Fayetteville Landmark Shaken By Explosives

BY ALEXANDER BARNES
FAYETTEVILLE — Cherished by few and hated by many, the last relic of the day which all demagogic Americans would like to forget, "Ye Olde Market House" which stands in the center of the historic Scotch Highland town and the object of a yet undetermined explosive in the early hours, Sunday, October 23rd.

White Man Shoots Negro Over Turkeys

NEW BRUNSWICK — Carl Bell, 34 years old, of Carter County, turkey farmer, was jailed here last Friday afternoon in the shooting of Albert Pinkney, his 21-year-old black neighbor.

Those who made the most recent attempt to blow it down, the building is about 2 1/2 miles and while most of Fayetteville was sleeping, planted a substance of an explosive nature at or near one of the main supports, located at the northwest corner. The blast broke windows, shook walls and almost tore through the massive brick support at street level.

Many persons were awakened by the blast and were at a loss to explain what had happened. Many windows in nearby buildings were broken and glass was scattered in houses, a block away. City officials, who hastened to the scene, said that no considerable damage had been done and that the old structure was none the worse due to the blast.

One minister related that he was in the midst of his Sunday sermon and the blast distracted him so still he had to wait until morning to complete it. There were many and sundry rumors. There were those who said a note had been left reading "We missed it this time, but we will get it the next time." There were others who said a vengeful soldier who had been knocked down near there, during the day, was giving vent to his feeling.

Armistice Day Recalls True Basis Of Peace

By Bishop Fulton J. Sheen

ARMISTICE DAY is a holiday dedicated to peace and international order. The basic moral principle of this international order is: The world is one because it was made by one Lord and is governed by His moral law. All men are one because God made man. To unite men in the peace we seek there must be something outside men, just as to pack a bag one must be outside the bag. A moral law outside of nations to which all nations can appeal, and to which they must submit even when the decision goes against them, is the Bishop Sheen only sound basis of world peace. That is why we say there will never be "one world" until we all learn to pray "Our Father, who art in Heaven."

IN THAT CASE, there would be no way to decide whether communist atrocities were wrong or right, except by a war in which might decides what is right. To all who have eyes, it should be as clear as the stones in the road that the day we make a Godless world, we make also a peaceless world. We have had political expressions of the moral law in the Atlantic Charter, in the Four Freedoms, and in these magnificent words of our government, which make me feel proud of being an American: "THE UNITED STATES will continue to stand by these principles because of the conviction of the American people, that unless the doctrine in which these principles are inherent once again governs the relations between nations—the rule of reason, of justice, and of law—the basis of modern civilization cannot be preserved." Dostoevsky, the Russian novelist, foretold of his own country, that after it has passed through a diabolical anti-God stage, it would sit at the feet of Christ and learn His gospel. On this Armistice Day we look to the dawn of that day wherein nations can live in one world because there is one moral law and one Lord.
