

EDITORIAL VIEWPOINT

TWO KINDS OF TEXANS, AND QUITE DIFFERENT

One after the other in the same column of a daily newspaper we have read recently a sharp contrast in two types of thinking about the Negro in white people in the South. Both reports came from the same state, Texas.

of Jews and would agree to teach certain racial doctrines, and had his offer turned down by more than one of them.

word. If they are religious they are quite distorted. They are certainly not educational, in any good sense of that word. The court could hardly have decided otherwise than it did.

REHABILITATION CENTER WAS OVERDUE

The CAROLINIAN welcomes the news that a youth center for young Negro honor grade prisoners, first offenders, has been opened. The news-story of the announcement pointed out that such a center for Negroes to correspond to the one opened at Camp Butler several years ago for white prisoners of the same type has been "in the discussion stage" for two years.

tion, to begin work. The lag between the time various new services and opportunities are made available for whites and for Negroes is something not easy to explain on any logical basis; yet southern states and localities resent any implication that any difference is made in the treatment of the races with respect to such services and facilities.

ilities in every respect for the care of the Negro inmate, are other pressing needs. The lag still shows and there is lots of slack yet to be taken up.

SECTIONALISM SHOULD BE FORGOTTEN

The syndicated columnist, Thomas L. Stokes, in a recent issue of his column expresses the opinion that the southern conservative wing of the Democratic party is trying to control that party.

would run party affairs. "He means the Southern wing," says Mr. Stokes, "which is dominant in the party in Congress, as he revealed by saying the party will look to Senator Russell for leadership."

votes Governor Stevenson got on a program which the Southern conservatives take issue still.

THEY NEVER GIVE HARRY CREDIT

Mr. Truman's good sportsmanship, and much more important, his playing the good of his country in these perilous times ahead of personal feelings, has not received much open recognition by those who have regarded him as a dhormed devil.

government at once, and to his invitation to Eisenhower himself to come in and get the low-down personally from Truman and his advisers.

Harry had his faults, and undoubtedly still has them. Some of them are pretty big. But to imply that the man can do nothing right and that whenever he does seem to be doing a wise, big or right thing there is some trick in it, is unnecessary, unfair, and ungracious.

BIG BUSINESS TAKES OVER THE CABINET

Someone has said referring to President-elect Eisenhower's cabinet appointments, that if we don't have government run on a businesslike basis for the next four years, it will be because the typical American business man can't bring it about.

ture, have had careers which definitely associate them with big business, and the key ones with big business.

The chance is their due, and we hope they can make good use of the opportunity they have. We also think the American common people would do well to be on the alert to see that we do not have a government too partial to big interests, to the disadvantage of the consumer, the worker, and the rank and file of Americans in general.

The real trouble about the Bible is not its version but the lack of volition on the part of men to carry out its precepts.

VERSION VERSUS VOLITION

The current outbreak of prison riots is lamentable to say the least. They amount to an open rebellion against the laws of the land.
The real trouble about the Bible is not its version but the lack of volition on the part of men to carry out its precepts.

CHICAGO, Ill. (UPI)—James A. Shepard's 'This and That' column in the Carolinian has been a source of much interest to Negroes in the South.

LEADERSHIP ON THE VILLAGE AND THE RURAL LEVELS
Desirable leadership is a rare thing, anywhere but most especially in the foregoing true in our villages and rural areas.
