GIRLS RAPED

this, the fifth charge placed against him in Judge Norman Gold's Recorder's Court Thursday morning. Thus, with a total of 14,500 ball tagged on him in three cases and no bail allowed in the two rape cases, Howard is apparently "on ice" until Nash Superior Court convenes. Howard is alleged to have forced the 15-year-old girl into his 1958 car Sunday afternoon (prior to the involvement with the seven-year-olds) and taken her on a rape-attempt ride when the girl cried. Bond was fixed at $1,500 in portly lost her shoes in her escape from the car. Reportedly the finding of the shoes at Howard's home clinched the identity of the suspect in the later, more revolting, case involving the children.

The tiny tots were reportedly on their way to a cafe on West Thomas Street when the then unknown man induced them into his car on the pretext of taking them to the store and giving them more money than they had.

Once in the car, the assailant was said to have forced the children to lay on the floor as he drove and drove—where they could not see—until let out at an abandoned farm house. The children had reportedly said that the "large man" placed one in the trunk of the car as he assaulted the other, later returning them to town, giving them a dollar and letting them out of the car. In court, Howard reportedly admitted that "90 per cent of the charges," as related by detectives, "were true." He vigorously denied the criminal assault charges when first questioned and identified by the girls and did so in court. Capt. Clyde Hooker of the Detective Bureau said Howard pointed out the house where he admitted taking the children just before sunset. He is also said to have admitted picking up the high school girl, but denied attacking her. Hooker said.

WILL PROTECT SFT.

GREENSBORO — Police here have orders from the City Council to take "extraordinary measures" to catch vandals responsible for a series of attacks on the home of City School Supt. Ben L. Smith. The Council action last weekend came close on the heels of an incident last Wednesday night in which a five-pound rock was thrown through a window of Smith's home. The series of stone-throwings began in July when the school board voted to admit six Negroes to three previously all-white schools.

Mitchell said he intended to file papers soon in support of his position but declined to discuss the nature of the papers.

ODDS & ENDS

where this type of ordinance is in effect, any youth below the age of 20 found loitering on any street after the curfew hour, must show written permit from his parent or guardian. And this permit must give an acceptable reason why the person having it should be out after a certain hour of the night.

When night after night you see our boys and girls, and more particularly our girls in their early teens, hanging around joints past midnight regularly, you wonder why something can't be done to remedy this degrading and degenerating situation. The police know that this condition exists but presumably they have no authority to do anything about it. At any rate they don't do anything about it. Yet, as a direct result of hanging around and frequenting these joints, many of our young teen-age girls become pregnant, have to leave school and begin lives of prostitution and crime.

It is not to say that by preventing these youngsters from loitering in the streets, by the ways and alleys will stamp out this and other evils. It is to say, however, that we should insist upon and demand that any means whereby evil influences and tendencies can be curbed, should be put into effect, and vigorously enforced. We believe that a curfew law is badly needed in our city. If you believe so, why not let your belief be known to the Raleigh City Council at once.

THE LAW MADE THE DIFFERENCE: It may perhaps be significant that at the recently held conference of Asian-African nations in Cairo, Egypt, this country escaped being censured for its racial practices only because the U. S. Supreme Court has outlawed racial injustice in many areas during the past 2 years. Because of the expected impact of these decisions upon the discriminatory policies of this country, those Asian and African countries where the matter of race is becoming more and more significant, decided to wait and see what further implementation of the Supreme Court's decisions would be effect in America. This conference leveled its heaviest condemnation against the evil and dangerous racial discrimination now carried on by the fearful South African government and warned that Communist policies is likely to have upon its future. The attitude of this country representing three-fourths of the world's population, should not be taken lightly by this country, particularly the South.

This nation, and paradoxically this nation includes the South, badly needs the friendship of these Asian-African nations in its increasing tension with the Communist world. The future racial policy this country pursues will have a lot to do with whether or not it can obtain and retain this friendship it so badly needs.

A BOOK ON BOOKS: Would you like to have a book that will tell you what is in 91,000 other books? If so you need "Subject Guide to Books in Print 1957." This massive volume has 2 editors, ODDS & ENDS Contd No. 2. Herbert B. Ansieck and Sarah L. Pratkanis. The R. R. Bowker Co., New York City, sells this encyclopedia of books for the trifling sum of $17.50. The scope of this amazing volume is as amazing as is its style. In its own way this book may be as useful as the yellow pages of your telephone directory. If you are a specialist in any field of endeavor and have just about decided you need a book on a certain book relating to your specialty after reading the reference and the thumb nail sketch on that particular book in the "Subject Guide to Books in Print" you might find that was not the book you needed.

By a little further browsing in the book headings and references, chances are you would come across the name of the book more particularly suitable to your peculiar needs. The people who want to know something about the subject matter of a large number of books that do not have time or do not take to take the time to read may also find this huge volume worthwhile and entertaining. Here is the opportunity for you to become a "book worm" without having to do too much "worming."

FOLLOW THROUGH: The chances are that during the past Christmas season as was your custom, you "went out of the way" to help bring some measure of comfort and cheer to some person or persons less fortunate than yourself. That was just fine. Yes, we honestly mean that was praiseworthy and commendable. But, did it ever occur to you that those same people you remembered so graciously at Christmas time as well as countless others, need your consideration all during the year? Did you know that many of these unfortunates are surfeited with kindness at Christmas time are actually in want during most of the other part of the year because after Christmas has come and gone, too many of us seem to forget the needs of others and we just crawl back into our shells of selfishness and let the rest of the world go by? Would it be nice if we were to follow through and try to keep the Christmas spirit alive within our hearts the whole year through? It would be so good for our very souls if all during the year we would pause from time to time, stop trying to hold onto and to get out and look around us to see whom we might be able to help.

And remember this, if the good Lord has endowed you with health, he has enabled you to work and carry your own weight around and you earn enough to provide 3 meals a day for yourself and family, there are some ones nearby who are not so fortunate and who would welcome your sharing your bounty with them.

IT HAPPENED ON NEW YEARS DAY: Prairie View A&M, who play Texas Southern 6-5 in the Prairie View Bowl Game on New Year's Day last week may not have set any record about the number of safeties made by one team during a football game, but as far as we have been able to learn, Prairie View did establish a record for safeties in a bowl game. After Southern had scored a touchdown in the first quarter and failed in its effort to kick the extra point, Prairie View was able to put 3 safeties together for a total of 6 points, scoring one safety in the last 3 periods and thereby staving off defeat.

POLICE'S FAULT: No well-thinking person will condone violence, regardless of by whom it is committed. The so-called "mob action" on South Street Saturday night must be regarded by right-minded persons, both Negroes and white. What the Raleigh Police Department evidently refuses to recognize is the danger of allowing potential mobs to develop. The habit of loitering around juke joints, eating places, etc., blocking the sidewalks and interfering with people trying to pass by, hoodlums, criminals, wine-heads and other undesirable, is something that could and should be stopped.

There can be no good reason for allowing these gatherings on the sidewalks in front of these places and there is every reason for believing that trouble will come from the continuance of such practices. If the police would break-up every gathering of 3 or more persons found loitering on our sidewalks and streets, the danger of last Saturday night's occurrence happening again would be remote.

RIOT STICKS

Monday following the mob riot Sunday morning against police officers. Both gave notice of appeal and bond was set at $1,000 each. Unable to post bond, they were returned to jail.

Judge Albert Doub of City Court sentenced both men for attacking the officers and damaging a patrol car. Officers were investigating a call to Burnett's Place, 315 W. South St., when approximately 50 men surrounded their patrol car Sunday morning. Worth was immediately taken into custody and Willis was arrested later.

One patrolman described the mob as one of the worst he had encountered in 10 years of police work in the Capital City. Upon arriving at the scene of disturbance the officers found Worth drunk, disorderly and threatening to cut a young woman. He was placed under arrest after some difficulty.

At this point about 50 men surrounded the car in an effort to set Worth free. The officers, however, were able to break away from the mob and take the prisoner to jail, where he was charged with disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, assault on an officer and vagrancy.

Before the mob was dispersed, three more arrests were made. Seven officers and four police cars converged on the section following Worth's arrest. They nabbed Eugene Willis, charged with assault on an officer, resisting arrest and disorderly conduct; Miss Cora Smith, 9 Dadd Street, charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest; and Adell Willis, 409 W. Lenoir Street, charged with disorderly conduct and interfering with an officer.

The carrier of Burnett's Place, John Wesley Burnett, was also arrested and charged with operating a disorderly place of business. His bond was set at $500. Tried in City Court Monday also, his case was continued.

The other persons arrested in the incident were released Monday with fines or suspended sentences.

Rape is a capital crime in North Carolina, but Solicitor Harvey Lupton did not indicated whether he will seek the death penalty for the service station attendant.

Police said Mrs. De Porter told them Moore attacked her as she returned him to a service station after he had delivered the family car to the De Porter home. Police said Moore telephoned them about two hours after the incident and confessed. Mrs. De Porter's husband, a native of Paterson, N.
