Three Jailed As Police Smash New York Dope Ring

PHILADELPHIA (ANP) — The smashup of one of the most vicious and highly organized dope rings found here in years, whose principals nets $100,000 in illicit profits in the last six months, was disclosed last week end by members of the police narcotics squad.

Held as ringleaders in the dope syndicate at a hearing before Magistrate E. David Keiser in Central Police station were Naomi Dayse, 33, described as "queen" of Philadelphia dope peddlers, William Boston, Jr., 29, and Benny Bryant, 26, all of 16th Street near Columbia Avenue.

They were charged with illegal sale and conspiracy to violate the Federal Anti-Narcotics act, and held in $5,000 bail each for the grand jury.

Their arrest followed a raid on an apartment here on Friday morning led by Lt. William Leinhausner and Detectives Joseph Leitz, Thomas Regier and Michael Iannarelli.

Police also seized 20 persons who came to the apartment. Physicians found that 18 of these were suffering from drug addiction. The 18 were held in $500 bail each as material witnesses and as users of dope.

Leinhausner testified that "it was the most vicious dope ring I have encountered in years of police work. The ring had a complete set-up for dispensing all types of dope and lured many of its victims into becoming addicts."

Large quantities of heroin, cocaine, opium gum and marijuana were found in the apartment together with stolen goods or valued personal possessions "addicts would pledge as payment for small quantities of drugs."

The ring, according to the detectives, first started operations in January and spread its net for victims both in this city and surrounding communities.

The Dayse woman was described by Leinhausner as "queen of the dope peddlers" who financed the purchase of drugs from a New York "wholesale syndicate which is obtaining many types of drugs from merchant seamen arriving from foreign ports.

Civil Rights Legislation Still May Be Passed

WASHINGTON (ANP) — Passage of civil rights legislation in this session of congress is not a lost cause, according to Democratic leaders in the senate.

Sen. J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, Sen. Scott W. Lucas of Illinois, and Senator Herbert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, all were optimistic on the passage of some type of civil rights laws. The greatest hope for a law is apparently a kind of omnibus bill which would establish two civil rights committees, one of congressmen, and the other appointed by the President.

Sen. McGrath heads the judiciary committee which is holding hearings on this bill. It would establish a 14-man committee of seven senators and seven representatives to be known as the joint congressional committee on civil rights and a five-man commission on civil rights appointed by the President. This latter committee would make an annual report to the President.

Neither of these committees would have any enforcement powers. They would be empowered to study the question, but no power to conduct hearings.

Sen. Humphrey is proposing a statute to set up a civil rights commission which would have subpoena and hearing powers. Both this bill and the omnibus bill could have committee members chosen on a sectional basis.

The omnibus bill is being promoted very carefully. Supporters are seeking approval of southern senators in advance in order to avoid a filibuster.

SEN. LUCAS DETERMINED

Speaking of the possibilities of civil rights bills passing, Senator Lucas was optimistic. He said that his party was determined to see that civil rights legislation succeeded. He declared:

"I intend to continue the fight for civil rights until that fight has been brought to a successful conclusion."

Blaming Republicans for the failure.

Winters, Sr., of Brooklyn, N. Y., was solemnized at 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon, June 19th at St. Joseph A.M.E. Church. The Rev. D. A. Johnston, assisted by the Rev. J. Neal Hughley, performed the double ring ceremony.

The altar was beautifully decorated with woodward ferns, palms and pedestal baskets of white summer flowers. Lighted cathedral candles in seven branched candelabra cast a soft glow on the wedding scene. Sprays of white gladioli and burning tapers were used to mark the family pews. Prior to the ceremony, Mrs. Millie Gilmer, organist, Mrs. Ruth Edwards and James R. Holmes, soloist presented a program of wedding music. Mrs. Edwards sang "Beloved it is Mourning" and Mr. Holmes, "Through the Years" and "Because." The traditional wedding marches were used for the processional and recession.

The bride entered the church with her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore an exquisite wedding gown of white dutchess satin, designed with a tight fitted bodice, buttoned down the back with tiny self covered buttons. The yoke of illusion featured a high round neck line and was joined to the dress with a delicate scroll of seeded pearls and bugle beads. The long sleeves fell to calla points over the hand. From the low waistline flowed a full skirt which extended into a full circular train. Her fingertip veil of imported illusion was arranged from a tiara of seeded pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of gardenias, white roses and cattleya orchid, tied with white satin ribbon. The bride's only ornament was a string of pearls belonging to her mother.

Mrs. Otis S. Gamble, former classmate of the bride, was matron of honor, and Miss Marion Cordice, maid of honor. They wore identical gowns of yellow and blue marquisette, designed with off the shoulder effect, fitted bodice and full bouffant skirts with insets of lace. Both wore hallow hats of starched matching lace.

The bride's maids were Misses Harriett and Clementine Amey, cousins of the bride, Mrs. Carolyn Mills, sister-in-law and Mrs. Victoria Cordice Davis. The bride's maids wore identical marquisette gowns in pastel shades of pink, blue, orchid and green, with off the shoulder effect, tight fitting bodice, full ruffled skirts with side hoops and hallow hats of starched matching lace. They all carried bouquets of colored carnations, gardenias and baby's breath, tied with corresponding satin ribbon.

MISS FISHER BEGINS CLASSES AT OKLA. UNIV.

NORMAN, Okla. — The legal education of Mrs. Ada Lois Sissel Fisher began at long last this week, when the young woman was finally admitted to the University of Oklahoma law school after a three and one-half year fight waged by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The case, instituted early in 1946 and carried to the United States Supreme Court by NAACP attorneys, was headed for the highest court again when the State of Oklahoma ordered the University to admit Mrs. Fisher this week.

At the present time Mrs. Fisher is attending classes at the law school separated from white students by a rail. Her fellow students have threatened to remove the rail and reportedly have taken an affirmative vote on such action.

As she started to classes, the attractive young law student expressed her appreciation to her "many friends" who assisted her in the 42-month fight to gain admission to the law school and stated "I expect to spend the rest of my life demonstrating to the State of Oklahoma that a mistake was made in attempting to prevent me from getting a legal education at the state university."

ASKS COMMUTED SENTENCE IN N. Y. CONVICTION

NEW YORK — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People this week announced the intention of appealing to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to commute the sentence of William J. Dessure, confined to Sing Sing prison for a term of one and one-half to three years on conviction of second degree assault.

The Court of Appeals of the State of New York this week denied an NAACP petition for writ of certiorari to review the conviction of Dessure. The NAACP appeal was based on an allegation that qualified Negroes have been systematically excluded from grand jury service in Nassau County, where the indictment was made, over a long period of years.

Attorneys filing the petition were Stanley Faulkner, NAACP Special Counsel Thurgood Marshall, and NAACP Assistant Special Counsel Franklin H. Williams.

MAYOR URGED TO KEEP ST. L. POOL NON-RACIAL

NEW YORK — Deploring the outbreak of violence between Negro and white youths in a St. Louis swimming pool, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People wired Mayor Joseph M. Darst urging him to use the "sternest measure" to uphold his authority and maintain the pools on a non-segregated basis.

"Your administration cannot abdicate to a gang of children," the wire, signed by Roy Wilkins, acting NAACP secretary, said. "We strongly urge you to close all pools until all agree to abide by your order," Mr. Wilkins continued.

The wire cited the report that the "trouble was instigated by a small number of rebellious city employees." Mr. Wilkins, on behalf of the NAACP, commended Mayor Darst for issuing the non-segregation order for playgrounds and swimming pools, adding that the Association "feels emphatically that the order should not be rescinded on account of the actions of a small group of boys."
