DINNER RALLY BEGINS CANCER FUND CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK - Upcown Harlem joined downtown Park Avenue in the week started at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, Sunday night at the opening dinner rally of the American Cancer Society, launching the 1949 nationwide cancer fund campaign for $4,500,000.

Charles P. Riffing, scientist and automobile industrialist, was honorary chairman, placed new emphasis on the value of education and early detection in combating cancer. He told 800 inferential dinner guests that a new era had been reached in the fight against cancer. An era in which we may come to realize that our present knowledge alone can save countless lives.

Mr. Riffing estimated that 7,000,000 Americans are at risk of cancer every day but marked for death by cancer can be saved through early detection and prompt treatment of the disease.

In his speech broadcast over a national network, he said "It is our task to alert the public and our scientists to the danger. We can do this through all channels of public information with a vast program of cancer education."

The dinner rally was opened with Miss Carol Brice, noted concert artist singing the Star Spangled Banner. Other speakers were Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, war time commander of the Women's Army Corp. (WACS) who is serving as national vice chairman, Cancer, as described as a "biological pioneer" by Dr. Charles C. Conner, medical and scientific director of the American Cancer Society.

HEBERT RETRACTS

NEW ORLEANS - An admission that he had "confused" the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People with another organization when he accused the NAACP of advocating refusal of Negroes to serve in the armed forces of the United States was made this week by Rep. F. Edward Hebert of Louisiana in a letter to Daniel E. Byrd, assistant field secretary of the NAACP.

"I quite readily admit that I am in error," wrote the Louisiana congressman, "and have the NAACP confused with another organization. I assure you I apologize for making this error."

Because children can take only so much food at one time, they cannot make up by an extra heavy meal the nourishment missed at a skippy or neglected meal. Therefore, busy or careless mothers who let their children go off to play or to school without a proper breakfast, or do not provide them with more than a pickup lunch, may unknowingly contribute to poor nutrition in their children.

In planning the day's meals, provide for at least one-fourth of the food needed for the day at breakfast, or more than one-third at lunch, and at dinner or supper at night.

Nutritionists suggest that at least one fruit or vegetable (besides potato) be served at every meal. At least once a day food rich in vitamin C should be served—tomatoes, citrus fruit, or cranberries, for example. Once a day, also, children should have green or yellow vegetable rich in vitamin A. At every meal they should drink at least one full glass of milk to stimulate appetites, every meal should have one hot dish.

The rule that water should be boiled before vegetables go in it, is not as important as it once was. Recent research shows that it is not so easy to distinguish between the two. For one thing, there is usually a little of cold water and cooked vegetables from the time boiling begins, hold only about a third of their original vitamin C. But if you put into boiling water and boiled the same length of time (10 to 15 minutes) of their C (broccoli, asparagus and green beans) retain more vitamin C when started in boiling water.
