ROADS TO SURVIVAL

A line on a drawing board today may someday save your life. That line might be one of America's roads to survival.

part of the $1,000-mile National System of Interstates and Defense Highways that will be carefully laid out over the continent within the next 12 years.

THIS INTEGRATED $38,000,000,000 network — the world's greatest public works project — will include freeways running from the heart of major cities to the outskirts and beyond. Over these roads, the millions who live and work in cities could seek the safety of distance from a nuclear bomb blast if adequate warning of impending attack were given.

In normal times, restless Americans drive 550,000,000,000 miles a year in private autos. Families must also rely on cars to flee from danger in the event of civil defense emergency.

The automobile is a rolling home in an emergency, the Federal Civil Defense Administration points out. You can eat and sleep in it, keep warm and dry, receive vital instructions by radio, drive out of danger areas, and even get some shelter against blast or fallout.
