North Carolina Sets Program For Retarded Kids

The recent North Carolina General Assembly enacted legislation under Senate Bill 131, Chapter 13-89, providing for a training program for mentally retarded children.

Mentally retarded children, often referred to as "the forgotten children," will be admitted to training centers on the basis of psychological, sociological, medical evaluations and other related factors.

Financing of the programs is to be provided by state appropriation and taxes levied by local authorities for this purpose.

State funds are to be allocated uniformly on a per capita basis, not to exceed $300 a year for each eligible child enrolled in the program.

A stronger feeder calf market is expected this fall than last.

Maintain egg production by keeping hens cool during hot summer weather.

If you plan to use the same to-bacco plant bed from year to year it's important that grass be controlled the year-round.

Alleged Killer Fingering

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — A former convict already under bond in the killing of one person and the wounding of two others last Aug. 12 during a jazz concert at Kiel Auditorium, was arrested last week and identified by a stabbing victim.

Police arrested Herbert Richardson as the stabbing suspect, and when taken to Homer G. Phillips hospital, he was identified by Henry Wright as the man who called him the night he was stabbed.

Wright told police Richardson was joined by two other men and the three chased him.
