WORKER CRUSHED IN SUBWAY

BROOKLYN (AP)—HARRY A. Nelson, 48, never reached work Saturday morning. Only a short time after he had left home, his family was notified by a message that he had met his death under the grinding wheels of a subway train in downtown Brooklyn.

SISTER GARY SAYS

At this season of the year the message of resurrection should be proclaimed with force, written medicine on the hearts of men and women everywhere. Don't forget Calvary. When the seven words spoken by the Master brought suffering and dying it also brought redemption and resurrection, yes it happened on Calvary. The greatest drama ever staged, its theme, "The Supreme Sacrifice of Love."

THE SEVEN WORDS

The first scene opens abruptly, in an atmosphere of tension. They are of a man to a cross. They? (Then Jesus Me?) We know they were the offer of Pilate and the Jews. In the depths to which the darkness of a cry of agony, a curse, a Redeemer was going to expressing of anger, coming from those terrible, the bitterness of his love for lost and loved ones? No!—a sweet prayer, concerned sinners.

The awful tension is broken by the cry of "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." The fifth word: "I thirst." Action. The scene changes: two other climaxes, terse, human, temporal—crosses come into prominence bearing banners typical of the two classes of humanity—the lost, ignorant and impudent; the saved, believing and beseeching. "Lead, Redeemer, me!" See the great reward of even a last-minute repentance: "TODAY SHALT THOU BE WITH ME IN PARADISE."

The two crosses fade out, the spotlight illuminates a group at the foot of the central cross—several women, one man—"Woman, behold thy son! Behold thy mother!" Twice blessed Mary! Twice blessed John!—honored with the solicitude of a loving Son, with the trust of a loving friend—as well as with the love of a Saviour.

The curtain. Let exegetes and theologians debate the significance of "My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken Me?" We know they were the offer of Pilate and the Jews. In the depths to which the darkness of a cry of agony, a curse, a Redeemer was going to expressing of anger, coming from those terrible, the bitterness of his love for lost and loved ones? No!—a sweet prayer, concerned sinners.
