J. Richmond Johnson, Violinist And Composer In Shaw Concert

Shaw University presented J. Richmond Johnson, violinist-composer on Monday, December 2, at 8:00 p.m. in Greenleaf Auditorium. Mr. Johnson is music director of the Modern Academy of Music, music director of Union Baptist Church, a member of the First Violin Section of the Stamford Symphony Orchestra, and an executive member of the Stamford Symphony Society.

He received his early musical education at Howard University where he was a most apt student of Louis Vauth Jones. Later on he took special studies in violin and composition at the Yale University School of Music, and became a member of that institution's symphony orchestra. Johnson was the first Negro to become a member of the Yale-New Haven Symphony Orchestra.

His outstanding appearances include his performance with the Howard University Glee Club in a special program at the White House for the late President and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, and an appearance as a violin soloist in the first musical program given at the New House Office Building sponsored by Congressman Oscar De Priest.

Among Mr. Johnson's Compositions are 12 arrangements of Negro Spirituals for Women's Chorus; Art Songs; a Fantasy for Voice and String Orchestra; and pieces for Violin and Piano.

The program included Larghetto by Handel, Sonata in C Major K. 296 by Mozart, Sonata in A Major

UPSIDE DOWN EFFORT — Boston center Bill Russell finds himself doing an unexpected handstand during the action in the Celtics-St. Louis game in Boston. Russell was leaping for a rebound when he was bumped and knocked end over end. Grabbing the loose ball is St. Louis star Bob Pettit (left). At right, Hawks' Ed McCauley looks worried as he sees Russell's long legs heading his way. Boston won, 58-58 for their ninth straight triumph. (UNITED PRESS TELEPHOTO).
