N. C. MUTUAL

with loans to Government, public works, and many other owners, and on business, farm, church, and other properties to the extent of $20,498,866.21.

It provides dignified employment for 1194 men and women at our plant, and pouring into economic channels through payments to policyholders, employees, and in support of Government and industry over $6,280,000.00 annually.

Benefits paid policyholders and their beneficiaries during the past year amounted to $2,270,036.63 bringing the total of such benefit payments since organization to $30,774,637.63.

At the close of 1948 there were dividends yet to be paid to policyholders, including remainder for the 1948 dividend year ending March 31, 1949, of $136,386.69; dividends left with the company to secure rate at interest and interest thereon amount of $16,902.33 to provide for appointment of dividends to policyholders for the dividend year beginning April 1, 1949, $360,000.00. Has been set aside, making a total for dividends to policyholders of $513,389.12.

On this, the Golden Anniversary of the company, employees, policyholders, and friends alike can look back upon a half-century of service that has fully justified the hopes, anticipations and desires of the founders.

Truly, North Carolina Mutual has proved itself to be a great cooperative enterprise — an enterprise that is the property of the policyholders themselves. Every policyholder is accordingly a part owner of this great, cooperative enterprise — an enterprise where each member joins hands with his fellow members and lends his support in the establishment of a reservoir of security that operates for the common financial wellbeing of all.

As the institution enters upon its second half-century of continuous operation, it does so staffed with a tried and proved personnel. This fact, plus the record established during the first fifty years, is assurance that the future growth and financial position of the institution is assured.

NEWBORN INFANT

In a statement issued Saturday night Shaw officials asserted that an investigation by medical authorities showed that no student at the institution was the mother of the child and that it had been placed in the crib by some outsider.

DIXIE-COP UNION

Laws of Savannah, Ga. and Dr. W. M. Boyd, president of the G. State Conference who charged an increase in the numbers of beatings and murders of Negroes under the Tammany regime "worth any not teaching the negroes."

"The Georgia vote registrar," said Mr. Laws, "are responsible only to God and his conscience. He doesn't know God and he has no conscience."

On the brighter side, however, they pointed to a growing reliance in the ranks of Georgians who had previously supported Tammany, but who have found that his legislative program has been aimed at placing all of the political power in the State in his own hip pocket.

In his climax speech Walter White declared that the coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats which had been formed even before the heat over the anti-illiberal role is almost 50 per cent more the preservation of the Tammany.

"A battalion of death has been formed," he charged, "against beatings, against federal aid to education against all other progressive legislation as well as for the serious emasculation of the Negro."

"You see and you will see," he continued, "the bill which will turn back the clock of progress 25 years."

Citing the action of the Congress which proposed one rent control law for the nation and another for the District of Columbia where the congressmen themselves are at the mercy of landlords, he warned: "When your rents are increased within the next few days, remember who is responsible."

Printing out that the Raleigh housing situation was not as bad as that which he has seen in many cities, he nevertheless declared that there were some houses which were not fit for habitation by rats.

The real estate dealers do not want federal aid to housing," he continued, "and the housing lobby is the most hard-boiled and well-outfitted financially that I have seen in 80 years on the Washington scene."

In other reasons for the failure of the anti-illiberal fight he charged that there had been naivete and real weakness in Congressional Administration leadership; lack of preparation by the Dixie-ites; perfidy on the part of the Republicans who deserted their campaign promises; failure of church, veterans, civil rights and other groups interested in change to make themselves heard and the absence of President Truman from Washington.

In conclusion he admitted that the civil rights forces had taken a beating in the anti-illiberal fight but he said that only a battle had been lost, not a war, and he urged continuous and determined effort to secure enactment of right legislation.

He pointed to the need for finan-del and active support of the NAA, which in his view would continue its fight as long as a single man was lynched, a single vote secured of a state senator, or the name of his own district a justifier of the color of his skin.

BOY INJURED

by Cunningham and Sterling. The accident occurred in a white residential section on the Lumberton-Facount highway.

The car was driven by Mr. Bullock, who says that the accident was unavoidable. Since there were no witnesses to observe the rate of speed at which the car was traveling, Bullock's word is final. After striking the bike, Bullock stopped and picked the child up and carried him to the Hospital immediately.

Sterling, who is 10 years older than the child, was taken to the Hospital and operated on for a fractured skull and a broken leg. He is recovering rapidly and brought a complete report of the accident to John's mother, Sterling is also eight years old.

The shock was so severe for the children who saw the accident that two of them, Sterling and Prestley, were unable to attend school on Monday. Cunningham made a sincere request that his father sell his bike right away.

Everyone wishes John a speedy recovery.

PICKET TO ASK

The boys are trying to do, but it is not felt that they are using the right method in trying to obtain it.

Asked whether any other effort had been made to secure the necessary improvement in facilities, he said that the situation had been brought to the attention of the school of Depts. and "on up through channels" to the president and to the Board of Trustees.

In describing the overcrowded conditions of the law school which was established in 1949, the students said that the present "law library" is housed in a narrow alcove where the students have to climb over one another and the study tables to gain access to the volumes.

Part of the library, they added, is located in a classroom, with the result that students seeking books disturb classes which are in session.

Dean Turner disclosed that HCC was granted $205,000 by the state legislature in 1947 for its building program, but that rising building costs had made the amount insufficient before the actual work had been started.

$500,000 of the appropriated sum was designed for use in erection of a combination general and law library. This year the legislature voted an additional $370,000 to supplement this amount.

Assistant budget director B. B. Doyton verified these figures and said that the members of the NCC Board of Trustees had not appeared before the Appropriations Committee to ask for an increase in the amount and seemed satisfied.

Representative R. M. Gantt of Durham, vice-chairman of the NCC Board of Trustees, took the floor in session to declare that he was "humbled and mortified" by the action of the students and that the funds appropriated and about awaiting approval by the legislature would be sufficient to provide a law building.

Dr. Elder declared also that plans now underway call for the erection of a library and other facilities to serve the law students and pave the way for accreditation of the school.

Lt. Gov. H. P. Taylor told the legislature that Dr. Elder had dis-claimed all connection of the school with the demonstration and had had no opportunity to halt it.

While the picketing drew considerable attention from through of persons who were in the vicinity of Capitol Square during the lunch hour, the proceedings were quiet and completely free from any type of disorder.

PRESIDENT SEES

Lawmakers wanted to talk to the President about this, the President asserted that he "always saw senators and congressmen whenever they requested to see him."

That had been his policy every since he had been in the White House.

Presumably, he added, that there had always been a close relationship between him and the Congress, despite the comments made by newspapers.

In reply to the question as to whether any southern senators had requested to see him, Mr. Truman said "a few." He always saw southern senators whenever they were invited, he said, as he did any other brand, an Ohio Republican was also welcomed to see him upon request.

"The White House is sort of an open house to all congressmen then isn't it Mr. President?" asked one of the reporters.

"The White House is an open house for the business of the government," answered the President.

He would not comment in the least on the Bill which has just passed the Senate.

However, he was high in his praise of the appointment of Dr. Frank Graham of North Carolina to the Senate.

"Dr. Graham is a wonderful person and will make a good addition," said the President.

SHAW U. FACULTY CONCERT SET FOR FRIDAY EVENING

Shaw University's annual faculty concert will be presented Friday night, April 1, at 8:15 o'clock in Greenleaf Auditorium. The concert artist will be Edward Mathis, baritone, a gifted and accomplished singer whose talents were first recognized and called to attention of the public by Richard Hayes.

From this auspicious introduction to the concert world, Mathis went on to achieve fame in other allied fields of entertainment; stage, radio, and opera. For seven years he was featured member of Major Bevel's Capital Theatre Family Hour.

For another four seasons he was featured in Gershwin's Porgy and Bess opera, frequently appearing in the title role.

A native of Ossining, N. Y., he attended Fisk University from which he was graduated, later becoming a member of the famous Fisk Jubilee Singers. BLAND PTA PLANS TO GIVE BANQUET

The Bland PTA has made many contributions to the school this term. Every meeting has been well attended. The committees have worked faithfully.

On March 21 the Program Committee presented an interesting and enjoyable program. They discovered some wonderful talent. The president asked for more such programs from the PTA.

The school appreciates the organization.

The social committee has prepared plans for a PTA banquet on April 14. Each parent is invited. Come out and enjoy the evening.
