Bennett College Vesper Speaker:

“Modern Man Overlooks Jesus Christ,” Dr. Gordon W. Lovejoy Tells Audience

GREENSBORO — “Modern man as he seeks to overcome his fears, is overlooking one simple way — the way of Jesus Christ,” Dr. Gordon W. Lovejoy told the Bennett College vesper audience Sunday in Pfeiffer Chapel.

Dr. Lovejoy, professor of sociology at Guilford College, traced the fears of man from early history to the present to demonstrate that fear has always been present in man.

“Today,” he illustrated, “we live in fear of economic security, of atomic destruction, of new patterns in human relationships and in fear of not being successful — as judged by man-made standards. Because we live in fear, we are a bewildered people.”

Some people seek to allay their fears by plunging into a whirl of social activities, others turn to books which they hope will tell them how to find happiness and success, and still others turn to psychiatry or tranquilizing pills, the speaker declared.

“But these ways,” he explained, “are all ways of the flesh, and they will soon perish. But there is a way if we will follow the message of The Man of Galilee. By accepting Christ and by giving ourselves to him, we will find that peace which which sneers at the turned cheek with all understanding.”

Dr. Lovejoy cautioned his listeners, it asks, “Is it ethically expedient, however, that this will be no and not, “Is it morally right or a task because ours is a society wrong.”

Good milking practices can help control mastitis. Daily milking preparation time has been reduced from 3-1/2 hours just a few years ago to only about 1-1/2 hours at present.

MIXED VEGETABLES ARE VERSATILE

When you want to add color and interest to your fall menus, consider the virtues of quick-frozen mixed garden vegetables. The combination of art corn, green beans, carrots, peas and lima beans makes a colorful addition to a simple meat-and-potatoes meal. And what a joy to be able to serve a five-vegetable medley without the bother of preparing and cooking five separate vegetables!

What's more, the frozen mixed vegetables are extremely versatile. Marinate them in fancy French dressing and serve as a mixed vegetable salad, or add them to a gelatin mixture when you want a jellied salad. Serve them sometimes in a well-seasoned cream sauce, subtly flavored with grated cheese. These creamed vegetables, au gratin, poured over hot corn-bread squares or baking powder biscuits, make a pleasant luncheon dish.

For another interesting light meal, try the mixed vegetables cured and combined with Brussels sprouts. Serve them over fluffy white rice and with a selection of curry accompaniments — flaked coconut, chopped peanuts, chutney. Add a green salad and, perhaps, beaten biscuits to complete the meal.

METHOD: Sauté onion, garlic, curry powder and chili powder in shortening until onion is lightly browned.

Meanwhile cook mixed vegetables and Brussels sprouts as directed on packages. Drain, reserving liquid. Add hot vegetables and sprouts to curry mixture. Stir in liquid as needed for desired consistency. Fold in coconut. Serve hot over the rice. Makes 4 servings.

VA Doctors Begin Use Of Atomic Medicines

GEN. VA USES ATOMIC MED. — Veterans Administration doctors for the first time are using atomic medicine to probe the baffling mysteries of mental illness.

By tagging substances with radioactive phosphorus, researchers at the VA hospital in Sepulveda, Calif., are tracing the compounds through complex chemical and biological changes in the body for clues to the origin of mental disease.

The group is especially interested in amounts of a compound called serotonin in the central nervous system which may be involved in the action of tranquilizing drugs. They also are using atomic medicine to study the effects of drugs that are used in treatment of or research into mental illness.

Research with radioisotope tracers is providing new information that will lead to better understanding and treatment of hundreds of diseases, VA says. Cancer, heart conditions, and hardening of the arteries are among the main illnesses under investigation in the nationwide radioisotope program involving some 600 studies at 51 hospitals.
