FARMER BUILDING BARN FOR GRADE A FARM IN WAKE CTY.

RALEIGH — Mark Dunn, farmer of Route 1, Raleigh, is in the process of constructing a corn shed and milk room to increase his Grade A dairy operations, reports W. C. Davenport, Negro county agent for the Extension Service.

For some time he has used the barn of neighbors to house his eight cows, now in production.

To help cut down the extra work caused by having to use someone else's facilities, Farmer Dunn enlisted the aid of State College Extension Service agricultural engineers and F.S.A. representatives to advise him in constructing the barn.

Last summer he drilled a well in order to insure a good flow of water for his Grade A dairy. He has also improved his milk shed, making it more convenient for milking operations.

Dunn expects several young animals to come into production soon increasing the supply of milk he sells to a local dairy.

SHAW SPEECH CLASS— The Special Speech Classes which were organized this semester by Mrs. Beulah W. Gallwey (shown standing at blackboard on picture) instructor in English and Speech, are proving to be one of the most interesting program innovations at Shaw University. Although the University offers speech courses in its curriculum, there is a great need for non-credit classes designed to give more attention to individual speech problems, than can be afforded in regular classes. These classes, composed of students desiring to overcome speech defects and improve their patterns, attend voluntarily, receive no grades or credits, rarely miss class and even meet at odd hours for extra practice. Students who find it inconvenient to meet with the group make appointments for individual help and practice. In addition to making group and individual recordings of their own, they listen to recordings of literary artists reading and interpreting the sounds of language. Mrs. Gallwey hopes that eventually, a complete Speech Center will be established at Shaw.

Dr. Poteat Heard In Talk Before St. Aug's Audience

RALEIGH, N. C. — "Most rights are basically human rights, we all of which is the Tenth Commandment Dr. E. M. Poteat, pastor of the Pullen Memorial Baptist Church, said in his address as the principal speaker for Human Rights Day in the College Chapel at St. Augustine's College Wednesday morning.

Introduced by Dr. Harold Trigg, president of the College, who explained we must ever keep before us the concept of Human Rights, Dr. Poteat listed the three requisite of our modern order — peace, justice and freedom. Because peace is a prerequisite to justice and justice is a prerequisite to freedom.

"If you reverse the commandment, 'Thou shalt not kill,' the speaker explained, 'You will be saying every man has a right to live. If you reverse the commandment, 'Thou shalt not steal' you will be saying every man has a right to personal property. If you reverse the commandment, 'Thou shalt not commit adultery' you will be saying every man has a right to his own inner purity and that nobody has the right to violate the integrity of the individual. If you reverse the commandment, 'Thou shalt not bear false witness,' you will be saying every man has a right to his own dispositions, the right to witnesses before the law, and the right to tell the truth about any man brought before the courts."

CHORAL CLUB PRESENTED IN YULETIDE SING

RALEIGH, N. C. — The Saint Augustine's College Choral Club, under direction of Mrs. Romaine Simmons Lambert, presented its annual Christmas program in Tucker Hall at 4:00 Sunday afternoon.

Included on the program were five Christmas carols from distant lands: "Alleluia", Polish 16th century; "Three Flemish Kings," Flemish; and "Sing Ca Little Child," Welsh (17th century).

Following the intermission were student interpretations of excerpts from Handel's "Messiah".

"Every Valley Shall Be Exalted," by Nathaniel Moore, "O Thou That Tellest Good Tidings to Zion," Doris Lynch and Chorus; "There were Shepherds Abiding in the Fields," Edith Alston; "And Suddenly there Was with the Angel", Yvonne Mitchell; "Glory to God," the Chorus; "Then Shall the Eyes of the Blind Be Opened," Eloise Morris; "Come Unto Me," Yvonne Mitchell; "I Know that My Redeemer Liveth," Edith Alston; and "And the Glory of the Lord," the Chorus.

The Invocation was offered by Dean C. Gray, and Leon Gerald Simmons was the accompanist.

FONDNESS FOR CORN PROVES DOWN - FALL

GOLDSBORO — Edward Quinn and Obedian Wooten, Saulston Township residents were in Wayne County jail last weekend charged with stealing six bags of corn from R. M. Blake of Saulston who brought the charges against the two after they attempted to sell the corn at Goldsboro Milling Company.

Blake told officers that he had missed corn for some time and became suspicious. Last week, after more corn was missing, he began a search and found it hidden in the woods. He kept an eye on it, he said, until Quinn and Wooten picked it up, then followed them to the milling company and notified officers. Deputy Sheriff Roy Pierce made the arrest.

Important Posts on Wake Dimes March Drive Filled

RALEIGH — Two important posts in the Wake County March of Dimes were filled Tuesday with the appointment of Dr. Earl Gregg, Jr. and Wright T. Dixon, Jr. as co-chairmen of the Wake County Campaign. Both are active workers in the Raleigh Junior Chamber of Commerce, which became the polio crash fighter.

Dr. Gregg is a veteran of World War II, and a graduate of the University of North Carolina. He is married to the former Carolyn R. Brewer of Raleigh.

Dixon is also a UNC and graduate of Duke and the University of North Carolina. Mrs. Dixon is the former Frances Ryan of Goldsboro, a former swimming champion.

N. C. Cotton Farmer Gets A Higher Yield

MT. SILVER — By taking care of his land and treading gently fertilized for his cotton, Mr. Harrell of Mt. Silver got more than bales off one and a half acres this year, reports State Extension Agent R. E. Jones.

In each cultivated field, Mr. Harrell plants another acre with only of cotton just to see what could happen if he skimped on fertilizer. Using only 700 pounds compared with 1,400 on the plot he got a yield of only a little over one bale.

County Agent S. T. Lloyd, who assisted Mr. Harrell in carrying out the demonstration, says the farmer and many of his neighbors now add an adequate amount of commercial fertilizer.

COLLEGE CHOIR PRESENTS CAROL FETE AT CHURCH

The Saint Augustine's College Choral Club, directed by Miss Gerald Simmons, presented an organ concert of Christmas music at the West Raleigh Presbyterian Church at 7:30 Sunday evening.

The musical numbers all of which were accompanied by a pipe organ, delighted the appreciative audience, included "Lo All Mortal Flesh Keep Silence" by Holst; Franck's "150th Psalm"; "Gesu Bambino" by Yon; and various Christmas carols; and ending with "Hallelujah" from "The Messiah" by Handel.
