Following Court Order:

Dallas School Suit Looms

DALLAS, Texas. — The U.S. Court of Appeals was asked last week to affirm a district court ruling which ordered the Dallas public schools to admit Negro students beginning with the 1957-58 mid-winter term. The district court on September 9, ordered the Dallas School Board to admit the Negro students of the mid-winter 1957-58 term "on the same terms and conditions as though they were members of the white race." The order was issued after the Court of Appeals had on two previous occasions overruled the district court's findings and sent the case back for further consideration. The Dallas School Board objected to the order setting forth the date for the end of segregation in its public schools and on October 5, appealed to the U.S. Court of Appeals on the grounds that the lower court abused its discretion. Attorneys for the Negro students, in a brief filed here Saturday, November 9, with U.S. Court of Appeals for the directing that court to afford the parties full hearing on the issues. The district court, after a full hearing, dismissed the case for the second time on the ground that the separate facilities were equal and crowded conditions required continued segregation. On the second appeal by attorneys for the Negro students, the Court of Appeals reversed the ruling and ordered the district court to enjoin the school board from requiring segregation of the races in any school under the supervision with all deliberate speed. The district court in compliance, ordered the end of segregation by the 1957-58 mid-winter term. Attorneys for the Negro students are Louis Bedford, C. B. Bunkley, Jr., W. J. Durham and U. S. State of Dallas, and Robert L. Carter and Thurgood Marshall of New York. Georgia Takes Cue From Little Rock; Asks Attorney General To Curb NAACP

ATLANTA (ANP) — The state of Georgia, following closely in the pattern set by Little Rock, recently is seeking curbs on the NAACP. The restrictive action is contained in a city ordinance requiring information on membership and finances from the NAACP and other organizations. A similar ordinance was passed by the Little Rock city council recently. Said to be primarily aimed at curbing the power of the civil rights organization in the integration battle, it resulted in several state and local officers being arrested for non-compliance with the edict. The Georgia ordinance was suggested to mayors throughout the state by Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook in a letter last week.

He said such an ordinance could be adopted under cities, power to levy business and occupation license taxes and to exempt non-profit, charitable or benevolent organizations. Many such organizations, said Cook, "are mere subterfuges." Cook's proposed ordinance would have the organizations concerned disclose the following information: 1—Names of officers, employees and agents of the group, and the salaries paid these. 2—Financial reports of income and disbursements. 3—Affidavits stating whether the organization is subordinate to a parent organization. The pro-segregation attorney general also suggested that the information be made a matter of public record.

Yes, We All Talk

By Marcus H. Boulware

CHRISTMAS SPEECH Once again it is almost time to celebrate Christmas, and during the Yuletide season there will be much speech-making and sermonizing. For years and years, men have preached about hearing angels, the wise men, the shepherds, the babe and so on. Why not give a new twist to old subjects, and inject new blood in old themes.

IDEA 1 — "The Spirit of Christmas" Builds speech around the characteristics of the Christmas spirit, namely: goodwill, peace of mind, body, and soul; power of action, decision, discretion; rebirth of religion in the world claiming faith out works.

IDEA 2 — "Jesus, the Extrovert" Develop and address stressing that Jesus Christ's activities on this earth were a series of unselfish contacts with and for other people. Emphasize that Jesus was more extroverted than most people can hope to attain. Jesus did not wait for people to invite Him; He invited them. For example, on one occasion, the Master said, "Zaccheus, come down, for this day I shall eat at your house."

IDEA 3 — "Jesus, the Example" Show in modern-day language how Jesus trained His disciples to carry the gospel to the utmost ends of the earth, because they liked Jesus, but had little idea of where the enterprise was leading. What did they fail to observe from His teachings? Read the four Gospels and see!

READERS: Upon request the writer of this column will prepare Christmas speeches that will give an idea for every word. For my free pamphlet on group discussion, two stamps and a self-addressed envelope to Dr. Marcus H. Boulware, St. Augustine's College, Raleigh, N. C.
