Congressman Charles C. Diggs Marks NAACP Meet At Detroit

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following are excerpts from an address by Charles C. Diggs, Jr. of Michigan, delivered before the NAACP Convention, Detroit, Mich., Friday, June 28. It is particularly appropriate that this address is being held here in Detroit, for Henry Ford is responsible for the first migration of Negroes to Detroit. His fabulous announcement that he would pay his laborers $6.00 a day, that era rocked American industry, sent Negroes to this city by the thousands, and today we are able to trace much of our progress to that start.

from an age that has died to an age struggling to be born. Any reasonable person can see in the NAACP and other freedom fighters not belligerency but a determined determination to stand fast against the barbarian at the gate and to explore patiently every pathway to racial peace and security. Even its enemies should be eternally grateful to the NAACP for absorbing the emotional impact generated among Negroes by the unreasonable prejudice of the American people. Go almost any day in any direction outside America and you can hear shouts and snorts coming from those who have rebelled against their adversaries for far less than the deprivations to which we are subjected. There are smoldering fires in the bosom of many American Negroes and intensely passionate feeling that could be fanned into a fire threatening racial harmony in nearly every corner of this country.

In some areas, it is caused by the misuse of force and authority by the local police department. In some areas, it is discrimination in employment. In some areas, it is discrimination in public accommodations; in some areas, it involves the right to vote; in some areas, it is economic reprisals or physical intimidation; in most areas, the housing problem is the point of aggravation—all these experiences like malignant cancer eat away at the core of human dignity, create frustrations and pressures and bitterness, especially among Negroes who have served in the Armed Forces to protect the principles of democracy. These are the seeds from whence a tree of hate can grow in Brooklyn, in Montgomery, in Los Angeles, or in Detroit. These are the seeds of hate that blossomed into the Mau Mau movement in Kenya, Africa, where black men in a fit of primitive race patriotism took up arms against white neighbors. Let those misguided individuals who would outlaw or restrict NAACP activities beware of the danger inherent in removing the Negro's muscle which this organization represents. Let them beware lest it might expose the Negro's sensitive nerves and drive him to secure his rights outside the peaceful methods traditionally employed by the NAACP. The new Negro is no longer afraid. The new Negro no longer rolls with laughter under the old mauling tree at Miss Charles's expressions. The new Negro, with the Supreme Court now committed to his heaven-rescued cause, bristles with the confidence of a champion. The new Negro is prepared to defend his gains whatever the cost may be.

CHARLOTTE — An altar of white gladioli, greenery and silver candelabra was the setting of the wedding in Johnson C. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Jenkins wore a gown of beige, imported Aiencon lace over pead de sole, with a sweetheart neckline trimmed with tridescant sequins. The sheath skirt with a widening panel of lace in the back fell from a molded bodice. She wore a hat of beige sequins, a white orchid corsage and white accessories.
