7th PTA Leadership School Is A Success

GREENSBORO — The seventh annual PTA Leadership School of the Seventh District of the North Carolina Council of Parent-Teachers and Teachers' Associations was held last Saturday at A&W College.

Conducted by the parent-teacher leaders of the district, the school was held at A&W College, Greensboro, N. C.

Dr. W. H. Robinson, professor of physics, is director of the institute.

He told the group that the function of leadership in the PTA is becoming increasingly complex as the growing problems in education become more acute.

He warned that the education of children in America requires first hand and active participation, and that the parent-teacher organization which will help both the parent and teacher to contribute more effectively in developing tomorrow's citizens.

courageously.

He spoke at the opening session held in the auditorium of the Blueford Library. Other persons appearing on that program included: Dr. Wainmoin T. Gibbs, president of the college, who delivered the welcome address and C. E. Dean, teacher-trainer at the college, under whose direction the institute was held. Mrs. Dean is president of the Seventh District.

The afternoon session featured group discussions on problems affecting PTA workers on: administrative problems, program planning and evaluation, setting annual goals, budget and finance, citizenship and legislation, room representatives workshop, PTA publications, training new officers, publicity committees and training for pre-school PTA workers.

Omegas Honor Love And Moultrie

CHARLESTON, S. C. — The members of the Sixth District Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, comprising North and South Carolina, in the final session of the annual meeting gave plaques to Bishop Edgar A. Love and Attorney H. Carl Moultrie for service rendered the Fraternity.

Bishop Love was one of the founders of the Greek letter Fraternity and was cited for the service he has rendered during the life of the group. Attorney Moultrie was honored for the service he has rendered as the National Executive Secretary.

The citations were made at a fellowship breakfast, held in the cafeteria of the Baptist School, held Sunday morning. Bishop Love was the principal speaker and told of how the Fraternity was founded by Frank Coleman, Oscar J. Cooper, Ernest Just and himself, amid obstacles on the campus of Howard University in 1911. He told those present to be ever mindful of the fact that the Fraternity was founded to develop friendship among men who had become attached to each other by a common bond. He extolled the virtues of the Fraternity and asked that even though scholarship was one of the principles upon which it was founded, it should always be remembered that friendship was the cornerstone upon which it was built.

J. Alston Atkins, retiring District Representative, presented the plaques and extolled the work of both of the men. He lauded the work and the character of Bishop Love and told of the fine traits of Moultrie had instilled into the members by his untiring efforts and keen judgment. Both of the men thanked the Fraternity for its kind consideration and rededicated themselves to work harder for a bigger and better friendship for all who ventured to accept the tenets and to strive to use their influence to aid in making mankind more conscious of the virtue of friendship.
