"Term Too Light:"

Hammer Slayer Gets 50 Years; Public Criticizes Sentence

CHICAGO (AP)—A 17-year-old white youth here was sentenced to 50 years imprisonment for the brutal hammer slaying last March of a Negro high school honor student and an immediate expression of discontent was heard from the public in view of the light sentence.

Joseph Schwartz drew the sentence after waiving a jury trial and being tried by Chief Justice Wilbert F. Crowley of Criminal court. Schwartz had earlier admitted the brutal and unprovoked slaying of Alvin Palmer as he stood on a street corner awaiting a bus. The dead boy's father Elijah Palmer, immediately termed the sentence "light" in comparison to the nature of the crime.

Eleven other whites indicted along with Schwartz on murder charges in the case are expected to go on trial this week.

Schwartz' fifty year sentence means that he can be eligible for parole after serving 25 years, according to officials. State Attorney Benjamin Adamowski assailed Judge Crowley's verdict as being very lax. He stated, that in view of a recent case where 110 years was meted out to the perpetrator, "which in degree of viciousness and premeditation in no way compares with the unprovoked killing of an innocent boy, the verdict in this case shocks every fiber of my being."

The 17-year-old white youth testified last week in his own defense, claiming he had drunk a bottle of wine and a bottle of beer and remembered nothing about killing the 17-year-old Negro honor student at Farragut high school here.

Meanwhile, another teenager indicted for murder along with Schwartz in the case told Chief Justice Wilbert F. Crowley's Criminal court that he heard Schwartz say he was going to get a "nigger" on the evening when young Palmer was bludgeoned to death with a hammer at 53th and Kedzie Avenue.

James Adams, 17, made the statement after Schwartz was granted a separate trial from the other whites by Judge Crowley. Trial of the others, who accompanied Schwartz in two cars to the scene of the crime, will be held later.

Young Adams told the court of getting into a car with Schwartz and five other boys after hearing that the group was out to get a Negro. He said he saw Schwartz with a hammer in his hand when he left the car at 53th and Kedzie Ave., after seeing young Palmer standing on the corner waiting for a bus.

Adams said Schwartz told him when he returned to the car, "I got one."

Young Palmer's father, Elijah, and a witness, Wilmore Johnson, 41, testified also at the trial. Johnson said he witnessed the attack as he, too, waited for a bus on the corner, but added that he could not positively identify the youth who attacked the boy.

Johnson said Palmer's attacker gave him a dirty look and threatened him with the hammer after beating Palmer.

Korean Student Attending Bennett College New Bride

GREENSBORO — Miss Young Tack Lee, of Seoul, Korea, a junior at Bennett College, became the bride of Jim Woo Park, also of Seoul, in a ceremony performed last Sunday at the Korean Methodist Church on Riverside Drive, New York City.

Among Miss Lee's bridesmaids was Miss Ruth Anderson, of Philadelphia, her roommate. The newlyweds, who were childhood sweethearts in Korea, came to the United States at the same time.

Mr. Park a senior in diplomatic science at Brevard (N. C.) College, plans graduate study and Mrs. Park will return in September to Bennett where she is a general home economics major.

She designed and in one week-end, made her own Princess-style wedding gown, which contained 11 yards of white tulle over 11 yards of white taffeta, and also made her wedding veil of white nylon, trimmed in lace. Mrs. Park is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sur Hi Lee, of Seoul.
