North Carolina's Choice Since 1919

OLIVET, Mich. (ANP)—Remember "Sugar Chile" Robinson, the boogie-woogie, piano-playing, seat-Sugar Chile, who, at the ripe old war years? Whatever happened to him?

Sugar Chile, who, at the ripe old age of 19, quit the entertainment business in favor of a college education, is now a pre-med student at Olivet College here and wants to make a comeback in the public eye as "Dr. Frank Robinson."

Two years ago it was that Sugar Chile walked out of the entertainment spotlight with, at his young age, a veritable fortune of $100,000 in a trust fund to become a man of medicine.

Before that for some nine or ten years, he had captivated audiences throughout the world with his somewhat unorthodox piano style. Truly a child prodigy, Sugar Chile could read at the age of two, and by the time he was three years old, could play most of the popular songs he had heard—but because of his very young years was reduced to striking the keys with his fists and elbows, because he wasn't strong enough to use his fingers.

At the age of six, he won an amateur talent contest, and that was the beginning of nine fruitful years in the entertainment world.

He played his last engagement at a Chicago night club in 1955, and then went after that college education he desired so much.

Seemingly unaffected by the heights to which he rose in his earlier life, Frank (and that happens to be his name) is studying hard to become a doctor. He still likes to pound out a little boogie now and then, but enjoys playing the ballads also.

The only thing which has not changed is Sugar Chile's size. He was small when a youngster, and now is only 4 feet 8 inches tall. He weighs less than 100 pounds.
