

Research Teams Integrate As Medics Stage Confab

Meharry & Vanderbilt 'Profs' Work Together

CHICAGO (ANP) — One of the most important things in evidence at the American Medical Association meeting here last week was the cooperation in research projects between Negro and white doctors.

A joint project by staff members of Vanderbilt University School of Medicine and Meharry Medical College, both of Nashville, Tenn., was one of the best scientific exhibits on display at the AMA convention.

The project, entitled "After Myocardial Infarction: The Functional Circulatory Consequences," dealt with studies of patients who had been stricken with coronary heart disease in the Nashville area.

Some of the patients were attended by Doctors George E. Moseley, Con O. T. Ball and F. T. Billings Jr. of Vanderbilt, and other patients were studied by Doctors George B. Brothers, R. S. Anderson and

J. Thomas of Meharry.

The studies were made jointly by these two groups of doctors and a joint report and exhibit constructed based on their common experiences.

A second exhibit on "Gastroenterology and Proctology" was the product of an interracial team from Cook County Hospital and Provident Hospital in Chicago. The study was made by Doctors Leonilda H. Berry, a staff member of both hospitals; Jonas Adamavicius, a research fellow at Cook County hospital; Robert Schoop, a resident at Provident; and Registered Nurse Juanita Purnell.

Their study consisted of observations on the stomach secretions of 99 patients with different types of ulcer and in 30 normal individuals over a long period of time. The relationship of the character of the gastric juice to the severity of the ulcer and to the rapidity of healing was demonstrated.

At the meeting of the American Gastroscopic Society, which met at the same time of the AMA convention, a paper was presented by Dr. Leonilda Berry entitled "Multiple Positions Technique in 3,500 Gastroscopic Examinations."

Throughout the convention, outstanding doctors from various medical centers and hospitals in the United States demonstrated new techniques and new instruments.

Among the many noted Negro doctors present at the AMA meet were Dr. Peter Marshall Murry of New York City; Dr. C. Austin Whittier of San Antonio, Texas; Dr. T. R. M. Howard of Mound Bayou, Miss., president of the National Medical Association; Dr. W. Montague Cobb, dean of the Howard University Medical School; Dr. U. G. Dalley, noted Chicago surgeon.

Also Doctors E. K. McDonald, Taft C. Rains, Walter S. Grant, Roscoe Giles, T. M. Smith, H. F. Bouyer and James Lowell Hall, all of Chicago.

MISS PERRY WEDS — Miss Waveline Sylvania Perry was married to the Rev. Herbert Edwards recently. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Leviester Perry of Wendell. The bride groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Edwards of Laurinburg. The couple spoke their nuptial vows before the Rev. J. J. Johnson, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Fairmont, at the Shiloh Baptist Church, Maxton, where the groom is pastor. Both are graduates of Shaw University, Raleigh.

'We Made A Mistake,' Miss Lucy Tells 200

MONTCLAIR, N. J. (ANP) — "We made a mistake in filing charges that the University of Alabama officials attempted to prevent me from entering the school last Fall by promoting mob violence."

Miss Autherine Lucy made the statement last week in an address to 200 persons at the Trinity Presbyterian church here, adding:

"The charges were made in emotionally intensified circumstances. It was a mistake we made and as a result I'm not a student at Alabama now. However, I feel the trustees did not do all they could to prevent incidents." She said "no," she didn't think the University was justified in her expulsion.

Bus Problem Studied; Boycotters Await A 'Definite Court Ruling'

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (ANP) — The appeal would automatically suspend the injunction pending a high court decision.

Negro attorneys who won the legal battle said that they were temporarily sure of their next move.

Attorneys for the City of Montgomery, Montgomery City Lines, Inc., and the Alabama Public Commission said they are prepared to submit written suggestions on how the formal order should be put into effect.

The judges gave the attorneys two weeks to prepare briefs after handing down the integration decision. U. S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. said the time to be required in forming the desegregation order is not known.

Judge Johnson said that either side can appeal the court's action on the question of a stay of execution pending appeal.

If the panel refuses to set the integration order aside temporarily, and orders city buses desegregated immediately, the city or state can ask the Supreme Court to reverse before the case goes to the higher court on its merits, the judge said.

Specialists Featured At FSTC Confab

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. — Among the most popular courses in progress during the current summer session at the Fayetteville State Teachers College is the Workshop in Elementary Science with an enrollment of 40 teachers in service drawn from five states—North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Georgia, and Tennessee. The interest in the work of the course has been considerably enhanced by the recent appearance of four persons with special competence in given areas.

They included Mrs. Roscoe C. Hauser, bird specialist, Raleigh, North Carolina; Dr. Henry A. Shannon, advisor in Science and Mathematics, Department of Public Instruction, Raleigh, North Carolina; Dr. Dewey E. Large, Assistant Curator, Educational Branch, Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, Oak Ridge, Tennessee; and Dallas E. Maddron, Specialist, Nuclear Science, Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

Some major units being pointed up in the Workshop are the operation of science equipment, the employment of visual aids, the maturation of the solar system, and the phenomenon of weather. The work is punctuated by frequent field trips.

Instructors from the college Area of Science and Mathematics include Dr. Henry M. Eldridge, Mae H. Seabrook, Cynthia Bond, and Richard P. Robinson. Other instructors are Eula M. Sanders of the Area of Household Arts and Helen T. Chick of the Area of Music and Fine Arts. Dr. Henry H. Eldridge, Chairman of the Area of Science and Mathematics, is supervisor of the group.

UN Atmosphere Noted At NCC Health Confab

DURHAM — The Summer Health Education Workshop at North Carolina College last week had a United Nations atmosphere.

With such names as Selin El-Ka Fraway of Egypt, Honorio D. Fasion and Leonid A. Jimenez of the Philippines, Adele J. West of the British West Indies, Dr. Prachoom Indrambarva and Songsi Bhanykasen of Thailand, and Barbara MacLachlan of New Guinea, there's reason to find out why they came to NCC.

For several years now, health educators at NCC, aided by grants from the Southern Education Foundation, have been conducting a program designed primarily to improve the "total health situation" in the Southern region. So outstanding has been the quality of the work that it has attracted nationwide attention in health education circles.

As a result, many foreign students, after finishing their prescribed courses of study in health education at postgraduate level, are often advised to look in on the NCC program before they return to their own homes.

The NCC program is under the general direction of Mrs. Ida J. Gaudin who has had the cooperation of health educators at the University of North Carolina, notably Dr. Lucy S. Morgan, university health education professor who is acting chairman of the NCC unit, and health authorities throughout the state.

The six foreign students named above have been among the observers of this summer's work at NCC.
