who owns property at the Beach.

Jervay said, however, that the route was improperly marked by Freeman and that "about 50" people drove their cars along the wrong road and onto posted property. It was then, Jervay said, that Carolina Beach police instructed the Negroes to follow them to the office of R. G. Barr, Sr., resort justice of the peace.

Chief Bruce Valentine of Carolina Beach confirmed that "a good many" Negroes were arrested for trespassing "on the extreme end of the northern extension." Valentine said the arrests were made following a complaint by property owners.

When the Negroes were haled before Barr, Jervay said, they were fined $3.50 each. Jervay said that Sam Smith, a Negro employe of Wilmington American Legion Post 10, asked for and received a receipt for the $5.90 he paid to Barr's office.
