her being molested over the telephone. Lawyer Bond had just made much of the fact that Mrs. Peyton had danced with a guest whom she did not know.
 Undertaker Allen is well known here. He is married to his third wife. He lost the first two through the divorce courts.

DEAN STRASSNER

The Rev. Strassner then accepted the call to pastorate of the Mount Zion Baptist Church, Charlotteville, Va., and after a year was given a leave of absence in order to take a $4,500 Fellowship granted by the John F. Slater Foundation for graduate study at Andover Newton Theological Institution, Boston. He received the degree of Master of Sacred Theology in 1932.
 He was chosen by the faculty of Andover Newton to deliver the class address at the graduation exercises, the only Negro who had received such honor. He returned to the Charlotteville Church and continued his ministry there for six years.
 After a highly successful pastorate in Virginia he accepted the position as Dean of Religion at Bishop College, Marshall, Texas, in 1938, and served in that capacity for six years. While at Bishop College, Dean Strassner was given the technical duties of the President of the institution while President Joseph J. Rhoads was away on several months' leave to do service for the Federal Government.
 Dean Strassner came to Shaw University to assume the duties as Dean of the School of Religion in 1944.
 The new Acting President has done several summers of further graduate study at Union Theological Seminary and Teachers College, Columbia University, and is a candidate for the Doctorate in Religious Education.
 The Founder's Day observance at Shaw was also marked by other significant features. Dr. M. L. Perry, founder of the Leary-Perry Maternity Hospital, Fayetteville, N. C., and a graduate of the Leonard Medical School, Shaw University, class of 1908, delivered the principal address.
 Dr. Robert P. Daniel was also present and brought words of greeting.
 Dr. P. A. Bishop, President of the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina, pledged the continued support of the Convention to Shaw's program of Christian education. Shaw University was organized in 1865 by Henry Martin Tupper, and is the oldest church-related college for Negroes with a continued existence as a single institution.

PROJECT NAMED

of the decision of the local Housing group to honor the memory of her husband, Mrs. R. L. McDougald, his widow said.
 "This note comes to me in the form of a grateful surprise because it was always my husband's opinion that the future of our commonwealth depended upon the people living in comfort and wholesome environment."

"To this end he spent the majority of his time planning developments and promoting thrift and home ownership. My family and I are very thankful for this recognition."

A housing project similar to the one named for Mr. McDougald is being named in honor of Dr. W. P. Few late president of Duke University.

BROKE UP MEET

Manning even tried to give one church member, one Willie Robertson, an earlier trip to the Golden Gates. It was brought out in the trial before Judge Boone.

A "not guilty" verdict was handed down but a charge of assault with a deadly weapon on the person of Mr. Robertson, however.

It is generally felt in this vicinity that the "mooners" bench will once again be filled and that the glorious strains of the choir member's high soprano will again be heard at the next services now that Luther Manning has paid his debt to society and to Newsome Grove Church.

COP TITLE

trophy, having defeated Gastonia's high school 2 to 0 in 1949 for its possession.

In Friday's championship game, the Little Blues out-played their opponents in every department.
 Starting for the locals were Charles Evans, Willie Barnes, Thomas Thomas, Nathaniel Little and Isaac Winfield, sparkplugs of the Washington High offense during the entire season. After a scoreless first period, the Little Blues stars, Evans and Little collaborated on a freak play which netted the initial Raleigh touch-down.

Following a spirited downhill drive by the Blues, Evans broke into the clear on the Price 3 yard line, only to lose the ball by fumbling. The ball was immediately recovered by his teammate, Little, however, and a score was made. Evans ran through the line for the extra point, racking up a half-time score of 7 to 0, Raleigh.

The third period was also exciting, with the opposing team trying valiantly to break opposing defenses. In the final period, Willie Barnes, a second string Washington High School fullback, displayed true championship form as he engineered a running and passing attack which advanced the Blues from deep into their own territory to within seven yards of the Devils' end zone. From that point, Barnes again took upon himself the brunt of the attack, leaving his way over for the final touchdown. Barnes' running also provided the conversion to set the final score at 14 to 0.

The Raleigh win over Salisbury was the first in three starts. In two other state championship matches, the local team has been defeated by the Devils.

OUTPLAYED FOES

In order to win the championship this season, the Little Blues were compelled to outplay the Price eleven in all divisions. The local scored 14 first downs as compared to six for the visitors. A total of 280 yards was gained by Washington's running and passing attack, while a paltry total of 116 was racked up by Price. Of Price's gains, only 87 yards were garnered through the air as the visitors completed six of 19 passes attempted. The locals completed three of nine attempted passes for a total of 32 yards.

legiate teams.

The St. Augustine's College team, which has received a bid to oppose the Marylanders, is considered top favorite to accept the honor.

The St. Augustine's team, finishing one of its most brilliant seasons in two decades with a win over the high-powered Bluefield State College team last week, is considered one of the greatest improved elevens in the Colored Inter-collegiate Athletic Association Under Coach Roy D. Moore. This season, the Saints have garnered a record of seven wins and one defeat. If the Saints do not accept the bid to play in the Raleigh game December 8, the possibility stands that the A. and T. College crew will accept the offer, pending the outcome of the Aggies' Thanksgiving Day CIAA championship battle against the North Carolina College team at Durham.

Regardless of the outcome of the Thursday game, the CAROLINIAN learned, the Aggies still figure as a possible competitor in the first Capital City bowl tilt.

The North Carolina College team at Durham is also being considered for the "home team" role in the fray. It is doubtful, however, that the Durham team will be able to accept the bid, the team's having already been offered a bid to appear in the Orange Blossom Classic game at Miami, Fla., on December 2. The NCC Athletic Department has yet to accept or reject the Florida bid publicly. The Quabbin Fernie team is also being considered.

OFF CONFERENCE

The game to be played here on December 8 necessarily is an off-conference clash, because of failure of the Maryland team to secure membership in any of the Negro collegiate conferences. Because of this failure, the Maryland team has been compelled to seek opponents wherever and whenever possible. Two of the Maryland games this season have been interracial, the others being played against CIAA, Midwestern and Southern conference teams.
 Even with this irregularity the team has been able to go undefeated for some 28 games.

A conference is scheduled this week end between representatives of colleges offered bids for the local bowl classic and the committee organized to sponsor the game. A decision as to the opposing team will be made during that meeting.

UNDERTAKER FINED

to her attorney and police over "persistent telephone and telegraph messages" from the undertaker, whom she claimed sought to date her.

However, Solicitor Cicero Yow and the plaintiff's attorney, Emmett Bellamy, had Allen re-arrested and charged in court for disturbing the plaintiff over the telephone, by making improper advances toward her.

A city police officer corroborated Mrs. Peyton's testimony about arranging the trap. Also, he gave evidence of statements made by Allen at the scene of the meeting which linked him with the phone calls.

Well-dressed and equally well-groomed, Mrs. Peyton presented her evidence in rapid-fire order. Apparently, she made a good impression on the court. She was not broken in her insistence that Allen sought to go with her, as he said the undertaker told her that both she and he were unhappy. (Allen is married.) She added that he said they might make a good "twosome." Mrs. Peyton said she consulted her lawyer who put her in contact with police.

Mrs. Peyton admitted under cross-examination by Attorney Robert R. Bond, who is Wilmington's lone Negro lawyer and who represented Allen, that she had been divorced from her husband and remarried to him. Bond did not persist in this line of questioning, and he did not break down the reputation of the plaintiff.

Taking the stand in his defense, the portly mortician — who had no character witnesses presented in his behalf — stated that he had met Mrs. Peyton at his funeral home, where he also lives. There was a party, he added, with "drinking, dancing and snappy jokes." He said he danced with Mrs. Peyton and that they exchanged pleasantries. He denied sending the telegram, making the calls, or assisting Mrs. Peyton.

Allen said he was on his way to see Mrs. Peyton when he saw Mrs. Peyton on the corner and gave her a lift. When Solicitor Yow interrupted to ask if it were not unusual to turn a car around to take someone home, Allen replied that in his profession one "must" give rides.

Mrs. Peyton admitted being in Allen's home, but she said she went there with her husband and Allen's sister by chance, after having been given a lift by Allen's sister, who instead of stopping in front of the Peyton's home continued to the funeral home of her brother. She said she discovered a party was underway and that she went home to change into more suitable attire. She said she did not dance with Allen as he claimed but that she did dance with one of his friends whom she did not know but whom she accepted as one of the party. She did not drink, she said, but stated that the men did. Her earlier had declared that she drank.

Judge Peschau said it was no harm for Mrs. Peyton to dance with Allen, if she did, and he said that if she had danced or had talked with him, this was no excuse for
