Roxboro News

ROXBORO—All schools are getting ready for their Christmas programs and the students are anxiously waiting for the presentation. All P. C. H. S. teachers attended the meeting of the teachers association in Greensboro last Friday. The students enjoyed the week-end holiday.

The Panther basketball team will this opening drill with the Caswell County Training School Tigers last Friday night. The junior varsity capped the opposing Juniors 34-29 while the varsity lost by one point 29-30.

Wm. "Brownie" Smith was outstanding for the local juniors and looks like the surprise of the season.

Lieut. Arthur Word of Fort Bragg, Ga., attended the game Friday night. He once started at right guard for the Panthers.

The new gymnasium in the new gymnasium really gives the place class. Former stars of the Panthers are contemplating an organizing a city combination-sounds like a great idea. Ambrose Lee once operated the "Cosmos" a city group that gave a good account of themselves. Workers at the Roxboro elementary school are giving the auditorium a new face. Should look great after the overhauling.

FBI AGENTS

The letter, bearing a Charleston postmark, said "You're next," and was signed "K.K.K." However, Lambright said "I do not think the Klan had anything to do with it."

The FBI was also investigating a threatening letter recently received by former South Carolina law enforcement Chief O. L. Brady. Brady was connected with the arrest of a hooded klanman at a rally near Woodruff in August.

Five men, identified by Chief Pete Strom as connected with an independent Klan organization, were arrested in Cherokee County last Friday in connection with the bombing last month of the home of a white physician, Dr. James H. Sanders.

Mrs. Sanders said earlier that the only reason she could find for the bombing was an article she wrote for the pamphlet "South Carolinians Speak," urging a "moderate" approach to integration.

Waddell Lucas, 22, is charged with the capital crime of rape, while his brother, Marvin, faces the lesser charge of intent to commit rape. The brothers were arrested November 15 on the charge of raping and assaulting two girls, 13, and 15 years of age, in a wooded area in the Swift Creek section. The girls are sisters.

NEGROES' ROLES

Greetings from the President. It was also disclosed that President Eisenhower had planned to attend the session but was prevented from doing so because of his present illness. Instead, he sent the Rev. Frederic Fox, special White House assistant, to represent him. Rev. Fox read a message of greetings from the President, in which he praised the assembly as representing the "spiritual strength and moral fiber of our people."

The President also noted that the nation's outward programs of security and defense must be matched with inward signs of justice and charity at home. These he described as the teaching of the brotherhood of man. He assured that each American citizen receives equal opportunity to grow and serve the common good.

Dr. King Speaks

ODDS & ENDS

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) NOT CONVINCING: The explanation offered by the Rev. Herman Counts as to why he withdrew his daughter from the Harding High School in Charlotte, delivered before the Social Action group of the Davis St. Presbyterian Church last Thursday evening, was far from convincing. Mr. Counts reviewed the trials and sorrows experienced by his daughter during the few days she attended this formerly all-white school but he failed to explain how he or any other Negro can hope to ever achieve the freedom they say they aspire to without sacrifices and exposures to personal danger and harm.

No one would have criticized Rev. Counts if he had not made application for his daughter to attend this school. But after asking for and receiving permission for her to attend the Harding school, it would be natural for all to assume that he knew what he was doing

The Tea and Xmas flower show by the Wayside Garden Club held in the new home of Miss Virginia Trolinger, 1112 Babut St., was inspiring to all who attended with arrangements from the front door, for the coffee table, mantle, bedrooms, hall and kitchen. The green and gold party table featuring a glass Xmas tree with gifts beautifully wrapped and placed not to mention the tasty tea and Christmas fruit cake.

The pioneer Senior and Junior garden held their Yuletide show in the Christian Church but from 6 to 7:30 p.m. including decorative ideas from Christmas eve till New Year's Day with clock, the individual booths (and original idea of Mrs. R. There were special arrangements for hospitals to be distributed later. Everyone got ideas for home decorations besides enjoying the Cranberry punch and delicious Xmas cookies.

Mr. LeRoy Richardson of Newark, N. J. has returned home at present with his family and wife, the former Miss Virginia Trolinger of Rauhut Street.

This association urges all interested patrons to make entries in the exhibit to be held at the December 17 meeting. Ceramics, woodwork, needlework, foods and flowers will be displayed. Miss Gwendolyn Gidney at CA 6-065 can be contacted for further information.

and that there were possible dangers involved. No right thinking person will ever condone the type of treatment accorded Miss Counts by some of the lawless grown ups and students the few days she was at Harding High. No right thinking person has condoned the treatment accorded Negro children in other localities who have braved the furor of the mobs but have kept right on regardless.

In his talk last Thursday night, Rev. Counts not only tried to justify his own weakness, fear and timidity but he, for some unexplained reason attempted to vilify and condemn other Negroes for selling out to the white man. In view of what he had only recently done that part of his talk could have well been left unsaid. In fact, it would seem that the best thing that he can do is to keep his mouth shut until he is ready to say that his daughter is going back to the Harding High School.

WETZEL CASE

Wetzel, brought to North Carolina by train only Monday morning, had no attorney and asked Rev. Terry questions himself. He asked Rev. Terry if he was certain about his positive identification. The minister replied, "yes."

Wetzel then asked Rev. Terry why he had given authorities a description of the killer which does not fit Wetzel's description in such points as weight, age and complexion.

"Why did you say I was 25 years old?" Wetzel asked. Rev. Terry said "you told me about being in the Korean War."
