

Faubus Admits Possible Mistakes In Arkansas "Fuss"

Plans To Reveal "New Thought" On Problem Told By Gov. Faubus

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (ANP) — Controversial Gov. Faubus of Arkansas got into the news picture again last week with an announcement that he plans to reveal a "new thought" on the school integration problem, and admission that he might have made a few mistakes during the Central High controversy.

Interviewed at a news conference here, Faubus tried to minimize his own possible mistakes in comparison to what he termed the government's major blunder in calling out federal troops to enforce integration at the school. The government made the biggest mistake by using the troops, he said.

Back from a vacation trip in North Arkansas, the governor appeared to be acting the part of a prima donna, as he kept reporters guessing on what his "new thought" will be. He said, however, that he might reveal it in an address before the Independent Wholesalers convention here Jan. 15.

He refused also to say whether he would run for a third term as governor. He would say only that he thought the integration issue would be a major issue in the 1958 campaign.

Asked if he thought the National Democratic Party would support him in the campaign, Faubus said: "I think that I am not in any sort of disfavor with the Party. I may be with some Party officials but these are only a few. National Democratic chief Paul Butler, who usually speaks for the party, has criticized Faubus on his stand in the Little Rock controversy.

Mrs. Helen Harden Elected Pageant Chairman For 1958 Beaux Arts Ball

NEW YORK CITY (ANP)—Again, this year, Helen Harden will serve as Pageant Chairman for the 19th annual Beaux Arts Ball given by the National Urban League Guild on Friday, February 8, at the Savoy Ballroom.

For many years Mrs. Harden has master-minded the midnight Pageant parade, a tradition at every Guild Ball. She also makes the final decision about each Guild member's costume.

Assisting Mrs. Harden on the Pageant Committee are Lois Martin, Ben Wells, and Evelyn Brody.

TAX NOTICE

LIST YOUR 1958 RALEIGH TOWNSHIP AND CITY OF RALEIGH TAXES BEGINNING JANUARY 2ND MONDAY THRU FRIDAY—8:30 A.M. TO 5:15 P.M.

At East Davie St. Across Street From City Hall, Next to Advance Store

All other townships will be listed with the list taken in your respective township.

List your real estate, all personal property including automobiles and dogs. All male persons between the ages of 21 and 50 years of age required to list poll tax.

The law requires that taxes be listed in the month of January. A penalty of 10% will be added for failure to list. List now and avoid this penalty.

new color soft salmon pink in the large-flowered ruffled grandiflora bedding type. It is a beautiful, free blooming and vigorous hybrid. You'll like it.

The other flower sword goes to a new "Petite" type, or class, of very dwarf, very early and small flowering, double French Marigolds. In this group we find: "Petite Gold," "Petite Orange," and "Petite Harmony." "Petite Harmony" is a bi-color of maroon red with a crest of gold. This new type is especially good for edging and low beds.

"Pearlgreen" bush snapbean is similar to "Tendergreen," a winner in 1957. Except that it is white-seeded. It is a new all-purpose variety for fresh snaps, canning, freezing and, due to the white seed, it can also be used as a dry shelled bean. It is stringless and fiberless at tender eating stage, and a prolific bearer.

"Choctaw" wax snapbean is colorful for boiling, pickling, canning and freezing. Quality is good and productivity outstanding. Probably the best of the wax type yet developed.

"Ruby Queen" best is globe snapbean and a rich blood-red. Good for both home and market gardens.

"Ruby" lettuce is colorfully curled and ruffled, the reddest of all. It is a loose leaf type and especially good for color in salads.

I commented on some of these All-America Selections in an earlier column but did not have space enough to do these justice.

"The eyes of a great many people are on us today," declared Motor Vehicles Commissioner Edward Scheidt. "This is the first time such a law has been filed by a state as just in make-up as our own."

Though almost everybody, including the inventors of the bill, call North Carolina's new law "compulsory insurance," actually it is not quite that. If a car owner prefers to post $1,000 in cash or take out a $15,000 liability bond, he is not required to buy an insurance policy. But for most people insurance is mandatory unless the car owner is willing to park his car on a lot.

Motor vehicle and insurance officials have been working on their plans for administering the new law for many months. Every effort has been made to "educate" the public as to the requirements. How successful they have been will be known within the next few weeks as the bulk of new license plates is sold.

One point officials are stressing is the motorist who goes to buy his license or writes for it, cannot get his tag merely by presenting the registration card, the money and the insurance policy. In fact the

Florida Sheriff Quietly Releases Negro Held For Rape; Nab Blond

TAVARES, Fla. (ANP)—Malcolm Hawkins, 18, of Oklawaha, who was held incommunicado for five days by Sheriff Willis McCall on charges of raping a Leesburg white woman, was quietly released. It was learned here last week after the sheriff defied a court order to produce the prisoner.

At the same time, McCall announced the arrest of Jesse Daniels, 19, white, described as mentally retarded, for the crime for which Malcolm had been held. However, McCall did not make any statement that would clear Hawkins or indicate that he had released the youth from custody.

Hawkins is a nephew of Virgil Hawkins, who has been seeking admission to the Florida law school for the last eight years.

Arrested last Dec. 18, he was held in Lake county jail until Dec. 23. The sheriff ignored efforts of Gov. Collins to ascertain Hawkins' whereabouts and later ignored a circuit court judge's order to produce the prisoner in court. Hawkins, during his period of incarceration, had not had a hearing and was held without a warrant.

McCall gained notoriety in 1951 in the "Little Scottsboro Case," which involved Sam Shepherd and Walter Lee Irvin, both 22, and Charles Greenlee, 16, convicted of raping a white woman.

The supreme court ordered a new trial in the case of the trio who had been convicted despite lack of evidence. Shepherd and Irvin were under sentence of death while Greenlee had been given life.

While bringing the three handcuffed prisoners from Radford prison for trial, McCall shot and killed Shepherd and seriously wounded Irvin. His excuse was that they had tried to attack him. A grand jury investigating the crime refused to indict the sheriff.

Auto, Truck Licenses Now Being Sold

The state's 1958 auto and truck license tags have been on sale since January 2, marking the start of an attack on the highway accident problem which is without precedent in the south.

Its popular name is "compulsory automobile liability insurance." Its purpose—to offer some safeguard against financially irresponsible drivers who cause many thousands of dollars worth of unpaid-for damages every year.

After February 15, no motor vehicle can operate on the streets and highways without a new license plate. And no owner can buy a new tag without liability insurance or other proof of financial responsibility. In the case of the overwhelming majority of owners, insurance is the only practical way of complying with the law.

The North Carolina law, passed by the 1957 legislature, is not only brand new in the south but almost without precedent in the nation. A year ago Massachusetts adopted a compulsory insurance law but it is quite different from the Tar Heel and New York statutes.

The success or failure of the North Carolina law and its eventual acceptance or rejection by the people will influence action to be taken by the legislatures of many other states. Already there are moves on foot in South Carolina and Virginia to pass laws similar to the Tar Heel statute. Lawmakers in both states are watching developments here with real interest, according to information reaching the State Department of Motor Vehicles.

"The eyes of a great many people are on us today," declared Motor Vehicles Commissioner Edward Scheidt. "This is the first time such a law has been filed by a state as just in make-up as our own."

Though almost everybody, including the inventors of the bill, call North Carolina's new law "compulsory insurance," actually it is not quite that. If a car owner prefers to post $1,000 in cash or take out a $15,000 liability bond, he is not required to buy an insurance policy. But for most people insurance is mandatory unless the car owner is willing to park his car on a lot.

Traffic Accidents Can't Be Talked Away, Official Says

Traffic accidents can't be "talked away," says Major Charles A. Speed of the State Highway Patrol, but preventive measures can certainly be "talked up," as some 300 members of the speakers division of the Governor's Traffic Safety Council proved last year.

The hard-working police executive is in charge of the patrol's traffic safety division and coordinator of the exclusive orators club.

"Based on our best estimates reported to the National Safety Council, our volunteer speakers and other safety officials made approximately 10,000 talks during 1957 on the single subject of traffic accident prevention."

ings were squashed on his promise not to do it any more, which in turn would prevent the injured party from suing for damages, there would be somewhat a parallel situation.

The nation's independent businessmen, voting through the National Federation of Independent Business, have long requested more teeth being put into enforcement of anti-trust laws.

Actually, if some one is driven into bankruptcy by legal, monopolistic practices, his finances are not helped in the least by guilty promising to reform.

Thus, while under the anti-trust laws it is as much of a crime to conspire to drive out competitors through illegal means as it is to rob his till, there is always on the scene enough high priced legal talent to throw up all manner of smoke screens based on legal theories.

Yet the anti-trust laws themselves are quite clear and plain the way they are written, in most instances, and probably much plainer than many other laws on the books.

Justice Dept. defends the consent decree procedure as one that saves the government a lot of time and expense.

But undoubtedly, many legal actions could be settled with an even greater savings in time and money if the defendant knew that to go soot free he only had to promise to do better.

In all the high flown phraseology thrown about on the subject, one thing seems to escape the attention of the theorists.

The anti-trust laws are the law of the land as much as those prohibiting treason, murder, or robbery. As such, they are entitled to same enforcement.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS" BY C. WILSON HARDER

indicative of what will probably be the tone of the new session of Congress are the hearings being held by House Anti-Trust Subcommittee, chaired by Rep. Emanuel Celler of N.Y.

The chief concern of these hearings is to probe deeply the current practice of the Justice Dept. in anti-trust cases to accept consent decrees.

In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1957, Justice Dept. accepted consent decrees in 22 out of 27 civil cases.

This is the way a consent decree works. Justice Dept. agrees to drop prosecution against alleged monopolist in return for promise to "go and sin no more."

One of the biggest drawbacks to this technique is that the injured competitors are left holding the sack. The anti-trust laws provide that an injured party can sue for triple damages, and that in establishing the right to damages, may use as proof a judgment won by the government.

But in a consent decree settlement, this remedy is denied the injured competitors, because the law as it stands now, does not permit consent decrees to be entered as proof of guilt.

This practice is perhaps somewhat akin to what would result if someone drove at high speed through a stop sign and in doing so inflicted lifelong crippling injuries on an innocent party that was in the intersection. Then, if this reckless driver could make a deal with authorities whereby he would admit he was in the wrong, but any further proceedings would be dropped.

vention," Major Speed declared.

"Few other states can match this outstanding record of public-spirited cooperation in the attack on needless highway deaths and injuries. We are extremely proud of this achievement," he said.

The Speakers' Bureau is an outgrowth of the Governor's Traffic Safety Council which was organized four years ago by Gov. Luther Hodges. It numbers approximately 300 charter speakers who each carry a specially designed ID card signed by Gov. Hodges and Motor Vehicles Commissioner Edward Scheidt, chairman of the GTSC.

In reviewing the speakers program during last year, Major Speed revealed plans for an extensive expansion of the bureau's efforts in 1958. He said that special invitations had been made to influential speakers in every section of the state to enlist in the Speakers' Bureau. Acceptances were coming in encouragingly, he added.
